CORPORATIONS RUSH TO FILE TAX REPORTS

Internal Revenue Offices All Over the Country Swamped on Last Day Under Law.

MANY INCUR THE PENALTY

May Pay from $1,000 to $5,000 for Tardiness—Others Get Extensions—Big Rush in New York.

Corporations in all parts of the country yesterday hastened to file with Internal Revenue Collectors the reports of their business called for by the new corporation tax law. It was the last day under the law for the reports to be made unless a corporation had been able to get an extension of time from a revenue officer, and concerns which failed to deliver or mail their returns before midnight are subject to fines of from $1,000 to $5,000.

Everywhere internal revenue officers were overburdened with the rush. Consequently statistics on the number of concerns which obeyed the law could not be obtained last night. It is evident, however, from dispatches sent by correspondents of THE NEW YORK TIMES at important centres that many thousands of the 400,000 corporations in the United States did not file reports, and so have become liable to penalties. Many of the returns that were sent had protests attached to them.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Information reaching the office of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue yesterday and to-day is to the effect that the tax returns of corporations have been pouring into the offices of the Collectors of Internal Revenue throughout the country for the last few days, especially yesterday and to-day. With the consent of the Commissioner many of the Collectors are holding their offices open until midnight to-night in order to receive on the statutory day as many as possible of the returns, so that corporations that have delayed in filing them should not be subjected unnecessarily to heavy penalties.

Pretty much all of yesterday and to-day the Commissioner was in communication by long-distance telephone or telegraph with different collectors upon questions arising at the last in the enforcement of the law. There have been a number of applications for extension of time, which it is within the authority of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to grant, but the percentage of such applications is not large when the vast number of corporations concerned is considered. In view of the talk to the effect that Congress might postpone the date at which the law should go into operation, many corporations that had their returns all ready for filing, held them up until the last day. These have helped to swell the number that have been coming into the offices of the Collectors. This situation was foreseen by the Commissioner, and arrangements were made to supply the Collectors with extra help in order that the returns might be forwarded to Washington as rapidly as possible.

A great deal of work must be done by the collectors before the returns can be sent on to the Commissioner. All returns must be classified and listed alphabetically and numbered. There are six classes, so that where a collector has 10,000 or 15,000 returns to handle it is likely to be a month or more before he can forward the last of them to Washington. This cause of delay was recognized in framing the law, and the Commissioner has until June 1 in which to complete the assessments of taxes.

The information given the Commissioner by the collectors with whom he has been in communication in the last day or two is to the effect that the percentage of cases where the internal revenue officials will have to go over the books of corporations and make up the returns themselves in the manner provided by the law will be comparatively small.

LATE RUSH IN NEW YORK.

Some Corporations Delayed Too Long and Are Subject to Penalty.

More than 5,000 returns of corporations under the new Federal corporation tax law were filed yesterday at the office of Collector Anderson of this internal revenue district. The office, on the top floor of the Custom House, was formally closed at 6 o'clock, but Mr. Anderson and some of his assistants waited for an hour to receive some of the belated reports, as it was the last day for the filing of returns. When the office finally closed every one was tired out.

Some of the returns came by messengers and some by mail. It was estimated last night that at least 10,000 corporations in this district had their reports in at the closing time. Several hundred more will doubtless be received to-day, for under the law a corporation could mail its report any time up to midnight, and still be within the letter of the law. In a large number of cases where men and boys bearing reports arrived after closing time, the documents were taken to the Post Office and mailed to the Collector in order to have the post mark show that they were submitted in time.

Just how much money will find its way into the United States Treasury from corporations in this district could not be learned. The Collector said he had no means of knowing, as all reports filed here will be sent on to Washington where the assessments will be made by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. He could not give the actual figures of the number of reports received here. Some corporations delayed until the eleventh hour in making applications for further time in which to file their reports, and learned yesterday that they had waited too long and would probably have trouble. They had hoped that the Collector, who has discretionary power to grant extra time up to thirty days after March 1, would grant a few days to them. A few such extensions were granted during the day, but those who could not offer very good reasons for delay were told that they must take the consequences of their negligence. The penalty for failing to file reports in the time required by law is a fine of not less than $1,000 and nor more than $10,000.

Among those corporations which got extra time were several whose treasurers or Presidents had died in the last few days. One corporation's treasurer had undergone an operation in a hospital on Monday and could not affix his name to the company's report. One corporation, whose place of business was destroyed by fire on Monday, asked for and obtained an extension of time for the filing of its report. In fact, all reasonable excuses were accepted by the Collector.

One lawyer who arrived at the Collec-

WOMAN RECLUSE MISSING.

Her Home in Atlantic Highlands Ransacked—Police Fear Murder.

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, N. J., March 1.—Chief of Police Snedecker and all the townspeople of this place are making a search for Mrs. Annie Gill, an aged recluse, believed to be wealthy, whose absence from her home, an old hotel, built years ago by her late husband, was discovered to-day. The house is on Hilton Ridge overlooking this place. Mrs Gill rarely left it for visits to town.

She has not been seen for three weeks and it may have been all of this time since she was in her home. That no one ever saw her in that time was not remarked because of her habit of remaining secluded in her home. To-day, however, a small boy, passing her house, saw a man peer from one of its windows and alarmed the villagers.

He told Chief Snedecker that he saw the man raise the window, step out on the porch, and, on catching sight of him, run to a wagon he had nearby in the woods and drive off post-haste toward Navesink Highlands.

Examination of the house showed that it had been ransacked from top to bottom. Not a room had been spared. Everywhere bureau drawers had been pulled open and their contents scattered about the floor. In Mrs. Gill's bedroom there was every sign of a struggle.

Chief Snedecker is working on two theories—one that the old woman may have been kidnapped, and the other that she may have been murdered and her body buried in the adjoining woods.

HARMON BALLOON TRIP ENDS.

Down After Sailing 790 Miles on Trial from Texas to New York.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 1.—The balloon New York, aboard which Clifford B. Harmon and his aid, George B. Harrison, set out from San Antonio last night in an attempt to better the long-distance balloon flight record, landed near Velonia, Ark., late to-day.

Though the distance in an air line is about 500 miles, Mr. Harmon says the New York covered 790 miles. The record is over 800 miles. The descent was made after hovering about Round Mountain for three hours. The balloon was driven back to the southwest numerous times before the aeronaut decided to land.

Describing the journey to-night, Harmon declared that at times during the flight the balloon traveled fifty-five miles an hour. An altitude of 12,000 feet was attained near Little Rock in an effort to maintain the course.

The flight was stopped, it is said, by an impending storm. The landing was effected without injury to balloon or aviators. The balloon was conveyed in a wagon to Austin, Ark., whence it will be shipped to San Antonio, presumably to await favorable weather for another flight.

The New York was first sighted at Velonia, thirty miles southwest of Little Rock, at noon to-day. After descending sufficiently to permit of communication with residents and the dropping of a postal card, the balloon reascended, sailing slowly northeast until it came to earth.

RECEPTION FOR THE COOK.

Brooklyn Lawyer's Family Pays Tribute to the Negro Kitchen Artist.

Emma Scarborough Jerrybanks Du Boise is the full name of the negro cook in the home of George F. Elliott, a Brooklyn lawyer, of 299 Clermont Avenue. Perhaps it had never before seemed so "high toned" to her as it did yesterday when Mr. Elliott's family and many of his friends helped her celebrate the twenty-first anniversary of her service in his home circle.

A reception had been planned for her by Mrs. Elliott in honor of the event. But she assured her employer that she did not care for such things and would rather have the money instead to add to a snug bank account she has. She received the money, and, much to her surprise, was the chief guest at the family reception, which was carried out as planned.

Mr. Elliott's friends came to pay their respects to Emma. In fact congratulations and honors came so fast that they almost took her "bref" away, as she put it. She carried the dignity of her name and place well during the ordeal.

It seldom happens that a family cook is the recipient of honors such as those given to Mr. Elliott's culinary artist, so she believes, but he thought that her faithful services should not go unnoticed. The only servant problem in the Elliott home is to get Emma to take "a day off." In spite of all the persuasive arguments by the family Emma refuses to take a vacation. A great deal of her spare time is spent in poring over her cook book.

OUR IDEALS NOT DEMOCRATIC.

So Says Lady Laurier, with Remarks on Purchase of Titles.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, March 1.—Lady Laurier, wife of the Premier of Canada, passed through here to-day on her way to Hot Springs, Ark. An enterprising local newspaper asked for her views on the democratic ideals of America as compared with the royal prerogatives of Europe.

"I haven't observed anything democratic in the ideals of America," she replied. "I don't say it isn't mixed enough, but Americans display a far greater eagerness and awe for royal prerogatives than do Europeans. Titles are of far greater value over here than where people are used to them. Americans give unqualified homage to royalty, while in European countries their value is not disproportionate to their station.

"What is the ideal in America? When you are successful, the first thing you buy is a title. There is a very great market for them here. The titled Europeans need the money, require it, in fact, but the Americans have no use for titles. They have not been very successful in possessing them, if we may believe what we hear of international marriages.

"For myself, I do not believe in such marriages. I think Americans should marry at home, and Europeans do likewise. To the European a title stands for breeding, culture, station. To an American it cannot mean this, since it is bought."

BOY SKATER DROWNS.

Companion Is Rescued as He Is Carried Over Falls to His Death.

Charles Smith, aged 11 years, son of Dominic Smith, a contractor at Pelham, Westchester County, was drowned yesterday in the Hutchinson River at Pelham after he had broken through the ice in the Pelham Reservoir near the dam. He was carried over the falls. His cousin, George Smith, was saved from a similar fate by the quick action of Vincent Rosenheimer, who jumped into the icy water and pulled him ashore. At the same time he gave the other boy a push, thinking that by so doing he would reach the embankment. But the current was so strong that he was carried over the falls and drowned.

The boys had not gone more than eight or ten yards when the ice gave way beneath them and they were precipitated into the water.

SNOW BLOCKS RESCUERS

Relief Train Able to Get Only Within Ten Miles—List of Idaho Slide Victims Grows.

EVERETT, Wash., March 1.—The Great Northern Spokane Express, that has been stalled on the summit of the Cascade Mountains since last Thursday, was buried by a slide early to-day. Late reports say 20 bodies have been recovered. 25 are missing and 15 or 20 are injured. A relief train has gone from Everett, but it will not be able to get within ten miles of the train.

The stalled train was about two miles west of the west portal of the Cascade tunnel. The track was open to the tunnel, but Supt. O'Neil of the Great Northern thought the train was safe where it stood. Supt. O'Neil's private car was buried, but O'Neil escaped injury.

At the Great Northern headquarters the number of persons on the train is given as thirty. Two passengers, who walked the ten miles from the blockade before the slide, gave the number of passengers as fifty-one. Among them are several women and children.

Later advices state that a Great Northern transcontinental mail and express train, carrying no passengers, and four electric motors used to pull the trains through the Cascade Tunnel, were also swept from the tracks and carried 100 feet by the avalanche.

According to reports, there is 18 feet of snow at the east end of the Cascade Tunnel and fifteen feet at the west end.

As wires are down information is meagre.

A work train, including two locomotives and a rotary snow plow, was also carried off the track. A water tank near Wellington station was buried by the avalanche.

SEATTLE, March 1.—Warm wind and rain caused rapid melting of snow in the Cascade Mountains to-day, bringing slides of snow, earth, and rock down on the railroad tracks and turning the mountain streams into torrents.

The Northern Pacific canceled two trains each way, and its other trains ignored the time tables and crept cautiously past points where danger threatened. The Great Northern is operating only one transcontinental train each way via Vancouver, the main line being blocked for ten miles.

OGDEN, Utah, March 1.—Flood conditions almost unprecedented have cut off the entire Northwest, and tied up traffic on half a dozen transcontinental railroads. Thaws in the mountains have caused avalanches that have swept away mountain towns and sections of railroad track in various places from Nevada to British Columbia.

The exact number of deaths caused by avalanches in the Rockies in Idaho and Western Montana probably will not be known until the Summer sun melts the great masses of snow and ice in the canyons into which several mining towns were swept.

Only one railway is operating into Salt Lake City. Several hundred westbound passengers are held in Ogden.

Through traffic on the Oregon Short Line was suspended to-day, but will probably be resumed to-morrow.

SPOKANE, Wash., March 1.—Hundreds of miners are to-day trying to dig from packed ice, snow, and wreckage the dead victims of the six Northern Idaho avalanches which occurred within the last two days. The death list of twenty-four yesterday has increased to thirty-one today, and it is believed more dead will be found in the splintered cabins which housed the families of the miners.

At Mace, where the first avalanche struck, eleven are known to be dead and eight are badly injured. At Burke, where the second slide occurred, five are known to be dead and two badly injured. Such is the chaotic condition in the small mining town, however, that the list is believed not to be complete. At Carbonate Hill, where the third slide occurred, two are dead and half a dozen are injured. It is not known how many more are beneath the wreckage.

A fourt slide at the North Franklin mine near Burke, played a peculiar freak. Two men were sleeping in one room of a bunk house, and the front part of the log structure was empty. The avalanche tore the whole building to splinters, except the room in which the two men were sleeping, and rushing down the mountainside, piled up in the gulch below, not 100 yards from a group of cabins containing many miners and their families.

TRAIN PLUNGES INTO RIVER.

Two Are Dead and a Number Injured—Dramatic Rescues from Drowning.

NEW CASTLE, Penn., March 1.—One man was instantly killed, one died, another is unaccounted for and believed to be dead, and nearly a score of others had narrow escapes from instant death when the Linesville Accommodation, a passenger train on the Erie & Pittsburg Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, jumped the track near Rock Point Park, and plunged down a fifteen-foot embankment into the ice-filled Beaver River at 5:05 o'clock this evening.

The engineer and fireman of the train were carried into the river with the locomotive and were rescued by means of a long hose. Several members of the rescuing party slipped into the river, and they, too, had to be pulled out. The engine now lies submerged in the bottom of the river, which, owing to the flood, is twenty-five feet deep at that point.

The dead are:

ALLIE, W. L., detective, of Sharon.
MAIN, HARRY, track walker.
RAY, EARL, baggageman, is the man missing and supposed to be dead.

There were twenty-eight passengers on the train at the time of the accident. That they were not all killed is considered a miracle. The train, made up of a baggage car, women's car, parlor car, and smoker, was traveling at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour on the inside track. A few minutes before the accident occurred Ray, the baggageman, had crawled from his car up over the coal tender and into the cab with Engineer Ray, who, although of the same name, is no relation. He was standing in the cab, when there suddenly came a terrific crash, and the train plunged over the embankment into the icy waters.

Ray, standing in the cab, saw Zelinski fall into the river and dived after him. Zelinski came up first and attempted to save Martin J. Kane. Both went down for the second time, and James Ray, the engineer of the train, swam to their assistance. The three of them were in imminent peril of drowning, and Joseph Davis went to their assistance. By that time a long line of hose was thrown to the apparently doomed men, and, clinging to that, Zelinski, the Detroit man, dragged them to shore.

The cause of the accident will not be discussed to-night by the company's officials.

THOUSANDS HIDDEN IN SPINSTER'S HOME

BIBLE STUFFED WITH BILLS

Her Death Alone Discloses the Wealth She Had Been Hoarding for Years—House Guarded.

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, N. J., March 1.—Professing abject poverty before the world and living more modestly than her poorest neighbors, Miss Elizabeth Hays, 86 years old, died suddenly last night in the midst of a fortune in gold and currency which for fifty years she had been secreting about her old farm house. The real truth of Miss Hays's financial status was discovered to-day when the heirs and her executor, Lawyer Reginald Branch, made a brief search of the house.

Bed and table linen yielded ten and twenty-dollar banknotes by the score. In an old cupboard was found several thousand dollars in gold eagles and double eagles. The old family Bible yielded a twenty-dollar note from between nearly every other leaf. Bed springs, old coffee pots, several old purses, and other receptacles were found to contain hundreds of dollars. A conservative estimate of the eccentric old woman's wealth is that she left an estate valued at more than $100,000.

Every effort was made to keep the discovery a secret, but the facts leaked out through neighbors and were verified through authoritative sources to-night. Relatives say that Branch is executor of the estate, and at his office to-night the lawyer admitted the discovery of the money and the fact that the estate left by the eccentric old woman was large.

Owing to the rumors flying through the neighborhood of the amount of gold and other currency discovered in the house, armed guards were stationed about the place to-night to keep off curious sightseers and guard against robbery.

A complete search of the old farmhouse, sadly in need of repair, will be made early in the morning, and relatives believe that a fortune in addition to the thousands of dollars found to-day will be discovered.

The bills found in the Bible bear dates of issue shortly after the civil war. Despite the fact that it contained hundreds of dollars, the old book reposed on a parlor table.

In a cupboard, among odds and ends of every description, was a little pasteboard box. The investigators were about to toss this aside, when a jingle of coin drew their attention and they raised the lid, to discover the box filled with gold coins amounting to nearly $800. Old salt bags and leather wallets filled with gold were picked from an odd assortment of trash.

In different receptacles a thousand old coins of copper, nickel, silver, and gold alloys, minted in a dozen different countries in the last two centuries, were discovered.

Even the beds gave up hidden wealth. Rolls of banknotes, all of large denomination, were found stuffed between the matteresses, and mixed in with them were packages of civil war currency known as "shin plasters." Lifting some napkins from a cupboard shelf some of the linen dropped to the floor disclosing several ten-dollar notes hidden between the neatly ironed folds.

Although she was known among her neighbors as eccentric, Miss Hays was never regarded as a miser. Like many of the old residents of this section, she had little faith in banks, but none of her relatives or friends ever imagined she had stored up the savings of a lifetime in her own home. It is evident, however, that Miss Hays had thus saved for decades. Many of the old banknotes bearing early dates, almost crumbled to dust when found, and it will take an expert to decipher their value.

In addition to the cash discovered, neighbors say the house contains much silver plate. Rare old furniture is in every room, and paintings that belonged to ancestors of Miss Hays adorn the dingy walls. A curio collector is said to have offered Miss Hays a large sum for a single picture that hangs in the parlor only a few weeks ago, but she refused to part with it, declaring it was a family heirloom.

One of the first to visit the old farmhouse, which stands on the river bank about four miles from Burlington, to-day, was Schuyler Rainier, the farmer of Florence township whose lack of faith in savings banks resulted in the famous daylight robbery of an old safe in which he kept his wealth last Fall. Rainier, who lives about three miles from the Hays farm, was a cousin and one of the few living relatives of Miss Hys. The lack of faith in banks seems to be a family trait.

Miss Hays was a member of one of the oldest Burlington County families. She is said to have left a will, but nothing is known of its contents.

DOCTOR USES A HATCHET.

Operation He Performed Was on Two Wheels of a Rival's Buggy.

The feeling between Dr. J. Jay Hunt and Dr. James W. Ware, Bayonne physicians, was not enhanced yesterday when Dr. Hunt with his little hatchet chopped away the spokes in two wheels of Dr. Ware's buggy while the latter was attending a patient on the floor above where Dr. Hunt lives, at 949 Avenue C. For a year the two doctors have been engaged in a legal fight growing out of a partnership agreement which each claims the other violated.

When he made his call Dr. Ware left his horse and buggy in charge of a small colored boy. Dr. Hunt saw Dr. Ware enter the house and got out his hatchet. When Dr. Ware saw the condition of his buggy and heard the boy's story he was satisfied who had done the chopping, but he said nothing to Dr. Hunt. When he got into the buggy the wheels gave way and Dr. Ware was thrown out. He says he received severe injuries in the tumble.

When asked if it was true that he chopped the spokes from the wheels, Dr. Hunt said:

"Yes, it was I who chopped the wheels, and I guess I had a right to do it. When we entered into the partnership we agreed that each should have an equal share in all our belongings. Two of the buggy wheels therefore belonged to me. I wanted to mark the wheels for identification, when the final settlement between Dr. Ware and myself takes place."

LAST ROCKEFELLER OUT OF U. S. STEEL

Announcing That Their Holdings No Longer Justify His Giving Time to the Directorate.

For $25,500,000 Par Lake Superior Stock Taken Into the Combination Possibly Some $68,850,000 Cash Was Taken Out.

The resignation of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., from the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, marking the complete severance of Standard Oil connection with the steel company, was announced yesterday by E. H. Gary, Chairman of the corporation, who made this official explanation of Mr. Rockefeller's withdrawal:

"Mr. Rockefeller, Jr., states that the only reason for his resignation is that the holdings of stock in the company by members of his family are not sufficiently large to justify his giving any time or attention to the affairs of the corporation."

Standard Oil interests had been represented in United States Steel from its organization in 1901, John D. Rockefeller, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Henry H. Rogers having entered the first Board of Directors following the sale to the corporation of their controlling holdings of the Lake Superior Consolidated Iron Mines stock. Mr. Rockefeller, Sr., resigned several years ago when he withdrew almost completely from business affairs; Mr. Rogers's death removed the second Standard Oil representative from the board. Mr. Rockefeller, Jr.'s, withdrawal closes the chapter.

It is a tranquil close to a story which Wall Street at one time thought would prove one of the most exciting of its long series of stirring tales. For in the original organization of the steel combination no provision was made for the inclusion of the Lake Superior Consolidated Iron Mines Company, a concern capitalized at $29,425,940, and which under the Rockefeller guidance had gathered in the greatest known iron ore deposits in the Mesaba, Minn., range, and had built a railroad 125 miles long, to bring their output to Duluth, at the head of Lake Superior. The Carnegie Company had leased some of the Lake Superior's mines, and the ore company held so strong a position that Wall Street, when it was not named among the concerns first mentioned as about to enter the combine, had many misgivings.

These were not allayed by reports of impending battle between the new corporation and the Standard Oil people, who were even alleged to be on the point of forming a gigantic rival to fight the trust. In February, 1901, negotiations were entered into which succeeded so well that in April J. P. Morgan & Co., as managers of the syndicate promoting the Steel Corporation, made a public offer of $135 in the new Steel preferred and $135 in the common for each $100 of Lake Superior Consolidated stock, the offer itself containing this statement:

"Arrangements have already been made for the acquisition upon the above basis of more than 85 per cent. of the stock of the Lake Superior Consolidated Iron Mines, embracing therein the interests of Mr. John D. Rockefeller."

This was regarded as a peace pact, and nothing more was heard of a Rockefeller-Morgan clash over Steel until the depression of 1903-4, when Wall Street, seeing Steel common sell down steadily from the 50's to below 10, insisted that Standard Oil was at last "after" Steel in earnest. If the Street was right the quest failed. Never has there been since that time any question of the absolute ascendancy of the Morgan interests in Steel.

If the statement quoted from the Morgan & Co. circular of April, 1901, regarding the acquisition of the Rockefeller interests in Lake Superior is construed liberally it may be assumed that the "Rockefeller interests" in Lake Superior made up 85 per cent. of the total of the concern's stock of nearly $30,000,000. This is probably not far from the truth, as Standard Oil dominated the company, its officers and Directors being composed only of me nwith Standard Oil affiliations.

Using that percentage, 85, as a basis, it is possible to estimate the amounts of United States Steel common and preferred which the Rockefeller interests must have liquidated in order to comply with the conditions forming the reasons for Mr. Rockefeller, Jr.'s, resignation from the Steel Directorate, which were as Judge Gary explained, that the holdings of Steel shares by "members of his family is not sufficiently large."

For their 255,000 shares of Lake Superior the Rockefeller interests must have received, under the offer of 135 of Steel preferred and 135 of Steel common, 344,250 shares of each class of Steel stock. Translated in terms of dollars at par this meant $34,425,000 of Steel preferred and $34,425,000 of Steel common. If advantage could have been taken of the highest market prices to do so the Rockefeller interests might have obtained an average of practically par on the combined amount of both stocks, or $68,850,000 for their original $25,500,000 par value of Lake Superior stock.

The further question raised in Wall Street's mind by yesterday's announcement was whether last year's rise in Steel common to practically $95 a share had induced profit taking on the Rockefeller holdings, and therefore led to the family's passing from the Steel Corporation's affairs.

MRS. ASTOR ASKS A DECREE.

Seeks Final Order in Her Divorce Suit in White Plains.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 1.—Counsel for Mrs. Ava Willing Astor filed a note of issue to-day for a motion to make permanent the interlocutory decree of divorce she obtained from Col. John Jacob Astor, granted by Justice Mills at New City, in Rockland County, more than three months ago. The application sets forth that Mrs. Astor will appear before Justice Mills on Friday next and ask that the final decree be granted in her behalf.

A clerk from the law firm of Strong & Cadwalader of 40 Wall Street, New York, counsel for Mrs. Astor, filed the application in the County Clerk's Office, and the matter will come before Supreme Court Justice Mills at a special term here next Friday.

When Mrs. Astor obtained the interlocutory decree from Justice Mills she had three months in which to make the application for the permanent decree. The time limit would have expired next Friday.

HE'S HIS OWN POLICEMAN.

Wealthy Montclair Resident Put on the Force in Self-Defense.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., March 1.—Charles E. Van Vleck, one of Montclair's wealthiest residents, has been appointed a town policeman. However, he will not patrol a beat and will serve only temporarily.

He is having a $60,000 residence built at North Mountain Avenue and Van Vleck Street, and as the workmen have been annoyed by prowlers, Mr. Van Vleck wanted to have authority to make arrests if the occasion required. As a policeman he will wear one of the badges of the Montclair department.

Charges have been preferred against Michael Mee, a patrolman, by Chief Gallagher, and the Town Council will meet in special session next Monday night to act on the case. Mee is accused of having indulged in intoxicating liquors while on duty and of having left town without permission of the chief.

BALTIMORE, March 1.—Conferences between officials of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and representatives of the telegraphers of the system culminated to-day in an agreement declared by both sides to be satisfactory.

The operators will have from 8 to 9 per cent. increase in pay and valuable concessions. These include a reduction to nine hours a day for the ten-hour operators, fifteen days' vacation yearly with pay to the twelve-hour men, and an agreement providing that in the event of the telephone superseding the telegraph as a means of dispatching trains the telegraphers shall be transferred to the telephone service with the same salaries and privileges they will enjoy under this new contract. About 1,500 operators are affected.

PRIMA DONNA WINS HER SUIT.

Hotel Cannot Use Mme. Lipkowska's Name for Dishes on Menu.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., March 1.—Judge Richardson of the Superior Court found to-day in favor of Mme. Lipkowska, the Russian prima donna, in her equity suit to restrain the proprietor of the Hotel Lenox from continuing to use her name in connection with choice dishes on the hotel menu, but as the hotel management had agreed to omit the lady's name no injunction was issued.

Judge Richardson held that the case involved the appropriation of the lady's name against her will for the hotel's own use and profit, and in such a way that others might infer that she had procured it to be done.

VERMONT COUNTIES GO "DRY."

Three More Bar All Saloons, but Some Towns Admit Them.

MONTPELIER, Vt., March 1.—"Wet" spots in three Vermont counties during the last year will become "dry" as a result of the annual vote on the liquor question at the city and town elections held to-day throughout the State. These three counties are brought wholly into the temperance column. Returns up to midnight from most of the towns in thirteen of the fourteen counties—Grand Isle County being still unreported—indicate that one city, Rutland, and thirteen towns changed from "dry" to "wet," while eight turned from "wet" to dry."

There are now four prohibition counties in the State—Caledonia, which has never voted for license, and Washington, Orleans, and Orange, which entered the prohibition class to-day. Windsor County, which was in this class last year, now has one "wet" place.

PONTIAC, Mich., March 1.—President Taft has appointed Mrs. Mabel Leroy of this city to a high position in the Government Land Office at Washington.

Mrs. Leroy is the widow of the late James Leroy, who was private secretary to Mr. Taft in the Philippines. She leaves to-morrow for Washington.

WILSON QUESTIONS PINCHOT'S VERACITY

Denies He Authorized Him to Write Dolliver Letter—Ex-Forester Thinks He Did.

PINCHOT ADMITS MISTAKES

Made Misstatements in Letter to Taft—Based Attack on Ballinger on Letter Secretary's Partner Wrote.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Gifford Pinchot was under attack to-day in the Ballinger-Pinchot inquiry. Secretary Wilson took the stand and flatly contradicted testimony which Mr. Pinchot had given a few minutes before as to whether the Secretary had authorized him to write to Senator Dolliver the letter which resulted in his own dismissal.

Earlier in the day Mr. Pinchot admitted that he had based his charge against Mr. Ballinger of deceiving President Taft on a letter written not by Mr. Ballinger, but by the Secretary's former law partner, Judge Ronald of Seattle. Senator Nelson asked Mr. Pinchot if it was not true that Mr. Ballinger, in submitting the Ronald letter to the President, supposedly as a part of his defense, had not previously written to the President the actual facts about the statements contained in the letter. Mr. Pinchot admitted that this was so.

Mr. Pinchot's third reversal came just before the close of to-day's session. He was compelled to admit that three statements he made in his letter to President Taft introducing Louis Glavis were untrue. They were mistakes, Mr. Pinchot said.

Mr. Pinchot tried to avoid a controversy with Secretary Wilson. He refused, until ordered by the whole committee to do so, to answer questions about the conversation he had with Secretary Wilson just prior to his sending the letter to Senator Dolliver. At last he described the conversation. The upshot of it was that he believed he had obtained the Secretary's permission to write and send that letter.

Wilson Takes the Stand.

Immediately upon the conclusion of Mr. Pinchot's testimony as to the matter, Secretary Wilson took the stand. He launched at once into a vehement denial that he had given Mr. Pinchot permission to send the letter to Senator Dolliver. His appearance was highly dramatic, and the crowded committee room listened with breathless interest. The old man leaned forward in the elevated witness chair, gesticulating vehemently. Speaking with explosive force he exclaimed:

"He never got my consent. There were two things in that letter which would have made my consent to it impossible. He put himself in the position of a superior court as to what was in the President's mind and he assumed what authority I had as to discipline of subordinates in my department."

That was perfectly clear and emphatic, and it seemed that the denial of Mr. Pinchot's testimony was complete. But Secretary Wilson, under cross-examination by Mr. Pepper, counsel for Mr. Pinchot, and by different members of the committee, made a number of admissions and denials which flatly contradicted themselves. He said first that there had been no conversation such as Mr. Pinchot had described. Later he said that they had talked about the letter to Mr. Dolliver. Then he said it had not referred to the things Mr. Pinchot had described, and then said that he had earnestly advised Mr. Pinchot not to send such a letter.

The net result of Mr. Pinchot's testimony regarding Judge Ronald's letter was to leave the impression that Mr. Pinchot had failed, so far as that part of his case was concerned, to show that Mr. Ballinger had deceived or attempted to deceive the President. The worst that he had shown was possibly that Mr. Ballinger, having written the truth to the President in that matter, had been willing to let his former partner write inexactly for possible publication.

In another matter, however, Mr. Pinchot gave testimony intended to show that Mr. Ballinger had deceived the President. That was in regard to the clear listing of the Cunningham coal claims for patent. Mr. Pinchot testified that in December, 1907, very soon after the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate had telegraphed Clarence Cunningham that it would exercise its option on the Alaska coal land claims ex-Gov. Moore of Washington, a member of and counsel for the Cunningham group, came to Washington and saw Mr. Ballinger, who was then Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Shortly after that interview, said Mr. Pinchot, Mr. Ballinger himself ordered the clear listing of the Cunningham claims to patent. Mr. Pinchot testified that Mr. Ballinger had not told the President that he was the one who had ordered this clear listing, and in this respect he had deceived the President.

Pinchot's Charge Challenged.

A decided surprise came in the development that Mr. Pinchot's charge that Mr. Ballinger had in his reply to the President made statements that were "absolutely false in three essential particulars" were not based upon Mr. Ballinger's letter, but upon a letter written by Mr. Ballinger's former law partner, J. T. Ronald, to Dr. Lyman Abbott. Mr. Ballinger had sent this letter to the President "as a part of his defense," according to Mr. Pinchot.

Mr. Ronald in his letter, said that without knowledge of the records he felt no hesitation in contending in behalf of Mr. Ballinger that (1) Special Agent Jones never made a report dealing with the Cunningham claims; that (2) the order revoking the clearing list of the Cunningham claims was not based upon a protest by Glavis, and that (3) Mr. Ballinger never appeared before a Congressional Committee in the interest of any Alaska claimants. Mr. Pinchot said it appeared from a copy of Mr. Ronald's letter, which he read, that Mr. Ronald based his statements on a magazine article containing charges against which were noted the marginal notes "no" in Mr. Ballinger's handwriting.

Mr. Pinchot said that Jones in his testimony before the committee showed he had reported on the Cunningham claims; that Mr. Ballinger admitted in a letter to the President that the clear listing order was revoked on the protest of Glavis, and that Mr. Ballinger in his testimony before a Congressional committee referred to a group of thirty-three claims which could have meant only the Cunningham interests.

Senator Fletcher—Why do you base charges of falsehood against Mr. Ballinger on a letter written by some one else?

Mr. Pinchot—Because he annotated the letter and transmitted it, so annotated, to the President as a part of his defense to charges made by me in my letter of Nov. 4.

Senator Fletcher—You mean to say that Secretary Ballinger vouched for this letter?

Mr. Pinchot—I could draw no other conclusions.

Senator Nelson—Don't you know, as a matter of fact, that before transmitting this Ronald letter to the President Mr. Ballinger himself had made a statement to the President in which he covered these three points and in which he stated the actual facts?

Mr. Pinchot—Yes.

Senator Nelson—Then how do you say that he willfully attempted to deceive the President by transmitting this letter?

Mr. Pinchot—I do not know the working of Mr. Ballinger's mind, and I do not attempt to reconcile the two occurrences.

Secretary Wilson Called.

Early in the afternoon session it became evident from Mr. Pinchot's testimony that he was leading up to the circumstances attending the writing of the letter to Senator Dolliver, upon which President Taft demanded Mr. Pinchot's resignation.

"I have a letter from Secretary of Agriculture Wilson saying he desires to be present when any testimony is given as to the Dolliver letter," said Chairman Nelson.

The examination was turned aside, and a message requesting the immediate presence of the Secretary was sent.

When Secretary Wilson arrived Mr. Pinchot read into evidence his letter to Senator Dolliver.

After the committee had instructed Mr. Pinchot to reply to questions as to whether Secretary Wilson had authorized him to write his letter to Senator Dolliver, Mr. Pinchot was asked:

"Did you consult with the Secretary before sending that letter?" repeated Chairman Nelson.

"I did."

The witness proceeded to explain his answer by saying that he went to Secretary Winson on Jan. 3 and told him Senator Dolliver had requested information from the Forest Service and that the Secretary made no objection.

We discussed at some length the right of Senator Dolliver to get the information from me. As to the President's order forbidding subordinates to give information to Congress, Secretary Wilson said: 'You and I will have no trouble about that order,' or words to that effect. I believed I had his consent. I described to him the situation as to the controversy between the Interior Department and the Forest Service. I told him of the intention of our opponents to magnify what had been done by Messrs. Price and Shaw and that I thought the only wise thing for us to do was to lay our hand down on the table, admit what we had done, and force the Congressional inquiry to the points it ought to devote itself.

"I was convinced that Secretary Wilson favored my effort to defend Price and Shaw, although he did not favor my plan of getting publicity at the same time the other side did. I felt I had, however, secured his permission to write to Senator Dolliver.'

Contradicts Pinchot.

The cross-examination of Mr. Pinchot was delayed until Secretary Wilson, who desired to take the stand at once, could be heard. The grizzled old official was plainly agitated when he took the oath as a witness, and when he began to testify his voice was high pitched and strained.

Mr. Vortrees, counsel for Secretary Ballinger, undertook the direct examination.

"You have heard what Mr. Pinchot has said; have you any statement to make?" he asked.

"Some of the things Mr. Pinchbot has said here—a good many of them," began Secretary Wilson, "are correct. But there are other things that are not correct." The Secretary brought his fist down on the table with a resounding whack. He then continued:

"He never got my consent to send that letter to the Senate. There are two things in it that would have made it impossible for me to have given my consent. He attempted to review and judge the mental processes of the President. He also assumed the authority that was mine to discipline officers of my department.

"Ever since that order by the President, it has been the custom when Congressmen ask for information from the officers of my department to come to me and tell me that a Congressman wanted to know this or that. I have always told them to go ahead and give the necessary information. Nobody ever came to me, however, and Mr. Pinchot slays he did, to get a general order to send in anything they pleased.

"Mr. Pinchot didn't tell me he was going to send a letter of that kind, dealing with the President. He said he was going to send something to Senator Dolliver regarding departmental matters. If he had said he was going to pass upon the President and to judge the confession made to him by Mr. Price, I don't think he would have ever sent that letter. They kept this Shaw business from me. I didn't know anything about it.

"Now, gentlemen, I know comparatively nothing of what you are considering here. I have read something about it in the papers and know what the President has said. Mr. Pinchot wants you to believe that because I raised no objection to him writing letters to Senator Dolliver regarding departmental matters that he had a right to write what he did. He had no such authority from me. I knew nothing of it.

"The question before this committee is, 'Did he have my consent to write that letter?' He did not. I never saw it. I never heard of it until I read it in The Congressional Record."

Could Not Forgive Him.

The cross-examination of Secretary Wilson was begun by Attorney Pepper, but it was soon taken out of his hands by the four Democratic members of the committee who took turns about in plying the Cabinet officer with questions.

In reply to Attorney Pepper, Secretary Wilson said he would have forgiven Mr. Pinchot for his assumption of authority to discipline subordinates of the Forest Service, but that he could not forgive the aspersions on the President.

Senator Purcell asked Secretary Wilson if he had not specifically talked over the Dolliver letter with Mr. Pinchot. The Secretary declared he had not.

"Do you think I would have agreed," he demanded, "that he should insult the President of the United States and exercise my authority over subordinates?"

Secretary Wilson admitted, under a perfect hail of interrogations, that he did talk with Mr. Pinchot about a letter to Senator Dolliver, but insisted always that he supposed the letter was to be simply about departmental affairs.

"Of course, Mr. Pinchot," he added, "may have had things in his mind that I didn't. He was up in this work and I was not."

Attorney Pepper—You did acquiesce in Mr. Pinchot writing a letter such as you understood he was going to write?

Secretary Wilson—Not such a letter as he did write. I earnestly advised against that method of bringing things about.

Attorney Pepper—If Mr. Pinchot wasn't going to send the kind of a letter he did, what was it you objected to?

Secretary Wilson—I have told you what I objected to. I am not going to contradict Mr. Pinchot any more than I have to. But the truth is the truth. I have the same painful sentiment that he expressed about this controversy.

Pinchot Admits Mistakes.

Secretary Wilson was here excused and the cross-examination of Mr. Pinchot was begun by Attorney Vertrees.

"How old are you?" he asked.

"Forty-four or 45," replied Mr. Pinchot.

Mr. Vertrees sought to question the witness as to his motives for not swearing to his preliminary statement to the committee, in which he charged Mr. Ballinger with falsehood. The entire committee soon got into a controversy over the objection which was interposed by Attorney Pepper. During the discussion Mr. Vertrees accused Mr. Pinchot of having "entered the field of malicious accusation." The question was not pressed, however.

Mr. Vertrees read three statements from a letter addressed by Mr. Pinchot to President Taft at the time that Glavis was seeking an interview with the President.

"You state that by official action your office stopped the issuance of patents to the Cunningham claimants," said Mr. Vertrees. "Is that true?"

"That was a mistake," said Mr. Pinchot.

"Secondly," said Mr. Vertrees, "you stated to the President that, as a result of Mr. Ballinger's action in restoring water power sites withdrawn by Secretary Garfield, valuable lands containing power sites had passed from the Government. Is that true?"

"That was a mistake," answered Mr. Pinchot.

"Lastly," said Mr. Vertrees, "you told the President that you had known Glavis for several years. That also was a mistake, wasn't it?"

"I thought I had before seeing him at Spokane last August. I knew of him."

Asked if the whole framework of his letter to the President was not inaccurate, Mr. Pinchot replied:

"The question whether I made mistakes or not is not essential. The President would have seen Glavis anyway."

Mr. Vertrees sought to draw out from the witness the fact that there was a general movement on foot to discredit Secretary Ballinger.

"I don't recognize a movement against Mr. Ballinger," he said.

"Are not you and Mr. Garfield and Shaw and Price and Glavis and others in a movement to cause the removal of Mr. Ballinger and to bring about his official destruction?"

"If you ask me if we are all in a movement to conserve the natural resources, no matter whom the movement hurts, I will reply 'Yes.'"

"And you say you regard Mr. Ballinger as one of the chief obstacles to the conservation movement, and you are trying to remove him?"

"We started in to reform him," replied Mr. Pinchot, amid laughter.

"Failing in that, you are going to try to remove him, are you?"

"We are going to try to place the facts before the committee."

Asked as to what Mr. Ballinger had done to show himself an enemy to conservation, Mr. Pinchot declared that he had done this by refusing to create ranger sites on the public lands, that he had restored water power sites to entry, and that he had tried to force through the Cunningham claims.

At this point an adjournment was taken until Friday morning.

DYING MAN TRANSFERRED.

Coroner Investigating Farrell's Removal from J. Hood Wright Hospital.

Coroner Schongut of the Bronx announced last night that he should begin to-day a rigid investigation into the transfer on Monday of Matthew Farrell, a patient in J. Hood Wright Hospital, from that institution to Lincoln Hospital, where he died yesterday. The Coroner said that the man had blood poisoning, and that in his mind there was no doubt that his death was hastened if not partly caused by the removal.

Supt. Martines and Dr. L. C. Dubois of the J. Hood Wright Hospital will be subpeonaed, the Coroner said, and he will require them to bring the records and temperature charts in Farrell's case. He said that to move a dying man was criminal.

The night clerk at the J. Hood Wright Hospital said that Farrell was brought there on Feb. 22 after being picked up at Ninety-sixth Street and Columbus Avenue, where he had received a compound fracture of the left leg in an accident. As the hospital is an emergency one, having but forty beds, the clerk said it was customary to transfer all cases which demand long treatment. The records showed that Farrell developed erysipelas and delirium tremens. For that reason it was determined to send him to Bellevue, and he was driven in the ambulance to the pier at 126th Street and the Harlem River to take the Bellevue boat.

A fog preventing the boat from making the trip on the river, the clerk said that a surgeon present with an ambulance from Lincoln Hospital had agreed to take Farrell there instead of making him undergo the longer trip downtown to Bellevue.

DONALD BRIAN BRIDEGROOM.

Actor in "The Dollar Princess" Married to Mrs. Charles H. Pope.

Donald Brian, who is playing Freddy Smythe in "The Dollar Princess" at the Knickerbocker Theatre, and Mrs. Charles H. Pope were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride, 40 Washington Square South. The marriage was the outcome of a long engagement, and was to have taken place later in the Spring. Possibility of getting an early release from "The Dollar Princess" company seemed remote, however, and it was decided to have the ceremony at once and wait until Summer for the honeymoon, which will be spent in the Canadian woods.

There were only a few intimate friends present at the wedding. Michael J. Drummond, Commissioner of Public Charities, gave the bride away, and the best man was her brother, Walter J. Gleason, now a freshman at Yale. Many floral gifts were received, including a large horseshoe from "The Dollar Princess" company.

Mrs. Brian was formerly Miss Florence Meagher Gleason, a daughter of Joseph J. Gleason, known as a heavy real estate owner in Westchester County. Her brother, Joseph J. Gleason, Jr., recently married Marjorie Wood of the William Collier company. Mr. Brian, before becoming a member of "The Dollar Princess" company, was the original Prince Danilo in "The Merry Widow" in this country. He and his bride will make 40 Washington Square their permanent home.

WILL NOT ARBITRATE STREET CAR STRIKE

Philadelphia Transit Company Rejects Peace Plan Offered by Business Interests.

PRESSURE WILL CONTINUE

Strong Political and Financial Influence Brought to Bear—Unions Prepare for a General Strike.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 1.—Determined efforts to bring about arbitration of the street car strike, which were begun by powerful business interests on Monday, continued to-day without result. President Kruger of the Rapid Transit Company, following a day of conferences, declared to-night that there had been no change in the opinion of the Directors.

Powerful political, financial, and commercial forces, however, will continue the pressure to end the present interruption of the normal life of the city without disastrous complication of a general strike.

Market Street merchants, headed by Ellis Gimbel and Jacob D. Lit, conducted to-day's negotiations for peace. They had made a beginning on Monday and resumed their efforts at 11 o'clock this morning when they conferred with George H. Earle in his office in the West End Trust Building.

While the actual result of the conference was carefully guarded, it is believed that Mr. Earle laid before the Directors a tentative proposal probably to the effect that the company consent to resume negotiations with the strikers. The only result was this brief statement:

March 1, 1910.

At the conclusion of an informal conference of Philadelphia Rapid Transit Directors to-day, Mr. Kruger stated that the company has not changed and will not in anyway change its attitude with respect to arbitration already outlined in its reply to the Ministers' Association.

It developed to-day, however, that there were few interests in this city that were not, in some direct or indirect way, supporting the arbitration idea. An enormous pressure has been brought to bear on the Directors of the Rapid Transit Company. They seemed much quieter than normal as they emerged from the board meeting this afternoon.

John B. Parsons, ex-President of the company and now President of the Directorate, left the meeting some fifteen minutes before it was adjourned.

"See Mr. Pierce; he will tell you what I have to say," was his only reply to questions.

Daniel T. Pierce, executive assistant to C. O. Kruger, President and General Manager of the company, came out and said:

"The meeting took the most decided stand against arbitration that has yet been shown. There was not a dissenting voice. Why"—and here Mr. Pierce pounded his desk—"it was the general opinion that it would be better if the company closed its offices in this building, where it seems to do little else than listen to arbitration orations, and move bag and baggage to Eighth and Dauphin Streets and run the railroad."

He then gave out the statement to the press.

"When I started to leave the office," he continued, "that statement read mildly that the 'company has not changed in any manner its attitude,' and so on, but Mr. Earle declared that it should read 'has not and will not change,' and the other Directors heartily agreed that the convincing word should be inserted. I do not think there can be any complaint as to the lucidity of that statement."

Mayor Reyburn and W. H. Shelmerdine, when they left, had nothing to say except that there were no arbitration prospects.

Mr. Earle had been visited earlier in the day by ten men representing the department stores.

"It looks like arbitration," said one of the merchants upon leaving the conference. "I cannot predict dates, but I look to see something come of this conference."

Before this meeting, Mr. Kruger, Senator Wolf, and Ellis Ames Ballard, counsel for the company, were in conference with Mr. Earle.

"Mr. Kruger, Mr. Ballard, Mr. Wolf, and I discussed the situation thoroughly," explained Mr. Earle afterward. "In the opinion of the three officials the strike is over. They told me how many cars are running to-day, and declared that when street disturbances ceased the normal schedule would be restored."

"Hands off; let the traction company and the car men settle their own differences," was still Mayor Reyburn's attitude in discussing the strike situation to-night. "It looks to me," he said, "as though the street car strike is about at an end, because more people are riding in the cars, more cars are being run, and public confidence has been restored."

Upward of 1,000 cars were running on the railway lines to-day. They ran more nearly according to normal schedule than ever.

The State police were withdrawn from strike duty here to-day. Some of the troopers were assigned to duty at the Bethlehem Steel Works, and the others went to their barracks.

Six shots were fired directly opposite the office om Mayor Reyburn at 11 o'clock to-night by some one who rode up in an automobile. A big black touring car came out of Market Street, and as it turned into Juniper Street, opposite the office of the Mayor, a man leaned from the automobile and fired the shots. A detective jumped into a taxicab and gave chase, but theautomobile had gained a big lead and was soon lost sight of.

Mayor Reyburn arrived at his office about half an hour after the shooting. He seemed to make light of the incident, but said, "We will get the people who did it."

There was an air of determination about the conference of National and local labor leaders at Brill's Hotel to-day, and at its conclusion they announced that all plans for starting a general strike on Saturday had been perfected.

INSURANCE FRAUDS EXPOSED.

Fraternal Organizations Victimized by "Graveyard" Policies.

Special to The New York Times.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 1.—National officers of several fraternal insurance companies in Minneapolis and St. Paul are investigating what they believe is a wholesale conspiracy to defraud the companies by "graveyard insurance." On what they have already found the fraternal men say that a regular system of fraud has been practiced in getting fraternal insurance through membership in local lodges. They believe the evidence points to persons who have had office in lodges and have been responsible for passing on candidates.

In some cases the persons insured are said to be parties to the fraud, and to have procured insurance by false statements as to their age. In other cases the insured persons say they were ignorant of the frauds. The belief is that their names were used by the conspirators, who caused the issuance of policies to persons in feeble health or advanced years and collected in case of death.

The Knights and Ladies of Security are the most deeply concerned in the investigation, and it is estimated that they have 200 policies outstanding that have been obtained by fraudulent means. The Court of Honor of Springfield, Ill., has probably 100 policies under investigation.

Other orders found to be concerned more or less are the Independent Order of Foresters, the Ladies of the Maccabees of the World, the Ladies of the Modern Maccabees, the Loyal Mystic Legion, the Modern Brotherhood of America, the Modern Woodmen of America, the Supreme Tribe of Ben Hur, the Woodmen of the World, the Mystic Toilers, and the Mystic Workers of the World.

FACTS ABOUT THE CORPORATION TAX.

1. Act suggested originally by President Taft, drafted by Attorney General Wickersham, vouched for by Senator Root.

2. Designed "to possess the Government and the stockholders and the public of the knowledge of the real business transactions and the gains and profits of every corporation in the country."—President's message June 16, 1909.

3. "No appropriation exists with which to make the returns of corporations a public record."—President Taft to Secretary MacVeagh, Feb. 16, 1910.

4. These provisions are disputed on grounds of Constitutionality:

That every corporation * * * organized for profit and having a capital stock represented by shares * * * shall be subject to pay annually a special excise tax with respect to the carrying on or doing business by such corporation * * * equivalent to 1 per cent. upon the entire net income over and above $5,000 received by it from all sources, &c.

The returns * * * shall constitute public records and be open to inspection as such.

Plea of Stella Flint. (Case pending before United States Circuit Court of Vermont.)

The said provisions of the act * * * are unconstitutional, null and void, and in violation of the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution. * * * The defendant corporation will be deprived of its property without due process of law, and especially in this, that through the publicity of its business the privacy of its affairs will be largely destroyed, that its chief competitor * * * will be able to gain an intimate knowledge of what have hitherto been the private affairs of the defendant corporation and its trade secrets, while no corresponding publicity of the private affairs and trade secrets of the said firm * * * will be required.

TAX IS CONSTITUTIONAL.

PRESIDENT TAFT.—The decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Spreckels * * * seems clearly to establish the principle that such a tax as this is an excise tax upon privilege and not a direct tax on property, and is within the Federal power without apportionment, according to population.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.—The contention of the Government is that the tax is not a direct tax, but only an excise imposed by Congress under its power to lay and collect excises which shall be uniform throughout the United States. Clearly the tax is not imposed upon gross annual receipts as property, but only in respect of the carrying on or doing the business of refining sugar. It cannot be otherwise regarded because of the fact that the amount of the tax is measured by the amount of gross annual receipts.—Spreckels Sugar Refining Company vs. McClain.

SENATOR BAILEY.—I believe that Congress can tax all red-headed men engaged in a given line of business if it pleases. Congress can lay any tax it pleases except any export tax.

TAX IS NOT CONSTITUTIONAL.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.—A State may grant acts of incorporation for the attainment of those objects essential to the interests of society. This power is incident to sovereignty.—Briscoe vs. Bank of Kentucky.

CHIEF JUSTICE MARSHALL.—That the power to tax involves the power to destroy; that the power to destroy may defeat and render useless the power to create * * * are propositions not to be denied.—McCulloch vs. Maryland.

The National Government cannot exercise its power of taxation so as to destroy the State Governments or embarrass their lawful action.—Railroad Co. vs. Peniston.

COOLEY'S "CONSTITUTIONAL LIMITATIONS."—There is nothing in the Constitution which can be made to admit of any interference by Congress with the secure existence of any State authority within its lawful bounds. And any such interference by the indirect means of taxation is quite as much beyond the power of the National Legislature as if the interference were direct and extreme.

CHARLES W. PIERSON.—The privilege of being red-headed is not a franchise granted by a sovereign State. The corporation tax invades the right of a State to control franchises it grants.

tor's office late in the afternoon, said that he represented five real estate companies which had been unable to get up their reports in time. He had called in the morning and told the Collector that he wished to get an extension of time for a corporation which he represented. He was told to call a little later. When he returned and the Collector was told that five extensions instead of one were wanted the lawyer was told that his request would not be considered.

Collector Anderson explained that he had held all along that the power to grant extensions was intended to relieve corporations which were unfortunately situated and not for those which were dilatory or negligent.

"Neither was it intended for those corporations which desired to have their time extended until after the first case on the constitutionality of the corporation tax law is argued before the United States Supreme Court in Washington, which is on the calendar for March 14," he said.

Several New Jersey corporations have filed their returns with Collector Anderson. He explained this by saying that numerous corporations organized under the New Jersey laws have offices in this district, but have their principal places of business in Porto Rico, Hawaii, or Manilla. Some of these were in doubt when they should file reports, especially as New Jersey collectors had refused to regard those corporations as having their principal offices in New Jersey.

"Although their principal offices were in this district," said Mr. Anderson yesterday, "in several instances I permitted them to file reports here in order that they would not have to hawk their returns around from district to district."

There are supposed to be between 15,000 and 20,000 corporations in this district. The actual number could not be learned by the Collector and his men. In all about 75,000 blank forms were distributed by Collector Anderson and his men, but many corporations in other districts are represented by lawyers here, and they requested forms for their clients.

Rochester Office Overwhelmed.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 1.—Collector Archie D. Sanders said to-night that it would be impossible to give any figures on the corporation tax for at least a week, as many corporations sent in their reports at the last moment and the office force has been unable yet to handle the papers.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 1.—More than 300 local corporations to-day filed their reports with the Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue. The Collector of Internal Revenue for this district is located at Rochester, and many corporations sent their reports direct to that city instead of to the local office. The banks were the tardiest in reporting, but they all had their reports filed before the local office closed to-night.

WARM TIME IN CHICAGO.

Protesters Take It Out on Collector—Many Delinquent Corporations.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 1.—Seventeen thousand blanks for reports under the Federal corporation tax law were mailed to companies in the northern district of Illinois on Dec. 17 last. When the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue was opened this morning less than 7,000 reports had been returned. When the office closed at midnight the total was almost 13,000. Many corporations withheld their reports until the last moment, evidently expecting an order from Washington extending the time for filing thirty days.

Of the 4,000 concerns to which blanks were sent but which did not respond, about 3,000 are thought to have gone out of business or to have their principal place of business in some other State. Several hundred have applied for an extension of time under the law. This leaves about 1,000 corporations subject to penalty. If the law stands and is strictly enforced the maximum fines in the Chicago district alone may be $5,000,000.

The task of receiving 6,000 reports in one day was a severe one. Only the fact that most of them came by mail saved the internal revenue office from annihilation. Hitherto most of the returns have been pleasantly made. But to-day many protestants demanded interviews with Collector Henry L. Hertz. These interviews usually began as lurid denunciations of Governmental invasion of private affairs and ended with a joke, for Collector Hertz is large and jovial.

Mr. Hertz said that the apoplectic millionaires, tearful women, frantic men, and paper-scorching letter writers had given him one of the most interesting and entertaining days of his life, but he refused to give any details.

Few Delinquents in Ohio.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 1.—With only 250 corporations remaining to be heard from, Collector Bernhard Bettman considers that returns of Ohio corporations under the new Federal tax law have been most satisfactory. He expects at least 100 reports in the morning mail to-morrow. In the ten lower counties of Ohio which report to Collector Bettman there are approximately 3,500 corporations. Some of these are in out of the way towns.

The large corporations generally delayed reports until the very last, and fully half those which have made no returns are of the larger kind. Fully half of the reports received by Mr. Bettman were accompanied by protests against the tax. These mostly took the ground that it was not right to tax corporations doing a $5,000 business and allow partnerships doing a $40,000 business to go free from the tax. It is estimated that the total tax to be collected in this district will be $245,000.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 1.—Nearly all the corporations in the twenty-two counties comprising the Northern Ohio District got in their reports under the tax law to-day. Collector Rodway said to-night that only a few were subject to a fine. By Monday night more than 4,000 of the 5,000 corporations that come under the law in this district had reported, and most of the others came in to-day.

Many Delinquents in Detroit.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, March 1.—When the Internal Revenue Collector's office closed to-day many of the corporations in this district had not made reports of their business under the corporation tax law. How many of the 5,000 corporations in the district have complied with the law cannot be told, for in the last hour so many reports came in that the clerks could not count them. The Collector gave an estimate of 2,800. About 200 corporations asked and received extensions of from ten to thirty days, having presented sufficient reasons.

Strong Protests at Pittsburg.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 1.—Although protesting vigorously against putting their business secrets on paper, corporations of the great Pittsburg industrial district to-day made a rush in the closing hours to file their sworn statements of business with the Collector of Internal Revenue under the new Federal corporation tax law. Reports came in this afternoon at the rate of 200 per hour. Collector D. B. Heiner said to-night that between 75 per cent. and 80 per cent. of the 7,000 corporations in the district had obeyed the law.

"Many have filed these reports under protest," said Mr. Heiner, "reserving the right to have their papers returned to them in case the new law is declared unconstitutional. About 300 of our corporations have filed written requests with me for an extension of time for filing, in some cases the full limit of thirty days being asked. I have granted all these reqquests, because the reasons given all seem good. I consider 300 requests out of a total of 7,000 live corporations but a small percentage."

Many Extensions at Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., March 1.—There are from 10,000 to 12,000 corporations in this State, and up to to-night 700 of them had failed to make their returns to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Collector Gill granted a thirty-day extension of time to those delinquents which preferred formal request. It is believed that practically all the corporations have either filed their returns or got the extension.

Too Busy to Count in Maryland.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 1.—The Collector of Internal Revenue for this district was so burdened this evening with late returns from the corporations subject to the special excise tax that he was unable to give the accurate number which had come in. However, he said, he felt certain that more than 5,000 concerns out of the 6,000 of 7,000 which are taxable had observed the law before the close of the office to-night. Many have received an extension of time for cause, and the Collector feels certain that few will be subject to fine. The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad made its report under protest.

Results in Northern Kentucky.

Special to The New York Times.

COVINGTON, Ky., March 1.—The eleven northern counties of Kentucky, which contain about 1,500 corporations, will contribute more than $50,000 of corporation taxes to the Government to-day, according to the statements of officials here. Practically 96 per cent. of these corporations have filed reports on their business with the Collector of Internal Revenue.

New Orleans Office Swamped.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 1.—At the close of business to-day at the office of the Internal Revenue Collector at New Orleans it was stated that no estimate of the number of reports filed by corporations in this district could be made. They came in a stream at the last minute, and piled up faster than they could be handled by the clerks. Collector Seyburn said he could not even approximate what per cent. of the corporations had filed their statements, but the number was not as large as he had expected.

Mining Men Ignore the Law.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, March 1.—Revenue Collector Frank Howbert is unable to give an accurate estimate of the proportion of corporations which have reported in obedience to the new corporation tax law, but believes it is over 90 per cent. for the State. There are a great many mining companies which have done little more than incorporate, and the officers of a large number of these are said to believe that because they have done no business they are not required to report. These must suffer the penalty if the law is declared constitutional.

Collector Howbert was both surprised and pleased over the absence of grumbling among the corporation officers reporting to him.

Confusion in San Francisco.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 1.—The great number of tax returns made by the corporations yesterday and to-day swamped the Internal Revenue Office, so that Collector Muenter's force was paralyzed and was unable to furnish any figures. The main trouble arose from the fact that many corporations made the initial and final reports at the same time. It will be two days before the percentage of delinquents can be figured out. According to rough estimates made by the Collector, 33 per cent. of the corporations are delinquent.

Washington Concerns Ignore Law.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Washington, March 1.—About 2,500 corporations had filed statements as to the status of their business with Deputy Collector Bushnell at the local United States Internal Revenue Office by 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. Several hundred large Washington corporations realized a few days ago that they would be subject to heavy fines for ignoring the law, and there was a grand rush to the Internal Revenue Offices in Seattle and Tacoma. Internal Revenue Collector Hartshorn from headquarters in Tacoma to-night stated that there were 15,000 corporations in the State of Washington affected by the law, and that up to closing time only about 10,000 had complied with it.

A NEW CORPORATION TAX.

Rhode Island Commission Would Impose It on Stock Values.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 1.—A law imposing a State tax of 48 cents on each $100 of the "fair cash value" of the stock of every domestic corporation is recommended by the Legislative Tax Law Revision Commission, which to-day reported to the Legislature.

The commission, composed of five members of the Legislature, has been at work for nearly a year. The commission favors the creation of the office of State Tax Commissioner with a salary of not more than $5,000. Among its other recommendations are: A collateral inheritance tax, separate listing of realty and personalty, systematic revaluation of the rateable property of the State at regular intervals and taxation of tangible personal property in the cities or towns where such property is located.

MISS ALDA OPERATED ON.

Soprano, Suffering from Appendicitis, Rallies After Surgeon's Work.

Frances Alda, one of the sopranos of the Metropolitan Opera House and the fiancée of Signor Gatti-Casazza, the general director of that theatre, was operated on for appendicitis at 3 o'clock yesterday morning at her apartment at the Ansonia, after she had sung in "Otello" in Brooklyn the evening before. She rallied immediately after the operation. During the day she had no fever, and last night it was said that her recovery would be speedy. However, it is not expected that she will be able to sing again this season.

In the last act of "Otello" Miss Alda, in the character of Desdemona, is strangled by Mr. Slezak, who sings the rôle of the Moor. Last night, when she was strangled she was suddenly seized with great pain. She managed to lie quietly, however, until the curtain fell.

Then she was hurried in her automobile from the Brooklyn Academy of Music to the Ansonia, a distance of eight or ten miles. When Dr. Martin, the house physician, was called in it was after 1 o'clock. He at once sent for Dr. William Tod Helmuth, who performed the operation early yesterday morning. It was found that Miss Alda had been suffering from appendicitis for some time. An abscess had formed, which had burst Monday night. However, the result of the operation, as has been stated, was entirely favorable.

FIREMAN KILLED BY A FALL.

Plunges Down Elevator Shaft at Rudder Building Blaze.

While a fire which afterward caused $25,000 damage, was burning in the quarters of the Rudder Publishing Company, on the tenth floor of the twelve-story building at 15 Murray Street, early yesterday morning, Harry Burgess, attached to Fire Patrol 2, lost his life, apparently by mistaking an elevator opening for a doorway, and stepping into the shaft. He fell from the tenth floor to the basement, being instantly killed. He lived at 419 East Fifteenth Street, and was the sole support of a widowed mother.

How the fire started is not known. Flames were observed from the street by a policeman, who turned in an alarm. Chief Croker directed the work of the firemen, and they were busy for more than an hour before they got the flames under control.

PATTEN, RETIRING, BUSY AS EVER

Plunger Puts in a Rush Day Here and Sails for Europe on the Mauretania.

DROPS OPINIONS ON MARKET

A Long Look Ahead at Cotton and a Warm Defense of His Last Campaign in Wheat.

For a man who intends really to retire James A. Patten, the leader of the bulls in this season's cotton market and the most successful bull in wheat and corn in recent years, was very busy with his brokers yesterday.

Just after he got in from Chicago he appeared in the financial district and consulted at once with E. P. Scales, his operating partner in the cotton market here. After a busy day downtown he did not finally get away from his lieutenant's headquarters at Carpenter, Bagot & Co.'s until along toward 5 o'clock. He sails at 9 o'clock this morning on the Mauretania.

It is true, Mr. Patten says, as told in the dispatches to THE TIMES from Chicago yesterday, that he and the other older partners in his firm of Bartlett, Patten & Co. are going to retire by July 1, but only from active management. Whether he will continue to take his old place of importance in the grain and cotton markets will depend, he admitted, "on the occasions that may arise."

He is positive in stating, however, that his present trip abroad has no business significance. He denies that he has any intention of doing business direct with the English spinners, who have not been very liberal buyers of the cotton of which Mr. Patten and his friends are supposed to still hold considerable quantities since the price of the staple reached its present levels.

"Why, I don't know a single spinner except a man who has a factory down South," he said. "I may meet some, and if they cross-examine me—put me on the stand under oath—I may answer questions; but I am going over for a rest—only for about ten days. I never thought of it until last Thursday, when my partner, Mr. Bartlett, told me he was going to sail on the Mauretania. Next day I decided to go, too."

Mr. Patten parried queries as to whether he still believed in the predictions of higher priced cotton, which were attributed to him when, before the January break from the 16 cent level, the bulls were talking of 20-cent cotton, but he was eloquent when he spoke of the trade situation should the new cotton crop fall below bumper figures.

"It wouldn't do for me to tell these fellows whether I have any cotton or not or how much" he argued. "I will say, though, that I bought some cash cotton to-day."

There were two topics on which Mr. Patten warmed into enthusiasm at once yesterday—the world's dearth of cotton and justification of his bull campaign in wheat a season ago. Both drew from the veteran trader a vehemence of word and gesture which gave evidence of plenty of force in reserve, despite his plea of a necessary rest as an excuse for his trip abroad.

Mr. Patten was asked if it wasn't true that every season of poor cotton harvest and high prices brought out an acreage in the succeeding season that resulted in a bumper crop, surplus cotton, and a slump in prices. Mr. Patten pointed to the board where the quotations of the day's market showed this season's remaining options at around 14½ cents and the months of next Summer's crop at the 12½-cent level.

"There will be a big acreage," he said; "suppose there is. It will take a 14,000,000-bale crop to keep prices down to the levels they are at now. Do you realize that there never was such a scarcity of cotton and of cotton cloth as there is now?

"The world's consumption is increasing all the time. There are spindles enough now in the world to chew up a 15,000,000-bale crop. The 13,250,000-bale crop of a season ago was taken up, and this last season there were only 9,800,000 bales to satisfy them. Do you realize what a shortage that means? It means that if, instead of having a 14,000,000 or 15,000,000 bale crop next Summer, we have a 12,000,000 or 13,000,000 bale crop, as they say we're likely to have, the price of cotton will go to levels that will surprise the world?"

Mr. Patten made his prediction with careful emphasis. The cotton situation brought up to his mind the uproar of criticism which followed his bull campaign in grain last Spring.

"It's just like it was in wheat," said Mr. Patten. "If I hadn't foreseen that the demand for wheat was coming and hadn't discounted its effect in the market we would have had a wheat famine in this country last Summer because of the wheat that would have gone out of the country.

"Everybody damned me then, and that fellow Lawson talked about having me indicted and sent to the penitentiary, and held me up to public scorn. Now, after a wheat crop 70,000,000 bushels larger than that season's, wheat has gone higher than $1.34 a bushel, you don't hear a word. It was the working out of a natural condition that I foresaw. Do you call that a corner?"

Mr. Patten at this point was pounding out emphasis with his fists.

The new wheat crop, Mr. Patten says, can't be estimated with any practical value until there have been a few weeks of growing weather, or, as far as Kansas and Nebraska are concerned, until about six weeks from now. But he says that, taking those two States alone, the crop that was underindicated on the first of December could lose 25 per cent. and still be as large as last year's. In Texas it will be the largest ever, he thinks.

The new incorporated firm of Bartlett, Patten & Co. is to have $5,000,000 in common and $500,000 in preferred stock, Mr. Patten explained. The retiring partners are to take the preferred stock and supply the capital needed, and the junior partners, who are now to get their innings, will have the common stock and the increment.

BANK PROPERTY ASSESSED

Court Upholds Glynn's Tax Assessment Against Bankers' Trust.

ALBANY, March 1.—The Court of Appeals to-day affirmed with costs the order of the Appellate Division sustaining the action of Martin H. Glynn, as State Controller, in refusing to readjust the tax assessed against the Bankers' Trust Company of New York for the year ended June 30, 1905.

The institution paid the tax upon its capital, surplus, and undivided profits, upon which the Controller placed a valuation of $1,912,429. The trust company contended that the Controller erred in computing such assessment upon the market value of securities held. The tax amounting to $19,124 was paid under protest.

SENATORS MAY TELL WHAT CONGER SAID

Allds's Counsel Demands Story of Insurgent Caucus—Senate to Vote on the Question.

LANDON'S MEMORY FAULTY

Does Not Know About Bridge Fund of 1903—Senators Postpone Election of a New Senate Leader.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 1.—Details of the "insurgent caucus," at which Senator Benn Conger first made the charge that Senator Jotham P. Allds had taken a $1,000 bribe from the bridge companies will probably come out before the Senate. Counsel for Allds to-day asked that the six men who heard Conger's statement be called to testify, and Senator Davis, the Chairman in the bribery investigation, cleared the way for them to do so by a ruling that they might be witnesses without impairing their right to sit in judgment on Allds. An appeal from this decision was pending when the Senate adjourned.

If the Chairman is upheld to-morrow, some of the six Senators—Agnew, Brackett, Davenport, Hinman, Newcomb, and Rose—will be called to the stand. It is expected that important revelations will be made, as Conger is reported to have told more about bribery in the caucus than he told on the stand, and he testified also that many things were said against Allds by the others before he told his story.

This important development came at the close of the day. The proceedings before that had been devoted by counsel for Allds to testimony as to the methods of the bridge companies, with the design of proving that instead of being victims of blackmail they had spread corruption through five States. It was also shown that Allds in 1909 had defeated a bill put forward by the bridge interests, as proof that Conger had made his charge against Allds as a means of breaking the influence of a man who was opposed to the methods of the bridge combination.

Carr Wants Senators' Version.

It was late in the session when Lewis E. Carr of counsel for Allds, addressed the chair.

"There are some members of this body who we think have some knowledge that would be of value in the determination of this case," he said. "It can readily be understood that calling a juror for the purpose of having him testify from the stand would be an unheard of proposition. Yet, this respondent ought not to be denied the benefit that might be derived from their testimony—testimony that would be beneficial to him.

"We have not been able to find any precedent for a condition like that. The nearest approach which I have found to it is in the attempted impeachment of Andrew Johnson, where Benjamin Wade, the President of the Senate, who would have succeeded to the Presidency in the event that the President would be impeached, presided at the impeachment trial. Of course, it seems a monstrous proposition in this case; nevertheless, we are confronted with that."

"Do I understand that you intend to call them all?" asked Senator Davis.

"Such is my intention, certainly," said Lawyer Carr.

Senator Brackett of Saratoga, one of the seven, said he thought he was speaking for the rest when he waived any objection made on the ground of the impropriety of the intended move.

Senator Agnew of New York said that Senator Brackett did not in any way represent him, because he could not see that the question could be properly raised, the Senate being neither a court nor a jury, but simply a Committee of the Whole engaged in an investigation.

Senator Newcomb, who has been blamed for all the troubles that have befallen Senators Allds and Conger, in that he was responsible for the publicity of the Conger statement, said that any Senator who could aid the committee in reaching a true and just determination ought to testify.

Right of Witnesses to be Judges.

The question of the qualification of the Senators to vote after testifying was brought up by Senator Howard R. Bayne, a Democrat representing the Rockland-Richmond District. He is a lawyer of wide experience.

"The attention of the Chairman and Senators should be called to the question of whether the gentlemen taking the witness stand are not abandoning their position of judges," he said. "Will it be a fair tribunal where judges abandon their position and take the witness stand and then pass on the credibility of their own testimony?"

Senator Brackett pointed out that under this construction it would be easy to have a majority of the Senate disqualified from voting by merely calling them as witnesses. Senator Bayne thought that this might be averted by the members refusing to testify.

Senator Davis directed that Mr. Carr call his first witness. Senator Harvey D. Hinman was called, advanced to the witness chair, and was sworn.

"In order that we may have a ruling on this question I am going to object to this gentleman testifying," said Mr. Osborne of counsel for Conger. The witness seconded this objection.

Chairman Davis then ruled that any member of the committee should be regarded as a competent witness, and that by testifying he should not be disqualified from voting on the final question of the guilt or innocence of Senator Allds, except by a vote of the committee excusing him from voting.

Senator Hinman pleaded with the Senators to take an appeal and the necessary five arose in support of the plea.

It was at this point that Senator Grady, who all day long had been rallied to the support of the Allds forces on the slightest provocation, entered the debate. He asked that the vote be deferred overnight so as to give him an opportunity to look up precedents.

"I cannot vote that anything a Senator may testify to would not disqualify him from acting as a juror," he said. "It will absolutely disqualify him if he has got to weigh his own testimony against the evidence of somebody else."

Only five minutes of the afternoon remained and Senator Grady had his way and an adjournment was taken.

Assembly Leaders Aid Allds.

When the Senate resumed its investigation this morning a question on which Chairman Davis had not ruled was pending. It was whether Majority Leader Merritt and Speaker Wadsworth of the Assembly should be permitted to tell of conversations they had a year ago with Senator Allds to show that he was opposed to the sort of a law governing contract making by town officials for bridges as was wanted by the companies in which Senator Conger was interested. Senator Davis began by overruling the objection against admitting this evidence, with Senator Brackett of Saratoga dissenting on the ground that the ruling was "unsound in law and unsound in morals," and would enable any defendant to manufacture evidence in his own defense after the commission of a crime.

Mr. Merritt and Speaker Wadsworth in succession then testified that it was through the instrumentality of Senator Allds that the so-called Heacock bill, amending the highway law so as to permit bridge companies to contract for the construction of bridges with town officials without submitting the matter to a referendum vote when the amount involved was less than $2,500, had been beaten in the Assembly Committee on Rules last year.

Eugene A. Landon, the former manager of the Groton Bridge Company, was then called to the stand. He testified that he had but a hazy recollection of the corruption funds collected in 1902 and in 1903 regarding which Senator Conger testified earlier in the hearing, naming Landon as the man who handled the 1903 fund. According to the testimony of the Senator, the money [illegible] each year had been paid over to Col. George W. Dunn, who was Chairman [illegible] the Republican County Committee.

Mr. Littleton then switched to the so-called Cleveland agreement, which was read by him in his opening address. The famous agreement which was made by a number of bridge building concerns, including the various enterprises in which the Conger family was interested, to prevent real competition by a system through which it was decided beforehand which company should enter the lowest bid, this bid to be sufficiently large to make up a fund by which the unsuccessful bidders could be indemnified for their loss of the contract.

Inquiry Into Landon's Conscience.

The document was placed in evidence over the vigorous protest of James W. Osborne of counsel for Senator Conger and some of the Senators who constitute the jury in the Allds case. They said it had no bearing on the Allds charges.

Mr. Osborne conceded that the Cleveland compact represented a violation of the Donnelly anti-trust law.

"I ask you if you did not recognise the fact that if any fund was raised and any fund was given to defeat legislation in this State, that it was a criminal act?" he asked Landon on cross-examination.

The witness said he thought it was.

Q.—Did you know of the existence of the so-called alleged Cleveland agreement? A.—I did.

Q.—Did you do any business under that agreement? A.—I think my testimony shows I did.

Q.—Did you know you were doing a criminal act then? A.—I did not suppose that there was anything—

Q.—You did not regard it as a crime to do business under the Cleveland agreement, did you? A.—I did not.

Q.—You did not see anything wrong at all in whatever your company did under the Cleveland agreement, did you? A.—No, I do not think I appreciated that there was any wrong done.

"I do this," said Mr. Osborne, after he had brought this answer, "to show that operations under the Cleveland agreement were not such as would appear wrong to the ordinary business conscience."

Another witness was Frank D. Gilbert, counsel for the State Department of Education, who had drafted some of the bills to which the bridge companies objected, and was called in an effort to prove that the charge of Senator Conger that they had been introduced for blackmailing purposes was not justified by the facts.

CHOICE OF LEADER DEFERRED.

Republican Senators Fear Appearance of Prejudging Allds Case.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 1.—The selection of a successor to Jotham P. Allds as President pro tem. of the Senate was indefinitely postponed by the conference of Republican Senators to-night. This action is attributed to fear that the choice of a new leader at this time might be construed as prejudging of the case of Senator Allds.

It was said after the conference that the decision to postpone action was brought about by the Brooklyn Senators, who are controlled by Timothy L. Woodruff, Chairman of the Republican State Committee. A majority of the thirty-one Republicans, including all but one of the Brooklyn members, were in favor of the election of Senator George H. Cobb of Jefferson County. His rival for the honor is Senator George A. Davis, the acting Republican leader.

TO SAFEGUARD CONSTITUTION.

Amendment to Make Changes More Difficult is Passed by Assembly.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 1.—Assemblyman Charles A. Dana's proposed constitutional amendment making it more difficult to amend the Constitution was passed by the Assembly to-day by a vote of 78 to 46. It must be passed by the Senate and by both houses of another Legislature before it will be submitted to a vote of the people.

The resolution provides that an amendment must have the vote of two-thirds of the Legislature and that at least a third of all the votes cast for Assemblymen must be cast for or against the amendment to effect ratification by the people.

The Assembly Cities Committee to-night reported favorably a bill introduced by Assemblyman Conklin providing for a retirement commission to provide for the retirement of certain employes in New York City. The commission is to be made up of the Mayor, Controller, and the President of the Municipal Civil Service Commission. Persons who have attained the age of fifty-five years and who have performed duty in the public service for thirty years may be retired on pensions. The fund is to be made up of 2 per cent. of the employes' salaries.

The Whitney bill reducing the number of members of the State Board of Pharmacy from fifteen to nine and making it the duty of the State Board of Regents to make the appointments was reported favorably to-night by the Assembly Committee on Public Health. The members are appointed under the present law by the pharmaceutical associations.

Mrs. Iselin's Estate Valued at $161,737.

The appraisal of the estate of Louise Iselin, made by Bradley M. Greene, was filed yesterday in the transfer tax office. Mrs. Iselin died in this city on Dec. 4, 1909. Her estate totaled $161,737. Of this amount $70,550 represents "jewelry, wearing apparel, and articles of personal use and adornment." She held a note for $8,000 from her husband, Ernest Iselin; 25 shares of the Gallatin National Bank, valued at $4,125; 180 shares of the Manhattan Storage and Warehouse Company, valued at $22,500; 100 shares of the Pittsburg Gas Coal Company, valued at $11,500, and 100 shares of the City and Suburban Homes Company, valued at $10,000.

TOWNS IN DARKNESS DUE TO THE FLOODS

Mohawk Valley's Gas Supply Is Cut Off—Herkimer Asks for State Aid.

HUDSON HIGH AT ALBANY

Eighteen Feet Above Normal and Still Rising—Railroad and Trolley Traffic Affected.

UTICA, N. Y., March 1.—Without heat, light, or drinking water, and with the food supply getting limited, the village of Herkimer is in a sorry plight to-night. The people of the village are overwhelmed by the disastrous magnitude of the flood, and there is little immediate prospect of the water receding. Practically every street in the village is under water, and but few of the houses can be reached by boats.

The key to the situation seems to be in the ice pack which is choking the passage of western Canada creeks under the bridges of the New York Central Railroad and the Utica & Mohawk Valley Railway. Hundreds of pounds of dynamite were exploded there to-day, but the jam is still intact. Until this is broken the village will continue to suffer. The jam has forced the creek out of its channel, and it has spread over the entire village.

Late this afternoon Mayor Grogan ordered the saloons of the village closed, and there was a prompt response. All of the manufacturing establishments have been closed for two days, and nearly all of the retail stores closed to-day.

The city water has been turned off, and, with water surrounding them on all sides, the people of the village truly have none to drink. The food supply is getting short, and no relief measures have as yet been taken in this direction. To-night the gas supply was turned off. The supply of oil is meagre compared with the demand, and most people are now using candles.

To-day Mayor Grogan applied to Gov. Hughes for relief from the State, and received a reply that a force of men would be sent from the Public Works Department. They had not arrived this evening.

Engineers from Utica and other places went to Herkimer to-day and offered their services, but after examining conditions were quite unanimous in the opinion that they would not improve immediately.

The current of the water which is flowing through the village is strong, and it is undermining many of the buildings. The property damage, already enormous, is increasing every hour.

E. L. Jackson, President of the Herkimer Business Men's Association, in a telegram to Secretary J. S. Cole of the Utica Chamber of Commerce, says:

"At this time we cannot measure the great loss sustained by our people, but can only say that among those of small and moderate means we believe the loss by flood will be the greatest ever experienced by any community in the Empire State."

Other towns in the flood-swept Mohawk Valley are in darkness to-night, except for the twinkle of oil lamps and candles. The gas supply, which comes from Utica, has been turned off because of a break in the main. Herkimer was particularly hard hit, because many residents use gas for fuel and cooking.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 1.—Gov. Hughes to-day received a telegram from President T. H. Grogan of the village of Herkimer requesting aid on account of flood conditions. The telegram said that four-fifths of the village were under water, and that conditions were desperate. The Department of Public Works was notified and its employes at Utica, Frankfort, and Oneida were wired to hurry to Herkimer with dynamite to blow up the ice gorge in West Canada Creek and to render any other assistance possible.

ALBANY, March 1.—The Hudson River to-night is eighteen feet above normal level, and is still rising. The southern portion of the city lying along the river is inundated, and people are vacating the lower floors of their houses. Steamboat Square is under water, and the river is slowly creeping up toward the Federal Building at the corner of State Street and Broadway. Merchants and residents of the flooded district have been at work all day removing their wares and household goods to places of safety.

The high water has greatly interfered with railroad traffic. The New York Central line between Fonda and Herkimer is tied up and trains are being run over the West Shore. Delaware & Hudson trains are unable to reach the station here, and the cars of the Albany Southern electric lines are held up by the water south of the city. The United Traction Company is unable to operate cars on South Broadway.

Telegraph and telephone companies are experiencing difficulties in keeping their lines in operation. Hotels in the flood district are having difficulty in keeping up steam, and portable boilers are in demand.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 1.—The Genesee River went over its banks at Geneseo at 9 o'clock this morning, and there has been a rise in it since, and it is now only 18 inches below the high-water mark of July, 1902. Much lowland between Geneseo and Mount Morris is under water, and the water has entered houses and caused farmers to drive their cattle away. Blasting is being done between Mount Morris and Cuylerville. The Dansville & Mount Morris Road has been unable to run trains to-day. In Rochester the situation is not yet threatening.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., March 1.—Six or eight immense ice gorges, at different points along the Susquehanna and Chenango Rivers, above this city, have caused much apprehension and some damage. Several of the jams broke this afternoon, and partially relieved conditions, but making the situation more serious at Lanesboro and at Stillwater, ten miles east of this city, where the jam still holds. Dynamite has been used in many places to break the ice.

The rivers have overflowed their banks in many places, and in almost every town people have been driven from their homes on the lowlands, rescue by boats being necessary at Riverside, Great Bend, and Portchane.

The large highway bridge across the Chenango River at Chenango Bridge, five miles north of Binghamton, was taken out this afternoon, when an ice gorge above it broke. A new highway bridge across Thomas Brook, near Chenango Bridge, was carried away. The rivers are still rising to-night, and are the highest since the big flood in 1902.

At 9 o'clock the Chenango broke over Front Street in this city, inundating the entire First Ward, driving many families from their homes and doing many thousands of dollars' damage to several hundred houses, the lower floors of which are flooded.

2,000 HOMELESS IN OHIO.

Refugees at Zanesville Fed by the City—River at Its Crest.

CLEVELAND, March 1.—Fully 2,000 people are homeless to-night in Ohio as a result of the flood. At Zanesville alone 1,000 persons are reported as having been driven from their houses. The public buildings are crowded with refugees, who are being fed by the city authorities.

All business and traffic have ceased at Warren, and to-day over 300 people were rescued from their houses in boats, several falling houses giving a new horror to the situation.

While the Licking River at Zanesville has commenced to recede, the Muskingum, which is much the larger stream, is still rising, and the crest of the flood there will not be reached until to-morrow.

The railway bridge at Youngstown is in immediate danger on account of a vast mass of ice which is pressing against its piers and momentarily increasing in volume.

PITTSBURG, March 1.—The crest of the high water in the Ohio River was reached at twenty-two feet at 4 o'clock this afternoon, since which time it has remained stationary. No further rise is expected. Reports from the headwaters of the Allegheny, whence came the large volume of water, indicate a falling stage.

No damage has been reported as a result of the high water, beyond the flooding of a few cellars along the river bottoms.

SUSQUEHANNA RISES RAPIDLY.

Ice Gorge Breaks—Port Deposit Flooded—Residents in Panic.

Special to The New York Times.

PORT DEPOSIT, Md., March 1.—For the second time this Winter this quaint little town near the mouth of the Susquehanna is flooded. The great ice gorge above McCalls Ferry, which broke early to-day, came rushing down the river, crashing against the piers of the new Baltimore & Ohio Railroad bridge and rose in immense hummocks. At 10 o'clock to-night the river is rising six to nine inches an hour, and in six hours it has risen several feet.

Employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company have abandoned the temporary station, and residents are again in a state of panic. All the storekeepers along Main Street have moved their goods to the second floors.

At Octoraro Junction, three miles from here, the Columbia & Perrysville Railroad passenger train is held up, the waters having risen over the track. The railroad employes are preparing for a worse flood than in January.

AFLOAT ON ICE CAKES.

Mother and Two Children Saved After Perilous Trip.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, March 1.—Drenched and shivering on cakes of ice, Mrs. William Evans and her two little children floated for two hours in the Miami River last night before they could be rescued.

The woman attempted to ford the swollen river in a buggy. A cake of ice struck the horse, which reared and overturned the vehicle. Mrs. Evans, keeping herself afloat by holding on to an ice cake, assisted her children aboard the floe, and then mounted another one herself. All were near collapse when taken from their perilous craft.

MME. SEMBRICH'S RECITAL.

A Vast Audience Hears and Applauds Her Singing in Carnegie Hall.

Mme. Marcella Sembrich, having returned to New York from her long concert tour that took her across the continent, gave a song recital in Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon. It was the second that she has given in New York this season; she was greeted by a vast audience, one as large as the hall could contain—an audience of friends and admirers—who let her remain in no doubt as to the admiration and affection in which she is held. Mme. Sembrich seemed in her best voice as well as in her best spirits, and her singing was an exemplification of all those accomplishments and artistic powers that have delighted this public in years gone by.

To describe this singing now, or to praise her art, would be to repeat a tale many times told. Her programme was chosen with skill and judgment, with knowledge of the wide range of the literature of song, as her programmes have always been. The correct feeling for the right music in the right place and the right order and contrast is one of the subtler elements that contribute to the enjoyment of her recitals. There were a number of songs that Mme. Sembrich has sung before; most, however, were new. In her singing of the old songs that she usually puts at the beginning of her programme, songs that often make the severest demands upon the voice and art of the singer, there was an unusual steadiness and certainty of control. She began with the comic air from Pergolesi's "La Serva Padrona," "O Serpina Penserete," followed by the florid "Rossignols Amoureux" from Rameau's "Hippolyte et Aricie." Among the numbers that have not appeared on her programme before was the old English song of Ben Jonson's verses, "Have You Seen but a Whyte Lillie Grow," that Mr. Elwes sang when he was here, charmingly expressive old music of really ancient flavor, and a vigorous air from Graun's once famous and immensely popular oratorio, "Der Tod Jesu," "Singt dem göttlichen Prophet." Her singing of Schubert's "Gretchen am Spinnrad" is well remembered, but it remains one of her greatest achievements in the dramatic intensity.

There was a mischieveous spirit archly conveyed in Weber's song, "Unbefangenheit," which needs the touch of dramatic expression she gave it. Her French songs included Bizet's "Pastorale," and the strikingly pretty and graceful "L'Oiseau Bleu," by E. Jaques-Dalcroze, a Swiss composer of talent whose songs would repay more attention than is bestowed on them. This song gave much pleasure, and Mme. Sembrich repeated it. There was an unfamiliar song of Hugo Wolf's, "Ich habe in Penna einen Liebsten" of humorous content, which she sang in English. The last group showed a certain falling off in interest. There were two songs in Polish by Sigismund Stojowski of New York, not without individuality of character and expression; and another by Zarzycki. The printed programme was closed with a song in manuscript by Prof. Horatio Parker, "The South Wind," in which the music, of poetical conception, is considerably better than the verse.

Mme. Sembrich was, of course, called on to sing more than her programme promised. After her first group she gave a German song of Louise Reichardt's, "Andie Hoffnung," with English words. After the second she sang Schumann's "Frühlingsnacht" and "The Lass with the Delicate Air," by Dr. Arne. At the end there was the insensate rush forward, and then Mme. Sembrich came out and sang several more songs.

GERMAN AUTHORS' BENEFIT.

Metropolitan Opera Artists to Give a "Deutsches Kuenstlerfest."

A "Deutsches Künstlerfest," arranged for the benefit of the Deutsche Bühnengenossenschaft, the Pension Fund of the Metropolitan Opera House, and the Provident Fund of the Association of German Authors, will be given at the Hotel Astor on Saturday evening, March 19. Many of the most prominent artists of the Metropolitan Opera House will take part in the proceedings.

Andreas Dippel and Otto Goritz are in charge of the evening's entertainment. The German Ambassador, Count Bernstoff, has consented to be present.

There will be three features—a musical entertainment, a ball, and a midway plaisance. Several of the Mertopolitan singers will sing operatic airs, and a performance will be given of Nestroy's "Tannhäuser" parody. The ballet of the Metropolitan Opera House will appear. Among the features of the second part of the programme will be a Tip-top Theatre and a Munich Keller with Tryolean singers.

Among those who have promised to appear are Mmes. Bella Alten, Emmy Destinn, Johanna Gadski, Rita Fornia, Alma Gluck, Louise Homer, Marie Mattfeld, Anna Meitschik, Von Niessen-Stone, Rosina Van Dyck, Florence Wickham, Henrietta Wakefield, and Messrs. Max Bendix, Robert Blass, Adamo Didur, John Forsell, Otto Goritz, Richard Hageman, Glenn Hall, Alfred Hertz, Allen Hinckley, Hermann Jadlowker, Carl Jörn, Riccardo Martin, Adolf Mühlmann, Albert Reiss, Anton Schertel, Edward Siedle, Leo Slezak, Walther Soomer, Kurt Stern, Hans Steiner, Clarence Whitehill, Th. Burgarth, and Herbert Witherspoon.

MISS DORO AS LONDON STAR.

Actress in "The Climax" to be Kept on the English Stage.

Miss Marie Doro is likely to devote much of her future to the English stage according to information received in this city. Her appearance in "The Climax" has deepened the impression she made in "Clarice" when she appeared in London as leading woman for William Gillette, and Charles Frohman is planning to take advantage of the evident partiality shown for her. She will probably be shown in other rôles during this season. He has now under consideration several plays in the hope of finding one that will give her full opportunity to make a place for herself as one of his permanent English stars.

Peary and Shackleton to Meet Here.

Joseph H. Choate, it was announced yesterday, will preside at the lecture to be given in Carnegie Hall on March 25 by Sir Ernest Shackleton, the English antarctic explorer. Commander Robert E. Peary will introduce Sir Ernest to the audience. The occasion will be the first meeting between the two famous explorers. Lady Shackleton will accompany her husband to America.

GERMANS RESENT PLAN TO DEFER SHOW

Also Angered by Proposal to Change It from American to German-American Affair.

LOCAL COMMITTEE SCORED

Metz Intimates Decision Is Final and Berlin Will Probably Have No American Exhibition at All.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 1.—The local managers of the American Exhibition are angry over the proposal of the American committee to postpone the show until 1911 and to convert it into a German-American, instead of a strictly American, enterprise. A cablegram leaving the addressee in no doubt as to the sender's temper was dispatched by them to the American committee to-day.

The Berlin backers of the exhibition are further incensed over what they regard as the unbusinesslike and inconsiderate action of the American committee in apprising the press of its attitude before communicating it to the organizers and managers of the exhibition in Berlin.

The local people will not listen to a postponement or an alteration in the original form of the exhibition. They say it will be held this Summer on the lines hitherto mapped out or not at all. Moreover, they regard Messrs. Morgan, Metz, Tower, Francis, Ridder, et al., as quitters, and accuse them of making Herr Delbrück's bull in the Reichstag last week a subterfuge for scuttling the ship. It is the local view that Delbrück's correction of the parliamentary record, which now "officially" contains not what he said, but what he wished he had said, ought to satisfy the American committee.

The next move must come from the United States. If the American committee adheres to a postponement and the German-American idea, the exhibition is as good as on the rocks.

Herman A. Metz, Chairman of the American Executive Committee of the proposed Exposition in Berlin, which met on Monday and called off the affair until 1911, said last night that the committee had heard that the Germans intended to go ahead and hold the Exposition this Summer as planned. He said the committee had advised Herr Wilner, the Chairman of the German Executive Committee, of the American Committee's action on Monday, and had added that the Germans could do as they pleased about the matter. He said the American committee had told the German committee that it would place at the Germans' disposal everything that would aid them in carrying out their original plan, but that it would not take any active part in the arrangements.

"Herr Wilner has complained that we should have consulted them before taking the action we did on Monday," said Mr. Metz, "but they don't understand us at all. This Exposition was no financial scheme on our part, although the Germans seemed to think it was. We thought they were going to act in good faith, but it appears that manufacturers there have been advised by their agents in this country not to take part in the affair, as it was being organized for some ulterior purpose. It looks to me as if they were simply afraid of possible competition. That wasn't the idea at all, and when we heard that they suspected our motives and were against our holding the Exposition we decided to call it off.

"If they go ahead with their exposition this Summer we are willing to aid them in the preparation and organization of the scheme as much as we can, but we cannot very well do more.

"I do not care to make public the cablegrams which passed between us, but they are at liberty to do so if they see fit. Our plan, as we stated on Monday, is to postpone the Exposition until 1911 and then make it a German-American Exposition. Even that plan apparently does not meet with their approval."

DISCUSS RULES OF THE AIR.

Kaiser and Others Consider Needed Regulation of Balloonists.

BERLIN, March 1.—Emperor William lunched to-day with Dr. Beseler, Prussian Minister of Justice. Prof. Vladamir Köppen, the meteorologist, read a paper in which he discussed the control of the airfields by the States of the empire.

He pointed out various considerations indicating that the public welfare required that air navigation be regulated by the Governments rather than to permit air above private property to be considered as in the control of the owner of the land. He also suggested that the States should immediately define the rights of balloonists in the matter of releasing ballast and trailing guide ropes and anchors, in relation to the rights of persons on the ground.

An animated discussion of the paper by the twenty guests followed, the Kaiser taking part.

COMMONS SESSION QUIET.

Government Is Authorized to Proceed with Necessary Loans.

LONDON, March 1.—Parliament settled down to the humdrum business of providing for the country's financial necessities at a short sitting to-day. The House authorized the Government to proceed with its loans, and also the suspension of the sinking fund, for, while the budget is held up, it is impossible to collect the necessary income to carry on the departments.

It is even doubtful, despite the recent naval scare, whether the debate on the naval estimates the week after next will create any great excitement. The Government will submit estimates providing for a considerable increase of the personnel of the fleet and a gross increase in expenditures on the navy of $25,000,000 for the year 1910-11.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

LONDON, March 1.—At the King's levee at St. James's Palace to-day, Ambassador Reid, who was accompanied by the other members of the American Embassy, presented John L. Griffiths, American Consul General at London, and R. N. Fairbanks, an American resident in his city.

BERLIN, March 1.—Count Hans von Schwerin-Loewitz, a member of the Conservative Party, was elected Speaker of the Reichstag to-day, succeeding Count Udo von Stolberg-Wernigerode, who died on Feb. 19.

PEKING, March 1.—The Government has appointed an Army Commission to visit Japan and America. The commission will leave in a month. At its head is Prince Tao, the Regent's brother, and its Secretary is Li Ching-Mai, former Chinese Minister to Austria. Li Ching-Mai is a son of the late Li Hung Chang.

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa, March 1.—The British freight steamer Crusader, bound from New York for Manila, went ashore on Bird Islands, thirty-five miles east of here on Friday. The crew was saved. The ship will probably be a total loss.

BERLIN, March 1.—Prof. G. F. Moore of Harvard, who has just finished a course of lectures at the University of Berlin, will leave here for the United States about March 15. Prof. and Mrs. Moore gave a farewell reception to their German and American friends to-night. Many officials and scholars attended.

CHALONS-SUR-MARNE, March 1.—Lieut. Cammaran of the French Engineer Corps made a flight of 88 miles to-day in the Farman biplane recently acquired by the Government.

WOODFORD SEES FALLIERES.

Presents Hudson-Fulton Medal and Expresses Sympathy for Flood Victims.

PARIS, March 1.—Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, President of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission, presented to President Fallières to-day the commission's gold medal commemorating the event and address. The presentation took place in the Salle des Ambassadeurs, and Gen. Woodford took occasion to express the fraternal sympathy of the City and State of New York for the suffering and loss caused to France by the recent flood, together with congratulations on the splendid fashion in which France had faced and overcome the disaster.

President Fallières warmly thanked Gen. Woodford and asked him to convey his thanks to the Hudson-Fulton Commission for the reception accorded to M. Darboux, Rear Admiral Le Pord, and the French warships.

After the formalities were ended, M. Fallières conversed with his visitors for ten minutes, saying that he was looking forward with pleasure to the visit of ex-President Roosevelt.

The address which accompanied the medal contained the following among other expressions of good will:

> We venture to hope that the fraternal gathering of the nations at our festival in commemoration of achievements in navigation may symbolize the growing fraternity of all peoples, and that the bonds of friendship which so happily subsist between our two beloved republics may continue forever unbroken, an example of the universal brotherhood of all nations.

Gen. Woodford will leave here to-morrow for a trip by automobile through Southern France.

FAIRBANKS REACHES LONDON.

Will Attend Court Friday by Invitation of King Edward.

LONDON, March 1.—Charles W. Fairbanks and Mrs. Fairbanks arrived to-day for a fortnight's visit in London. They were met at the railway station by Secretary Phillips and Third Secretary Arthur Orr of the American Embassy and other American friends. Many entertainments have been arranged for the visitors.

At the special invitation of King Edward Mr. and Mrs. Fairbanks will attend Court at Buckingham Palace on March 4 in the official circle. American Ambassador Reid will give a luncheon in their honor, and on March 5 Mr. Fairbanks will be the guest of honor at a big dinner to which many of the leading men of England have accepted invitations.

DYNAMITE WHERE BOMB BURST

No Trace of Victim Yet—Why He Wasn't Identified by Thumb Print.

Since the bomb explosion in the apartment of Leonardo Bertilino, better known as Leo Barry, on the ground floor rear of 343 East Sixty-fifth Street, last Saturday afternoon, detectives from the Italian Bureau have been lying in wait at the house to get some clue to the owner of the three fingers found after the explosion, and also to find out why a bomb was being manufactured in the apartment.

Last night Detectives Roy and Devine were waiting to see whether Barry or his wife or somebody might turn up. They rummaged around the rooms, and Roy went to a clothes closet and lit a match. He kicked at some old clothes lying on the floor, and what he saw caused him quickly to put out the match. In kicking the clothes he had seen the end of a long fuse. In a further search he found a stick of dynamite about ten inches long.

The detectives gingerly picked up fuse and dynamite stick and carefully carried them to the police station, where they were put in a pail of water.

The detectives read with great interest yesterday a newspaper story describing how they had identified Barry by applying the thumb print system of identification, using his dismembered thumb to take an imprint.

Identifying a man by a dismembered thumb was a brand new wrinkle in police methods. It was also quite a feather in the cap of the men who have charge of the thumb-print system of identification at headquarters. But the thumb-print men were not at all stuck up about it.

One reason for this was that the left-hand fingers left by the bomb explosion did not include a thumb, and thumb prints, not finger prints, are taken for identification purposes. Another reason was that the print system at Police Headquarters requires the right-hand thumb imprint. And a third reason why the thumb-print detectives were not stuck up was that no such identification was necessary, because in his hurry to get away after the explosion Barry left his photograph on the wall. It was found there a little later by the Italian detectives, who know Barry well.

The three dismembered fingers are now in the Morgue, where they were taken soon after they were picked up in the débris in Barry's room. Barry is wanted for the theft of a horse and wagon more than for causing the explosion of the bomb, but when the police capture him they will try to find out what he was doing with that bomb. They believe he was manufacturing it when it went off in his hands, carrying away the three fingers with it. Every hospital in town has been searched by the police, but no trace of Barry has yet been found.

The Italian detectives think he may be connected with a Black Hand threat made on Saturday last to John Fries, a grocer, at 968 Amsterdam Avenue. Fries received a letter on that day saying that if he did not leave $2,000 at the foot of a certain tree in Central Park he and his store would be blown up with dynamite and his children kidnapped. The detectives say that the letter was written in a hand greatly resembling Barry's.

J. P. Morgan at Naples.

NAPLES, March 1.—J. Pierpont Morgan, the American financier, arrived here on the steamer Cedric to-day. He appeared to be in good health.

ROOSEVELT ESCAPES OUTBREAK OF FEVER

French Missionary Who Lunched with Him at Gondokoro Dies the Next Day.

ENGLISH SPORTSMAN ILL

In Camp Adjoining That Occupied by American Party—District Commissioner Also Confined to Bed.

GONDOKORO, Soudan, March 1.—A fresh instance of Roosevelt luck is seen in the fact that the ex-President and his party left here the day before an outbreak of African fever. They sailed for Khartoum yesterday, and at noon to-day Dr. Rodoric Prosch, a French medical missionary, who lunched with Mr. Roosevelt yesterday, suddenly died of fever.

Dr. Prosch has done missionary work in Africa for ten years, during which time his health has been gradually undermined by the debilitating climate, and his collapse to-day is attributed to a weakened condition that could not resist an attack that he might have survived a few years ago.

At a camp adjoining that occupied by the Americans here an English sportsman is seriously ill following a trip to Kampala, the capital of Uganda, one of the places at which the Roosevelt party stopped.

The District Commissioner of Gondokoro, the British officials of which were most active in entertaining their American guests, has been stricken with the fever and to-day is confined to his bed.

When Col. Roosevelt and the others of his party left here on the steamer Dal yesterday they were all apparently in good health and little the worse for their rough experiences.

PARIS, March 1.—The programme adopted by the Council of the University of Paris for the entertainment of Theodore Roosevelt on April 16, subject to the subsequent approval of the guest, is as follows:

At 1 P. M. Mr. Roosevelt will be officially received; at 3 o'clock he will deliver his lecture in the grand amphitheatre at the Sorbonne; at 7 o'clock he will be the guest at dinner of the rector and Faculty of the University of Paris, and this will be followed at 10 o'clock by a reception at which he will meet those best known in the scientific, literary, and artistic world of Paris.

As Mr. Roosevelt has requested specifically that he be permitted to speak to the young men of France, admission to his lecture at the Sorbonne will be restricted to students and professors.

NAPLES, March 1.—John G. A. Leishman, the American Ambassador to Italy, came here to-day from Rome to pay his respects to Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Ethel Roosevelt. They spent the evening together.

CHAUFFEUR JONES ON TRIAL.

Woman Says He Forced Her Silence About Girl's Death by Threat to Kill.

George Jones, the Hoboken chauffeur charged with causing the death of seven-year-old Jennie Bernstein of 25 East 114th Street by running her down on Nov. 4 in Park Avenue, near 115th Street, was on trial yesterday before Justice Goff in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court on the charge of manslaughter.

Mrs. Hattie Souchette of 262 West 104th Street, who gave information that led to Jones's arrest several weeks after the accident, was the chief witness. She testified that on the afternoon of Nov. 4 she and Mrs. Alice Humphries of 212 Vyse Avenue, the Bronx, met Jones at the ferry in Hoboken and came to this city in the car. She said they stopped at various places and had some drinks. She testified that Jones, after running over the Bernstein girl, stopped the car at Park Avenue and 106th Street and covered up the numbers on the side lamps. There was human hair clinging to the front of the auto, she said, and the chauffeur burned it with a match.

Mrs. Souchette declared that she and Mrs. Humphries told Jones he was doing wrong, whereupon he threatened to shoot them if they revealed his identity or said anything about the case. On Dec. 28 she gave the information that led to his arrest.

When Lawyer Seigel, counsel for Jones, cross-examined Mrs. Souchette about her private life she remarked: "If you press me too hard I'll be a bad witness against this man."

Assistant District Attorney Moss asked her what she meant, and she replied that after the accident Jones visited her home and wrecked it and stole her jewelry.

CITY BOND ISSUE COMING.

Mayor Will Write an Open Letter Giving Reasons for Confidence.

Mayor Gaynor and Controller Prendergast held a long conference yesterday afternoon over the prospective early issue of city bonds. They considered the condition of the bond market and the city's finances, which the Controller will make public within a few days.

The Mayor said he would write an open letter some day this week on the general subject of investment in New York City bonds. It is understood that he will emphatically set forth reasons for public confidence. He stated yesterday that since his speech at the American Museum of Natural History, a short time ago, along these lines, he had received letters of inquiry and encouragement from bankers and investors.

The Mayor also said that since his announcement that he would appoint a committee to represent the city at the official welcome to Theodore Roosevelt upon his return to this country he had received many applications for membership on the committee. He would not be ready to announce the appointments for several days, he said.

Gov. Warner of Michigan called upon the Mayor for a few moments after leaving the meeting of the Aldermen.

The Mayor received yesterday from the Corporation Counsel the preliminary draft of the enabling act to be introduced in the Legislature to allow the city to take advantage of the constitutional amendment approved by the people last Fall exempting self-sustaining subway and dock bonds from computation in the debt limit. It has been estimated that this will release $100,000,000 now included in the debt limit.

POULTRY DEALERS HAULED UP

Grand Jury Wants to Know If There Is a High-Price Combination.

A new phase of the general rise in food prices was brought yesterday before the Grand Jury. It has been alleged that certain dealers in kosher poultry have banded together to force up the price of fowls. Kosher poultry constitutes a separate trade from ordinary poultry.

By the Jewish law the fowls must be consumed within a short time after slaughter, and consequently the fowls are brought alive to New York, and the supply continues the year around, for the ordinary market slaughtered poultry is usually shipped in and held in cold storage for all but one or two months in the year, the contention of the producers being that not only is the price of fowls thus equalized between the plentiful and scarce months in the year, but the quality of the poultry supplied to the public in Winter is much improved.

George G. Brown, Secretary of the New York Licensed Poultry Commission Merchants' Association, was brought before the Grand Jury and questioned by Assistant District Attorney De Ford. It is understood that he was examined with the idea of bringing out that the dealers who bring live poultry to the New York market have an arrangement among themselves by which the supply is regulated so as to produce a higher level of prices.

Other poultry men were in attendance, among them being Eugene C. Bondy, formerly a bookkeeper for Jacobs & Werner, poultry dealers, of 510 First Avenue; Edward Waldo, Secretary of the Jobbers' Association, and Louis J. Schwab of the Commission Dealers' Association. They were not examined yesterday.

TO DOUBLE BUTTER'S WEIGHT.

Brooklyn Housekeepers Now Add Milk to It.

Some Brooklyn housekeepers are availing themselves of a plan by which they make two pounds of butter out of one pound and a pint of milk. The pound of regular store butter is put with a pint of milk into a sort of double boiler affair, in which the butter is mixed with the milk by means of a paddle not unlike that of an ice cream freezer.

From this a rather soft substance emerges, to which some of the less conscientious housewives add a bit of coloring matter, for the mixture is a bit paler than the original pound of butter which went in. When the composition has cooled it becomes hard and to all intents and purposes butter. It certainly weighs two pounds where there was only one before, and is so like the genuine that most families do not know the difference. At butter is now selling in Brooklyn for about 38 cents a pound, the thrifty souls are getting two pounds of this "just as good" for 42 cents, and in this way greatly reducing their creamery bills.

FURLONG TRIAL CLOSING.

He's a Victim of Politics, Bourke Cockran Says.

The trial of Magistrate Henry J. Furlong on a charge of bribery, which had been on before Justice Kapper, in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, for several days, ended late yesterday afternoon. Counsel for both sides summed up, and this morning Justice Kapper will make his charge to the jury. W. Bourke Cockran did the summing up for the defendant, and Assistant District Attorney Robert H. Elder for the prosecution.

According to Mr. Cockran, Magistrate Furlong was the victim of a political conspiracy. His trouble, Mr. Cockran said, was due to his refusal to knuckle down to James P. Sinnott, the Democratic leader of the Twenty-second Assembly District. Furlong had persistently opposed Sinnott politically in East New York. In reply Mr. Elder asserted that there had been no conspiracy against Furlong. The Magistrate, he said, had been guilty of grave abuses.

LEHIGH VALLEY RAILROAD,
New York City.

Dear Sir:-

I came down yesterday on your train leaving Buffalo at 8 o'clock A.M. and whilst taking luncheon on Dining Car No.358, noticed on your menu that "Criticisms of the service invited".

I take pleasure in letting you know that the two meals I had, luncheon and dinner, were as good as I ever ate, on any dining car, and I have used every road in this country and abroad at one time and another.

I was particularly struck with the excellent attention, service and care I received and the personal interest shown by the Conductor for every individual patron of his car, and meant to have learned his name but failed to do so.

Yours truly,

M'ADOO TUBE CRASH INJURES FIFTEEN

Cut by Flying Glass as Hudson Train Hits a Row of Empties at 23d Street.

MAN BITES OFF HIS TONGUE

Thrown from His Seat by Collision—Safety Devices Prevent Loss of Life and the Motorman Sticks.

A two-car train filled with passengers from Jersey City crashed into a string of stalled empty cars at the Twenty-third Street (Manhattan) station of the Hudson (McAdoo) tunnel at noon yesterday. Fifteen men and women were bruised by being thrown to the floor or cut by flying glass. Six were taken to the New York Hospital. None were seriously hurt, and after their wounds were dressed they went home.

That some one was not killed or at least seriously injured is attributed by the officials of the road to the fact that the new all-steel cars were protected by the latest safety devices, including an anti-climber and an anti-telescoping arrangement. The accident was caused by the failure of the electric controller to work at the proper moment.

There were thirty-five passengers in the two-car train, which left Jersey City at 11:33 A. M. It was in charge of Motorman George P. Phillips of 510 Palisade Avenue, Jersey City Heights. The Twenty-third Street station is the terminus of the tunnel in Manhattan and the trains from and to Jersey City use the tracks on the west side of the street. The trains from and to Hoboken use the east side tracks.

A scissors switch at Twentieth Street turns the trains on to the right tracks. From the switch to the Twenty-third Street platform there is a short down grade, and the motormen as a rule throw off their power at this point and allow their trains to run into the station on momentum. The stalled trains yesterday reached from the northern end of the platform to about Twenty-eighth Street, although this part of the tunnel is not yet ready for passenger use.

When Motorman Phillips struck the switch yesterday his train turned to the west track and started down the incline. He threw on his controller, but it refused to work. Then he put on the emergency airbrake, but there wasn't time to bring the train to a stop, or even materially to lessen its speed.

Motorman Sticks to His Post.

Sliding along at the rate of nine or ten miles an hour, the first car crashed squarely into the rear car of the stalled train. Phillips stuck to his post and all the time tugged at the brake and the useless controller. The anti-climbing device worked to perfection and the cars did not try to "ride" each other.

The crash threw every passenger to the floor. There were fifteen in the first car and twenty in the second, and none escaped without a shaking up. The motorman was the least injured of all. Only one window pane in the front end of the car was broken, and a piece of the glass gave him a slight gash on the cheek. It was the broken glass in the windows along the sides of the cars that inflicted most of the injuries to the passengers.

Edward Berich of 104 Maple Street, Jersey City, was the most seriously hurt. A piece of glass gouged his nose, and he bit off the end of his tongue when he was thrown violently from his seat. He was taken to the New York Hospital, along with Mrs. Henrietta Crosman of 14 Smith Street, Jersey City; Herman Crozier of 723 East 163d Street, Benjamin Silver of 356 Avenue C, Bayonne; Lewis Goldstein of 465 Avenue C, Bayonne; Bart. Cole of 9 North Thirteenth Street, Newark, and Thomas Scanlon, a switchman, of 133 Amsterdam Avenue.

All were bruised and cut about the face and head by broken glass. Most of the injured were attended by ambulance surgeons from the New York and Bellevue Hospitals and by physicians employed by the railroad company.

Some of those cared for in this way and who went home after having their wounds attended to were Miss S. E. Pearlmutter of 2 Paulmier Place, Jersey City; Mrs. D. Keane of 264 Boulevard, Jersey City; Mrs. Frederick Ives of 259 Edge Avenue, Jersey City; Mrs. E. Miller of 350 Arlington Avenue, Jersey City; Walter Burr, a conductor, and James N. Cunningham of 105 West 147th Street.

The arrival of several ambulances and a squad of policemen from the East Twentieth Street Station created some excitement in the Sixth Avenue shopping district. A crowd gathered and the police had difficulty in keeping order. When ambulance stretchers were carried below the rumor spread that many had been killed. Vice President Wilbur C. Fisk of the McAdoo tunnel system was on the scene early, and ordered the entrances to the tunnel on the west side of the street closed. He also ordered that the Jersey City trains be switched to the east side tracks, and after a delay of about ten minutes the tube was again in working order.

Phillips, the motorman, was arrested and arraigned in the Jefferson Market Court on the charge of assault. He was bailed out by an official of the company.

Last night President McAdoo added this to the half-hour bulletins he sent out during the afternoon just to show that the aim of his company is to keep the public fully posted, especially in regard to accidents:

"The first report I gave out about the accident was based on information telephoned from the scene of the accident fifteen minutes after its occurrence. I have subsequently learned that a larger number of people than first reported were injured. The steel cars and other safety devices proved exceedingly effective. The cause of the accident is now under investigation."

Vice President Fisk described the new safety devices, which kept the cars from "buckling," or even leaving the tracks.

"The anti-climbing device," he said, "is a piece of heavy fluted iron, attached to the end of every car. When the cars come together these flutes interlock and serve to keep the cars from climbing on top of each other. The device was designed by Frank Hedley, General Manager and Vice President of the Interborough Company, and it is the first time we have had occasion to test it thoroughly on our system. It worked to perfection, as also did the anti-telescoping device, which is designed to keep one car from telescoping another. These anti-telescopers are steel anvil bumpers, and they take up the force of the collision.

"The all-steel cars weigh thirty-eight tons, and without the safety devices they would probably, in an accident of this kind, have been pretty badly battered up. The trucks, however, did not even leave the tracks. A really serious accident in the tubes seems to be impossible now."

LOBBYIST SPLITS SUFFRAGE RANKS

Mrs. Mackay Among Those Who Are Said to Have Objected to Mrs. Belmont's Representative.

SHE PAYS HIS EXPENSES

Mrs. Stanton Blatch Said to Have Resigned with Mrs. Mackay from Legislative Committee.

Has a lady politician, or a politicianess, a right to hire a lobbyist and set him to lobbying if she pays him out of her own pocket, with money which rightfully belongs to her? And if the politicianess does hire and set to work a lobbyist, have any of her confrères the right to complain?

That is a matter which is said to be troubling the New York State Suffrage Association at its headquarters, 505 Fifth Avenue, this city, to such an extent that one of the members of its Legislative Committee has resigned and another is said to be on the verge of it, with more trouble to come.

It is current gossip. Mrs. Mackay resigned from the Legislative Committee last week, and the resignation of another member, Mrs. Stanton Blatch, has been handed in, though no action has been taken.

The politicianess with a lobbyist at command is Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who has for some time employed Wallace B. Hunter to look after the suffrage work of her individual suffrage association, and, as he has a knowledge of legislative methods, to push the suffrage work at Albany. Mr. Hunter is a man who has been known to say "My character is my fortune." He came into the suffrage work with an "unimpeachable recommendation," it is said, and when it was suggested to Mrs. Belmont that her lobbyist might be the cause of the disintegration of the State Legislative Committee she said:

"Mr. Hunter has done excellent work; he will stay in Albany."

Whether the lobbyist and the resignations have anything to do with each other or whether the resignations have to do with the rivalry of two would-be suffrage leaders, as has also been suggested, is a matter for question. At the State Suffrage Headquarters they are troubled to think that any one should believe that there is trouble where they say only the dove of peace broods.

"We are all the best of friends," said Mrs. Ella Hawley Crossett, the State Suffrage President, yesterday. "Mrs. Mackay has resigned from the Legislative Committee, but she has a great deal to do in their own society, and we have had to hold meetings very often. It is not because she is not interested in our work. Why, I had a splendid letter from her yesterday in regard to the hearing in Albany. As far as I know, we are working in perfect harmony. I am one of the harmony kind.

"Mrs. Mackay works in her own way and Mrs. Belmont works in hers, each for her own organization. The State Association has no responsibility for their methods of work, but as far as we can we work in co-operation with them. We work together in Albany, and everything is very pleasant.

"The State suffragists have always had many friends among the legislators, and we have never needed a lobbyist. John Raines was one of our best friends, Senator Humphreys was another, and we have worked throughout the State educating the constituents of the men at Albany, believing that the best and strongest demands could be made in that way. We have organized half a hundred societies in the State recently. We believe in having men work with us; we believe that the Men's Suffrage League is one of the strongest forces that we have, and we employ paid men speakers on the platform."

Mrs. Catt, who is head of the International Woman Suffrage Association, and also of the Woman Suffrage Party of New York City, and a member of the State Legislative Committee, it has been said, was also going to resign on account of the lobbyist. Mrs. Catt says that under present conditions she is not thinking of resigning, though she would not favor personally or serve on a committee with a professional lobbyist.

"It is not necessary to resign on account of the lobbyist," said Mrs. Catt. "Mrs. Belmont made a statement to the Legislative Committee that the man in her employ was a man of integrity; that she would not employ any one else, and that he would not do anything that would in any way reflect upon the suffrage cause or any one working for it, hence I have no intention of resigning.

"It does not seem to me, however, that a paid lobbyist will be specially helpful to the bill. If the legislators wish to pass it they will do so because of the wish of their women constituents, without the intervention of a paid worker. For myself, I don't think it necessary, but if Mrs. Belmont wishes personally to work that way, she has a perfect right to do so."

MAYOR INTERCEDES FOR A POLICEMAN

Mounted Man Saves Himself by Making a Clean Breast of a Clubbing.

NELSON IS PUT ON TRIAL

He Is Accused of Locking Up Policeman Gallagher in Revenge for a Raid.

The trials of the policemen, who are ender charges preferred against them by Deputy Police Commissioner Bugher while Commissioner Baker was away recently on a vacation, began at Police Headquarters yesterday before Deputy Police Commissioner Walsh.

The case of Mounted Policeman John E. Copeland, who was charged with assaulting a truck driver, was the first called. Copeland confessed that he was guilty of the offense, which he said had been provoked by insulting remarks made to him by the truck driver.

Copeland had called on Mayor Gaynor on Monday and told him all the facts in the case, and it was at the suggestion of the Mayor that he pleaded guilty. The Mayor sent this letter to the Commissioner:

> Sir: Mounted Policeman Copeland, heretofore accused of committing a battery on a driver named Ruth, came to me yesterday and said that he regretted having denied in the first instance committing the battery, and that he wanted to tell the entire truth in the matter, as he deemed it his duty, as an officer, to do so.
>
> Thereupon he freely stated to me that he did commit the battery in the heat of the moment, and immediately thereafter greatly regretted that he had done so. I told him to make the same statement at the trial, and he said he would do so.
>
> I think under the circumstances that leniency should be shown him, and that he should not be dismissed from the force. He appears to be an intelligent and good officer. Let this leniency not serve as a precedent. The members of the force now know that the Mayor proposes to put an end to these unlawful batteries, and those who continue to commit them will be dismissed.
>
> Let this leniency not serve as a precedent. The members of the force now know that the Mayor proposes to put an end to these unlawful batteries, and those who continue to commit them will be dismissed.
>
> You have a splendid body of men under you, and I want them to know that I have every confidence in them and desire only to do them justice. On the other hand, I expect them all to be frank and truthful with the Mayor and with you, and of all things to never try to shield the men on the force who are doing wrong. For their own honor they ought to help us rid the force of such men. Very truly yours,
> W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.
> William F. Baker, Esq., Police Commissioner.

Several witnesses were in court to testify against Copeland, among them Harold Sorrell, a lawyer of 87 Nassau Street, but they did not testify beyond stating that Copeland had given a truthful version of what had happened.

Inspector Boettler testified that Copeland's record in the department was one of the best. Mr. Walsh reserved decision in the case.

The case of Policeman John A. Nelson, formerly of the Fifth Street Station, but now of the Leonard Street Station, was called next. As a plain clothes man, Nelson arrested Policeman William F. Gallagher of Chief Inspector Schmittberger's staff recently and had him locked up over night in the Fifth Street Station, charged with being intoxicated, despite the fact that two police surgeons pronounced him sober. The arrest followed the raiding of an alleged gambling house in St. Mark's place, the raid being made by Schmittberger's men and over the heads of Inspector Hogan and Capt. Morris, the precinct commander.

The next day Gallagher was arraigned in court and fined $5. Deputy Commissioner Bugher took the case up and had it reopened. Gallagher was exonerated and the fine remitted.

Gallagher was the first witness called yesterday, and he said that when arrested he was in the precinct acting under orders from Inspector Schmittberger, when a woman spoke to him, and that a moment later Nelson appeared and arrested him. When he was arraigned before Lieut. Kuhne in the station he reported Nelson as saying, "Here is this grafter who has been shaking down women."

Gallagher said he denied all of the charges at the time, and that a short time afterward the police surgeons examined him and said he had not been drinking.

Nelson said, according to Gallagher, "You are one of Schmittberger's shoo-flies, and you and Cantor are the people who made all the trouble in St. Mark's place, referring to the raid."

Policeman Joseph Sullivan of the Fifth Street Station testified that a woman had told him that a "bogus cop" was getting money from women in the precinct, and that he went to Gallagher about it, and Gallagher showed his badge.

Sullivan said he did not know whether Gallagher was drunk or not. Lieut. Kuhne also testified that he thought Gallagher was intoxicated when brought to the station house, as did also Charles Poss, the doorman.

Drs. Marvin Palmer and Daniel H. Smith, the police surgeons who examined Gallagher, both testified that he was not drunk at the time. The case was then adjourned until next Tuesday, when Nelson will testify.

DELAY POLICE PAY INCREASE.

The matter of appropriating funds to cover the increase of $250 a year in salary voted to the Police Lieutenants by the old Board of Estimate last December was taken up by the Aldermen yesterday, but laid over for a week to await an opinion from the Corporation Counsel. Alderman Dowling contended that the approval of the increase is mandatory upon the board and that if it refuses to take affirmative action it will simply mean a $194,500 deficit in the budget this year. Alderman Johnson differed from this opinion.

A resolution requesting the Police Commissioner to rescind his order compelling all patrolmen in the Bronx to ring up their stations through a patrol box once every hour was referred to the Committee on Police.

$26,000,000 FOR 3RD AV. LINE.

Crowd at the Auction, but Only Bondholders There for Business.

The fact that a street railroad was going to be put up at auction drew a big crowd of curious people who didn't have anything better to do to the County Court House yesterday morning to see the foreclosure sale of the Third Avenue Railroad Company. The proceedings were cut and dried. It was known in advance that there would be only one bidder, namely the Reorganization Committee of the holders of $37,560,000 general mortgage bonds of the Third Avenue, issued in 1900.

On behalf of this committee John M. Bowers, its counsel, bid $26,000,000, after a clerk had spent half an hour in reading the long decree of sale issued by the United States Courts, and as there was no opposing bidder Joseph P. Day, the auctioneer, knocked down the road to Mr. Bowers for his client, James M. Wallace, President of the Central Trust Company, and Chairman of the Reorganization Committee.

The road was put up in three parcels; first, the real estate, tracks, roadbed, and equipment; second, the stocks and bonds held by the Third Avenue and accompanying corporate rights, and third, the properties named in Parcels 1 and 2 as a whole, in case there was a bid in excess of the individual bids for the first two parcels. Mr. Bowers bid $10,000,000 each for Parcels 1 and 2 and $26,000,000 for the road, which was declared sold to his client at that figure.

The sale is made subject to the lien of the $5,000,000 first mortgage bonds of the Third Avenue and to various other prior liens recognized by the courts. It has the effect of wiping out the stock of the company so far as any legal standing is concerned, although the bondholders' committee has arranged a certain assessment basis on which the stock may participate in the reorganization. The reorganization plan is now before the Public Service Commission.

CORONER'S AUTO MUST WAIT.

Aldermen Fail to Appropriate $2,500 for One for Jackson of Richmond.

The motion of Borough President Cromwell of Richmond for the appropriation ofw $2,500 for an automobile for Coroner Jackson of that borough was put on file by the Aldermen yesterday, on the objection of Alderman Johnson, the Republican leader. Similar action was taken with District Attorney Whitman's request for $25,000 to pay the expenses of the special Grand Jury which is investigating the "white slave" traffic. This expenditure has already been approved by the Board of Estimate.

The Aldermen voted $35,000 to Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards to pay for the removal of ashes and garbage during the snowstorms of the Winter, when he had to hire extra carts and men for the work.

Requests of the Trustees of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals to purchase fruit and vegetables without public letting and of the Trustees of the Normal College to buy books and supplies in the same manner were denied, after a long flood of oratory.

The board also refused to allow the Water Commissioner to establish the grade of Assistant Chief Engineer of Light and Power in his office, at a salary of $5,000. The request of Borough President Miller of the Bronx for a Consulting Engineer at a salary of $6,000 was allowed, however.

SHE CONJURES UP BURGLARS.

Little Girl's Imagination Stirs Up the Police and a Neighborhood.

Elsa Fricke, the eight-year-old daughter of Christopher Fricke of 443 West 151st Street, seems to have had recurrent delusions of seeing a masked burglar at various times in the last week. Yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock she toddled up to the apartment of her friend, Harriet Irving, on the top floor of the house where she lives and told Mrs. Irving that she had just had a thrilling experience with a masked man who appeared before her from behind the stairs in the lower hall, pressed a revolver to her head, and ordered her under pain of death not to utter a sound.

She said he then went upstairs, while she followed him, at a distance, to the top floor. There she lost sight of him; for he either entered one of the apartments or went out on the roof.

Mrs. Irving recalled that Elsa had told her brother a similar tale about a week ago, so she told her to run along and forget it. Instead, however, Elsa hunted up a little girl friend and went with her to the West 152d Street Station, where she told her story to Lieut. Thompson. Unwilling to take any chances, he sent Patrolmen Lewis and McGrath with three other policemen to the house.

They made a thorough search of the building from cellar to roof, as well as of the buildings adjoining it on either side. But they found nothing except a crowd of several hundred curious neighbors.

When they reported the results of their wild-goose chase to Lieut. Thompson he sent for Elsa and her mother, and had Mrs. Fricke talk to the girl. She could not shake the story, but concluded that the little girl, however innocently intentioned, was of an imaginative and romancing disposition. So she took her home for a little prose treatment.

MORE JOBS LOST TO TAMMANY.

McKenna Resigns as Accountant—Four Draughtsmen Dropped by Martin.

Another Tammany man severed his connection with the Department of Finance yesterday. He was W. J. McKenna of 1,941 Clinton Avenue, the Bronx, who received a salary of $3,500 as an accountant in the Bureau of Municipal Investigation and Statistics. He presented his resignation and it was accepted at once by the Controller. Bridge Commissioner Martin dropped four of the fifty draughtsmen in his department yesterday for lack of work. They received salaries of $1,800 each.

TO BAR AMENDMENT OF TAFT MEASURES

White House Conference Decides They Must Be Pushed Through Without Any Change.

INSURGENTS IN A HOLE

If They Urge Their Ideas on Railroad Bill, Aldrich Will Declare They Are Against the President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The Administration has decided that the bills now before Congress embodying what is left of the Taft programme shall be passed substantially without amendment. This conclusion was announced this afternoon, following a conference at the White House between the President, Senator Aldrich, Speaker Cannon, Senator Crane, and Attorney General Wickersham. The particular reference was to the railroad bill, which it is planned to take up in the Senate immediately after the disposal of the Postal Savings Bank bill on Thursday, but the general attitude of the Administration is that on all Administration bills no amendments will be accepted that are not "friendly."

This means, briefly, that the full weight of the White House influence will be combined with that of the Senate and House machine to head off the amendments that Senator Cummins and Clapp are preparing at one end of the Capitol, and which Chairman Mann of the Inter-State Commerce Committee has already drafted at the other. These amendments to the Railroad bill have already been considered by the President and the Attorney General, and they have been found to be hostile to the real purpose of the bills embodying the Taft programme.

The statement that only "friendly" amendments will be considered means that only amendments that have already received the approval of the Attorney General, acting for the President, will be allowed the least favorable consideration. The Mann amendment dispensing with the commerce court, and the Cummins and Clapp amendments carrying sweeping valuation propositions, including electric and water lines in the scope of the bill, greatly restricting traffic agreements and increasing the shipper's power to select his own route, have accordingly been marked out for defeat.

As to the Mann amendments, their author has already made it apparent that though personally unconvinced of the wisdom of the President's bill he would not himself push his amendments through the committee of which he is Chairman. This restraint on his part, does not, of course, preclude a fight for the amendments on the floor of the House, but it will at least give the President's bill an opportunity, with the aid of the House rules, to get through amended.

In the Senate the President's unwillingness to see any material changes made will have the effect of adding to Mr. Aldrich's usual ranks of regulars such of the insurgents as are not of the out-and-out radical stamp.

Mr. Aldrich is naturally hostile to the insurgent amendments, and from the first he made up his mind to head them off by standing on the bare demands of the President and Attorney General Wickersham. He realizes that in this case he and the Administration are alone. Not for any hope of eliminating some parts of the President's bill that are distasteful to him would he sacrifice the President's support, and he has resolutely insisted that the bill, when it reached the floor, should be the President's bill. Whoever opposes it will be opposing the President, and this is the position into which Mr. Aldrich has been trying to get the insurgents since the beginning of the tariff struggle.

Unquestionably this creates a grave predicament for the insurgents. On the tariff bill they were able to encourage themselves in the dark by loudly crying that they were supporting the President's real desires. But now they cannot say they are interpreting the President's public utterances, for the President and the Attorney General have already interpreted them in terms of bills, and it is on the bills themselves that the fight will be made.

The conference to-day decided to continue the present tactics of opening the fights for the particular bills in the Senate. The House will hold its present course of passing appropriation bills, and when they are out of the way the Administration measures will be taken up at fast as the Senate disposed of them.

Some of the House members have expressed the hope that they would be allowed speedily to pass some Administration bill so as to put the House on record as supporting the Administration, but it has been definitely decided that even the Postal Savings Bank bill, when it is passed in the Senate on Thursday, will be held up in the House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads until the appropriation bills are practically disposed of.

It is generally admitted that debate in the Senate on the Railroad bill alone will take over a month.

SHOWS WHY CITY FERRIES DON'T PAY

In One Year 21,827 Days' Time Was Paid Employes for Service on Idle Boats.

COMMISSIONER SO REPORTS

Saving of $210,000 a Year Can Be Effected by Dropping Unneeded Engine-room Men and Surplus Crew.

Dock Commissioner Tomkins received the Mayor's letter yesterday, calling his attention to the things which the Mayor believes have caused the large annual deficit in the operation of ferries. Along with it came the report of Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick showing that $210,000 a year can be saved in the operating expenses of the ferries without in any way crippling the service. Commissioner Fosdick arrives at this figure by recommendinng these eliminations from the payroll:

6 chief marine engineers	$10,800
6 marine engineers	9,900
37 oilers	42,180
23 water tenders	26,220
68 stokers	73,440
		$162,540
Saving, if crew of one emergency boat is dispensed with		48,000
		$210,540

The Commissioner goes on to state that more men are employed in the crews of the municipal boats than on boats of larger tonnage in the fleets of various railroads, and that he has found that two of the boats are lying idle nearly all the time, the crews being paid. The figures show that in 1900 21,827 eight-hour days were paid men for service on boats which were out of commission.

During that year the Stapleton was out of commission during the months of March and November, the Richmond was out of the service during February, the Bronx during November and December, the Manhattan during April, and the Brooklyn during June and July. The Commissioner estimates that this expense of paying men on boats not working totaled $76,336. This does not include the wages of the watchmen.

It was also found that, on account of the schedules of the boats, considerable time is spent in the slips every day by each boat, sometimes averaging four hours a day. Exclusive of these delays, of 2,809 idle working days for which crews were paid last year, 834 were spent on boats lying at the terminals. This represented 43,839 days' pay for which no actual work was done.

"It would seem to be feasible," comments the Commissioner, "almost entirely to eliminate such service during these periods by utilizing for the performance of this work the unoccupied time of crews while these boats are still in commission. It would, furthermore, seem practicable to thus advantageously employ the unoccupied time of crews held in reserve on emergency boats. Their services could also be used in filling in during the vacation periods of other crews."

It was learned at the office of the Inspector of Steamboats at the Custom House and from the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and Erie Railroads that the number of employes specified in the certificates for the municipal boats is much larger than for the railway boats. On the municipal boat Nassau, 1,396 tons, there are required twelve employes, while on the Ithaca, 1,462 tons, of the D., L. & W. fleet only seven are required.

"In an effort to learn the reason for this discrepancy," says Mr. Fosdick, "two of the local Government Steamboat Inspectors were subpoenaed to appear before me. They testified that they were only concerned in the minimum number of men necessary to operate a given boat, and that if a company or corporation sees fit to place on a boat a larger number of men than is actually necessary they would accept this number and incorporate it in the certificate."

The Inspectors added that a larger number of men were employed on all the municipal ferry boats than on the railroad boats in the harbor, and declared that all the applications from the Dock Commissioner for changes in the certifications had invariably been for increases.

Dock Commisioner Tomkins announced yesterday that he had hired Dr. Walter N. Polakov, an engineer, of 50 Church Street, to investigate the efficiency of the machinery on the ferries, the fuel cost, and methods employed in fuel consumption.

DECIDES FOR CENTRAL IN 11TH AVENUE CASE

D. Cady Herrick Finds the Road Has Franchise Rights of Which the City Can't Deprive It.

HAVE 500 YEARS TO RUN

The Eleventh Avenue Line Has City Grants Obtained Through Merger of Central and Hudson River Roads.

D Cady Herrick, referee appointed by the Supreme Court in the suit of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad against the city to prevent the removal of its tracks in Eleventh Avenue and in the west side of Manhattan, made his report yesterday afternoon, deciding for the railroad company on every point.

While ex-Judge Herrick passes by, as not essential to the question before him, the complaint of the city that the railroad company is occupying without right under-water property belonging to the city, he decides that the company can use as at present Eleventh Avenue and every other point in Manhattan complained of in the Board of Estimate's resolution demanding the removal of the tracks, throughout the life of the Central's franchise, which is 500 years from 1869.

He holds further that the city cannot declare to be a nuisance and deal with as such, what the State itself has authorized. At the Corporation Counsel's office, it was said immediately after the report had become public, that an appeal would certainly be taken. The issues passed on by ex-Judge Herrick and others with which he did not deal, would be brought before the final court, it was said.

While admitting that the Central had won a temporary victory, no one of the city's lawyers seemed to think that the city's case was hopeless.

On the other hand, there was great jubilation in the office of the New York Central. The report prevents for the time being any step by the city to tear up the tracks, as threatened in the Board of Estimate's resolution.

In his conclusions of fact, ex-Judge Herrick sets forth that the act of incorporation of the Hudson River Railroad Company in 1846 gave that company the right to construct and use during fifty years, tracks in the city's streets west of Eighth Avenue on consent of the city itself. This was obtained. But in 1869 an act was passed permitting the merger of the New York Central Railroad and the Hudson River Railroad Companies, with a franchise life of 500 years from that date for the consolidated roads. According to the referee that act of consolidation extended the franchise to use the city's streets as originally granted to the Hudson River Company to the new company not through the life of the original recipient only, but of the new company as well.

"At the time the City of New York granted its permission to the Hudson River Railroad Company to lay its tracks through its streets and avenues," recites ex-Judge Herrick, "a large part of the territory traversed by the line of said company was sparsely inhabited, and but few buildings were erected therein. Since that time the city has grown and developed, and conditions have greatly changed. Now portions of the route pass through thickly populated districts, commercial houses, factories, and dwellings have been erected upon the streets and avenues through and upon which the railroad passes, and a number of schools are located, either upon said streets and avenues, or a short distance therefrom. Hundreds of school children and workmen going to and from their schools and places of employment, and residents along the streets, are compelled to pass and repass over the tracks of said railroad every day."

He declares, however, that the company refrains as much as possible from the use of the tracks in those hours when children and workmen are most likely to be upon the street, but that from time to time the streets intersecting the avenues along which the tracks run are blocked by trains, and adds:

"During the time the railroad has been in operation through the streets and avenues of the City of New York a large number of persons have been killed and injured by the operation of the cars of the plaintiff or the Hudson River Railroad Company. How such deaths or injuries were caused, whether by the fault of the railroad company or by the fault of the persons killed or injured, does not appear."

The referee points out that to facilitate the handling of passengers and freight the railroad has erected large terminals in the city, and concludes that to remove the tracks would destroy the usefulness of these terminals, as well as render valueless the right of way in the city given the plaintiff by the State, with the city's consent, and that therefore the plaintiff would suffer irreparable injury for which there was no adequate remedy at hand.

From the conclusions of fact already set forth, the referee reaches five conclusions of law, based on decisions of the Appellate Divisions of the Supreme Court or other high tribunals.

The first was that the life of the Hudson River Company's franchise was by act of consolidation extended to the limit of the Central Company. But the referee finds further that in the face of the Board of Estimate's resolution of May 28, 1909, ordering the removal of the tracks, the company has the legal right to continue running its cars over its tracks in Eleventh Avenue and elsewhere as originally granted, and that to do so does not constitute a nuisance. On the latter point the referee declares with special emphasis that what the State has authorized could not be held by the city to be a nuisance.

The fifth and final conclusion of law says:

"The plaintiff is entitled to an injunction restraining the defendants (the city) and either and all of them, from removing any of the tracks of the plaintiff from the streets and avenues set forth in the resolution of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment passed May 28, 1909, or from preventing the operation of the plaintiff's cars through, over, and upon its tracks in the streets and avenues set forth and described in aid resolution.

"For which relief let the plaintiff enter judgment against the defendants, together with the costs of this action."

The case for the city has been handled, for the most part, by Assistant Corporation Counsels William P. Burr and Francis J. Byrne. At their office it was said that several important matters, including the complaint of trespass on the city's under-water rights and at the foot of Riverside Park, which the referee had not passed on at all. These and every other issue would not be dropped until the highest court had reviewed them.

Vice President Ira A. Place of the New York Central seemed much elated over the referee's findings, chiefly, he said, because he believed they would constitute a long step forward in clearing the air and bringing about a final settlement of the question to the full protection of the road and the public.

"To my mind," he said, "the whole question is one of grade crossings on a tremendous scale. The road's policy has always been to do away with grade crossings, and this is being done as rapidly as possible. I hope the decision will do much toward enabling the acquisition by the company of the right to eliminate grade crossings on Eleventh Avenue and everywhere else in the city where they exist now. While I have never doubted the railroad's rights on the west side, it would be much for the best for the question to be decided once for all by the final court, for a proper understanding is unlikely as long as any doubt of the road's privileges is open to question.

"We have rights in the streets, but not under the streets, and that is why additional legislation was asked to put the tracks under ground."

Mr. Place said he expected an appeal from the referee's decision as a matter of course.

"RED" ADAMS SENTENCED.

Old Confidence Man Gets Four and a Half Years in Prison.

Judge Hough, in the United States Circuit Court yesterday, sentenced "Red" Adams, the convicted confidence man whose last attempted swindle was the "dead-relative" game, to four and a half years in the Federal prison in Atlanta.

Adams is nearly seventy years old. He might have been sentenced to seven and a half years under the indictments on which he was convicted on Monday. His counsel, Edward Lauterbach, made a plea for a light sentence, based on the advanced years of his client.

The Government officials say that Adams's real name is Cameron Bosteter. He is wanted now in several parts of the country for swindles of different kinds. For the last year or so before his final arrest he had been living as James Currie, a respected citizen of Midwood Manor, a section of Flatbush.

NO IMMUNITY FOR HEIKE.

He Must Stand Trial for His Part in the Sugar Weighing Frauds.

On account of the continuance by the United States Supreme Court of the stay granted by Justice Lurton, the trial of Charles R. Heike, Secretary of the American Sugar Refining Company, and those of five other men who were formerly employes of that corporation on the charge of complicity in the sugar weighing frauds on the Havemeyer & Elder docks in Williamsburg, was postponed yesterday until next Wednesday in the United States Circuit Court.

Heike appealed from the decision of Judge Martin, which denied him immunity from prosecution because he had testified before the Federal Grand Jury in two proceedings against the Sugar Trust brought under the Sherman act.

Fined $500 for Naming a Co-respondent

Justice Gerard, in the Supreme Court, signed an order yesterday compelling Mrs. Kathryn A. Stubbert, wife of Dr. J. Edward Stubbert, to pay a penalty of $500 in addition to costs to Mrs. Mary A. Hartsell, whom she named as co-respondent in a counter action she brought against her husband for divorce. Dr. Stubbert had sued Mrs. Stubbert for divorce, naming J. Otis Woodward, conspicuous in connection with the Albany Burgess Corps, as co-respondent. The Stubberts have patched up their differences.

DR. COOK STILL HAS THE CITY'S FREEDOM

Aldermen Again Table Resolutions Recognizing Peary as the Real Pole Finder.

NAUTICAL RECKONING AWRY

Old Board's Astronomical Calculations Declared to be Slightly Out of Plumb.

The Aldermen again refused yesterday to take action toward rectifying their public welcoming of Dr. Frederick A. Cook and extending to him "the freedom of the city" upon his return from Copenhagen. A resolution was introduced by Alderman Drescher of Brownsville calling on the board to place itself on record as recognizing Commander Peary as the real discoverer of the north pole, but it was put on file without being voted upon, on motion of Alderman Dowling, the Tammany leader.

Last December Alderman Schloss introduced a similar resolution before the old board which met with a like fate. He sided with Drescher yesterday, but they were voted down, and the matter was tabled once more. Mr. Drescher's resolution read:

> Whereas, On Oct. 15, 1909, the honorable predecessors of this Board of Aldermen saw fit, out of their joint and accumulated wisdom as scientists, navigators, and experts in arctic exploration, to pay official honor and extend the freedom of the city to a certain claimant for recognition as the discoverer of the north pole; and,
>
> Whereas, Events of later date have demonstrated that the honorable predecessors of the board made certain astronomical errors in checking up the observation of such claimant, and as a result of nautical and mathematical miscalculations extended to him their recognition of an achievement since discredited by another eminent scientific body and by the public at large, and
>
> Whereas, The City of New York through its accredited representatives, stands on record as recognizig the discredited and ignoring the real discoverer of the north pole; and,
>

Dr. Cook Leaves for Buenos Ayres.

FEW HONORED BY CONGRESS.

The Record Compiled by the House Naval Committee.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The objections of certain persons to the proposal that Congress bestow upon Commander Robert E. Peary a gold medal and a vote of thanks have led the sub-committee of the Naval Committee naving the matter in charge to look up history and ascertain how many persons have been granted this honor. A summary of the investigation shows that but two civilians and about a dozen military heroes have had the honor of the thanks of Congress bestowed upon them.

The civilians were Cornelius Vanderbilt, who presented $800,000 to the Government for use in time of war, and Capt. Gleadell of the steamship Atlantic for heroism at sea. The military men were Gens. Grant, Banks, Burnside, Hooker, Meade, Sherman, Sheridan, Terry, Thomas, and Hancock; Commodore Ringgold, Lieut. Col. Bailey, Capt. Rogers, Admirals Porter, Farragut, and Dewey; Capt. Winslow, and Lieut. Cushing. A vote of thanks also was bestowed by Congress upon the family of Gen. Armstrong for presenting to the Government the sword of President Jackson.

Members of the committee expressed themselves to-day to the effect that, in their opinion, the friends of Commander Peary should place considerable value upon the thanks of Congress.

Hill to Preside at Peary Lecture.

David Jayne Hill, United States Ambassador to Germany, cabled the Civic Forum last night that he would preside at the lecture which Commander Robert E. Peary will give in Berlin in May, the date and place yet to be fixed. Commander Peary to-day engaged passage for himself, his wife, and Capt. Robert Bartlett, who will accompany him through Europe, on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, sailing April 26.

JEROME ITS COUNSEL.

On Condition Association Tells All It Knows of White Slavery.

There was no little surprise in the District Attorney's office when it came out yesterday that ex-District Attorney William Travers Jerome had announced himself as counsel for the New York Independent Benevolent Association, a society enjoying the close scrutiny of those charged with preparing the "white slave" evidence for the Rockefeller Grand Jury.

Some days ago Mr. Jerome telephoned this fact to Assistant District Attorney Appleton, who kept it to himself until yesterday. Meanwhile Mr. Appleton's late chief called at the office in company with Abraham Levenstein, a Second Avenue restaurant keeper, who is President of the association. Mr. Appleton has had some difficulty in persuading the organization to turn over all its books for his inspection, but with Mr. Jerome's appearance in the case Mr. Levenstein agreed not only to produce the books but to tell all he knew of the alleged traffic in women. Mr. Appleton now has seven voluminous ledgers kept in Yiddish.

In the report of the Federal Immigration Commission left with Mr. Whitman by Prof. Jenks some weeks ago there are some interesting statements on the unifying bond which sustains this benevolent association. After a general denial of the existence of any monopolistic organization for dealing in women, such as was suggested in the George Kibbe Turner article in McClure's, the report speaks of societies formed for a better understanding and mutual protection among those who profit by the products of the dance hall and the streets. Of these it calls the New York Independent Benevolent Association the most important.

"The main object of the association was to help its members in defeating the law," says the report.

When the news spread that Mr. Jerome had been retained as counsel of the society, he was flooded with inquiries, to which he retorted that it was not his custom to discuss the affairs of his clients in the newspapers.

Mr. Levenstein has been in consultation with Mr. Appleton several times, but has not yet appeared before the Grand Jury. With his first visit to the District Attorney's office, he expressed his intention of telling all he knew. Mr. Jerome, it is understood, has made a fulfillment of this promise the only condition under which he would consent to be retained.

WOMAN HURT IN AUTO CRASH.

Mrs. Edgar Van Etten Injured in a Collision with a Surface Car.

As Mrs. Edgar Van Etten of the Chatsworth apartments, Riverside Avenue and Seventy-second Street, was driving yesterday morning to her dentist, Dr. W. A. Wood, 15 East Forty-eighth Street, and was crossing Madison Avenue in a westerly direction, a southbound car struck her automobile.

The side of the auto was crushed in and one of the spokes of the wheel was broken off and hit Mrs. Van Etten in the forehead. She was badly bruised by the blow and had her lip cut. She fainted from the shock, but was able when she came to to take command of the situation and see to the care of the car. She refused to have a doctor called and was assisted to her dentist's. There she remained for an hour and was then able to go home.

She put down the accident to a slight pause by her auto as it was being turned and to the carelessness of the motorman of the street car.

Mrs. Van Etten's chauffeur, Herbert Pinkham of 69 Fourth Avenue, was arrested for having no license.

BURGLAR IN BROADWAY SHOP.

In a Glare of Light He Throws a Brick Through a Window to Get Loot.

A burglar, working under the full glare of an electric light, early Monday morning broke the lock of the large iron gate at the entrance to the Fifth Avenue Building, in Madison Square, threw a brick through the plate-glass window of the sporting goods store of Von Lengerke & Detmold, on the main floor, and leisurely carried away about $100 worth of loot.

The entrance to the building is one of the best lighted in the city. The street is also well policed, and there are at least two watchmen in the building. The police got no clue to the thief, but they believe it is the same individual who has robbed several other stores in the vicinity in the last few weeks.

Cartoonist's Wife Gets a Separation.

Supreme Court Justice McCall granted yesterday to Mrs. Daisy B. Davenport a decree of separation from Homer C. Davenport, the cartoonist. The terms of the separation had already been agreed upon. Mrs. Davenport will have the custody of her three children, the Davenport farm at Morris Plains, N. J., and $400 a month alimony. She said her husband had a salary of $15,000 a year and an additional income from lectures, books, and drawings.

PERFECTLY PLAIN AND BAD LAWS.

The question regarding the Constitutional amendment enabling the Federal Government to lay a tax on incomes "from whatever source derived" is not a question regarding the conflict of laws, or for the construction of an obscure statute, involving difficult questions of principle. It is a question addressed to the man in the street regarding the adoption of a new policy as to which his views should and will prevail. It is a question without roots in the past, and looking wholly to the future. The Supreme Court perhaps might listen patiently to such an argument as Senator ROOT's, but the man in the street will pay no attention to it, and should not.

It is not a question for the Supreme Court. One man is theoretically as competent as another under universal suffrage to say whether the proposed Constitutional enablement of the taxation of incomes from all sources means that incomes from some sources are not included, because they were not included when the Constitution was worded differently. The votes and the intelligence of the common people will and should settle the question. Indisputably they think and have a right to think that the proposition is that Congress may tax all incomes. The four words mean the same after the four thousand words of Senator ROOT's argument are digested as before, and cannot be made to mean anything different, except by technicalities which can only prevail at the cost of defeating the people's will.

How happens it that the Republican Party is in such distress over laws too plain to be misunderstood and too bad to be endured? The controversy between Attorney General WICKERSHAM and Secretary MACVEAGH regarding the corporation income tax is as like the debate between Gov. HUGHES and Senator ROOT as possible. It was so preposterous that a separate accounting year for the purposes of this tax should be imposed upon a suffering commercial community that it was attempted to substitute the usual fiscal year for the "calendar year ending Dec. 31." But the argument failed in this respect, and in others similar. The language was too plain to be misunderstood, and the commercial world is embittered. Nobody except the proposers of the law has said a word in its defense, and even they are not arguing that the perfect clearness with which the law is phrased is one of its merits.

It is the same with the Sherman anti-trust law, whose interpretation every man of business is awaiting. Unending arguments have been made to prove that when Congress used words too plain for misunderstanding the meaning must be something different, because the plain meaning is so absurd and intolerable. Here are three cases in which the subtlest arguments are used to explain and alter language which the man in the street is as able to understand as anybody, and which nobody is able to understand or to obey if words of plain meaning in human intercourse are to have some special meaning in statutes. In all these cases the problem is not for economists or statesmen. It is only necessary to find the meaning of a few easy words, and they are to be understood with the same freedom of natural and spontaneous interpretation as would be used in a case of private and personal interest. Only trouble can be made by substituting other words assumed to be equivalent, and arguing as though they were in the act, or that the meaning is otherwise because it ought to be otherwise. Millions will, through their Representatives, vote on the income tax who will never see Senator ROOT's argument, and who ought not to be troubled with it, their own interpretation of the language being the very thing in question. To argue that some sources of income will not be taxable because they ought not to be taxable, or because they have not been taxable before, is beside the point. Senator ROOT's argument only embarrasses the Republicans. Either they intended to do a bad thing, or else they designed to deceive the people into thinking they were voting to do that thing, but to avoid doing it by argument after enactment. It is bad for a party when people say after too many of their acts, "Stung again." The tariff should be added to the above list, and then it may be asked how much of this can the people stand because the Republican Party was once the party of great ideas and acts.

WAR WITH CANADA!

Secretary SHAW and Gen. GREENE are sniffing war in the wrong quarter. Japan is not the enemy, but Canada. Under the crafty pretense of rallying to the help of the empire it is really preparing to impose its tariff upon us helpless Americans. This is the real necessity for hurrying up the world's greatest warships for our navy. Canada is in such haste that she has bought a British warship ready made, and is mobilizing on the frontier. Can there be a doubt of it when such thrilling news as this is concealed in the Canadian newspapers:

> The Department of Militia has created six regiments of cavalry, two field batteries, and seven battalions of infantry, to be located in Western Canada, principally in towns along the United States frontier.

The other evidence is too detailed to be given in full. One thrilling paragraph reads:

> Across the St. Lawrence from Montreal, near the entrance to Victoria Bridge, barracks and forts will be erected and a force of between 700 and 800 men will be permanently employed.

Shall we wait until we are enslaved? Let us rise in our might and order out the Fencibles and the Old Guard. It could do no harm to order another Dreadnought, and to bestow pensions upon 100,000 veterans, to become deceased, the same to be payable to their widows, whom they might forthwith proceed to marry upon these expectations. Our tariff Commissioners are due at Ottawa any day now, and the Canadians should be made to see that we are not to be trifled with. Let the war proceed. A National debt is a national blessing, and ours has fallen below a billion. Something ought to be done about it, and this is the very best thing. It is a much better thriller than those absurd Japanese yarns.

CHANCELLOR MACCRACKEN.

In his letter to the Council of New York University announcing his retirement next April Chancellor MACCRACKEN remarks that he has "served a full half century as a public teacher under one or another name," and that he has "given to New York University over a quarter of a century of my life." He adds:

> Within this quarter century the strength of this younger university of the metropolis, so far as strength is shown by mere figures, has been multiplied several times. Especially what is called our "university plant," which is this year to be freed from all debt, has grown to be the twelfth in value among the plants of American universities.

This university, built up during Mr. MACCRACKEN's service and largely under his leadership, as measured by its holdings is eight times greater than all the institutions of higher learning existent in this country up to 1800, and it is two hundred times as strong as Yale in 1830, when Yale was 130 years old. The fifty years in which Mr. MACCRACKEN has taught have marked the real upspringing of colleges that afford opportunities to "youths of promise of every kind from every part of the country." The earlier and smaller colleges were the leaven that is leavening the lump of a great democracy. To-day the fund of $30,000,000 possessed by the General Education Board alone, with its annual income of over $1,500,000, represents, according to the computation of Mr. CLARENCE F. BIRDSEYE, "but one-four hundredth, or a quarter of 1 per cent. of the principal sum upon which the people of the United States tax themselves each year to support the cause of education." In 1860 the public tax for education was nothing, now it is half a billion yearly.

The progress since 1860 has been made by conscious and purposive effort. Men like Chancellor MACCRACKEN have not been sleeping.

SOME CONSEQUENCES OF A GENERAL STRIKE.

We venture to express the opinion, whatever may be the result of the arbitration negotiations, that there will be no general strike in Philadelphia. There are several reasons why a resort to this means of aiding the striking street car employés is improbable. In the first place, if 100,000 union wage earners in Philadelphia should go out, there would be 100,000 places open to other wage earners, not of the unions. Each place left vacant would be open to the first qualified applicant, and the qualified applicants would spring up all over Philadelphia. They would converge upon Philadelphia from other cities. The men and women who had joined in the general strike would find themselves without work, permanently displaced.

There is another good reason why a general strike is improbable. It would give to every employer of labor in Philadelphia the opportunity to escape from union tyranny. Some unions are fair and reasonable in their demands, but everybody knows that there is a great deal of union tyranny. Hundreds of employers in Philadelphia would jump at the chance to reorganize their shops on the "open" principle. The labor leaders and the men of the unions know this perfectly well. Inasmuch as a general strike would be regarded as a boon by so many employers, men at present holding good places at good pay will naturally hesitate to give them up and face the hard necessity of going to some other city to find work.

The principle of the "solidarity" of labor was tried in the organization of the Knights of Labor, and it failed disastrously. It is no more true in the field of labor that the injury of one is the concern of all than it is true in any other field. Complaints of injury may be well founded or ill founded. The complaint itself or any action taken in support of it may be flagrant injustice. How can the employés of a textile mill, of a foundry, of a shoe or of a hat factory, judge of the issues between the striking street car men and the traction company? The matter concerns them only because of the strained, false, and delusive theory that any labor dispute whatever concerns all labor. A general strike in Philadelphia based upon the affirmation and application of that principle would go a long way toward disrupting Mr. MURPHY's federation.

The general strike in Russia for political purposes was futile. A general strike to gain union ends would be preposterous. Some of the most conspicuous and able labor leaders in France have frankly admitted that the general strike is useful only as a bogy, as a threat. They confess that it is impracticable as a means of accomplishing the ends of labor, because, while it would derange all the mechanism of a civilized community, and would inflict great inconvenience and no little suffering upon pretty much everybody, the severest hardships would fall upon the wage earners, because with their average small accumulations they would soonest feel the pinch of want and hunger. The general strike is as preposterous as the general lockout. The theory that men and women who work with their hands for a weekly or daily wage constitute a distinct class of human society, a class that can dissociate itself from all other classes and take hostile action against them, is false and absurd.

Possibly Mr. MURPHY and his associates believe that they could coerce the City of Philadelphia into purchasing peace with them by compelling the traction company to grant the demands of its striking men. Experience shows that violence is the instrument of coercion relied upon by strikers. If Mr. MURPHY's federated unions all go out they may imagine that they will have force enough to paralyze the arm of authority and to put the city at their mercy. Do they forget that this would constitute an insurrection which, on application from the Legislature or the Governor of the State, the United States, under its obligation to guarantee a republican form of government to each State, would send Federal troops to put down? All questions of right or wrong, of justice or injustice between the traction company and its men would, necessarily, be put aside the moment the general strike order was obeyed. The thing of first consequence, then, would be to protect life and property, to insure the public peace, and to put down disorder. The means would be at hand to accomplish those ends. They will always be at hand.

THE IRISH GOVERNMENT.

Mr. JOHN REDMOND is reported, in a dispatch to The World, to have said on Monday night:

> If the Ministers had made last Monday the speeches they made to-day all the troubles of the past week would have been obviated. The Government has now adopted a policy which it should have adopted at the outset, and the refusal to adopt it then was incredibly bad tactics.

This confirms the opinion we expressed when the result of the general elections in England became plain, that Mr. ASQUITH's Government would be dependent for its existence upon the votes of the Irish Nationalists, who practically would dictate its course. To a considerable extent the so-called Liberal Government would be an Irish Government. Certainly this is not said in criticism, and no one can refuse the tribute of admiration to the courage, skill, and resource shown by the Irish leader and his party. He has taken advantage of a mixed situation in English politics; he has acquired the balance of power; he has outgeneraled the leaders of the Liberals at every point, and accomplished the supreme feat in diplomacy and politics by using them when they thought they were using him.

At the opening of the canvass in January Mr. ASQUITH made a sweeping promise as to home rule. This had the effect—which was desired if not intended—of securing the Irish vote in a number of English constituencies. Thereupon the Liberal Parliamentary "whip" issued a statement substantially explaining away the promise, and intimating that it bound the party to nothing definite and to nothing at all until English questions had been disposed of. This statement helped to retain a good many Liberal votes which would have been lost on the plain issue of immediate action on home rule. Mr. REDMOND, probably realizing the value of these votes, made no objection. The elections over, Mr. ASQUITH proceeded in the spirit of this later policy to frame a programme that put the budget to the fore and adjourned the question of the Lords to a "more convenient season." Then Mr. REDMOND showed his nerve and his power. Starting with the proposition that there can be no home rule until the House of Lords is adequately curbed, he declared that the Government must take up the question of the Lords first, and must take it up, not to reform the House of Lords, but to transform it into a practically powerless body, or the Irish would promptly defeat them. Mr. ASQUITH, puzzled, dazed, and desperate, spent a week with the Cabinet in almost continuous session. To prod his hesitant and wavering judgment, Mr. REDMOND defeated one of the new members of the Government at a by-election by the open opposition of the Irish voters, who responded with the precision of trained soldiers to the word of command. Finally Mr. ASQUITH surrendered. For him it is a humiliation; for Mr. REDMOND and his party it is a striking and brilliant victory; what it will be for the United Kingdom and its people remains to be seen.

Clearly there will have to be new elections in a few months. The resolutions stripping the House of Lords of their power will, of course, be rejected by them. A bill to the same effect would have the same fate. If the King be asked to create enough new Liberal Lords to carry the bill it is inconceivable that he would do so without a clear and decisive vote of the people demanding it. It will be the purpose and desire of Mr. ASQUITH and his Government to go to the country on the naked issue of curbing the Lords. It is very doubtful if they will be allowed to do that. The Irish question will necessarily be involved, since it is the Irish who have forced the issue of the Lords, and have done so avowedly in the interest of home rule. Voters cannot ignore this issue or vote solidly on the former. It is very doubtful if a majority could be got for crippling instead of deforming, or for crippling before reforming, the Upper Chamber. It is still more doubtful if a majority can be got for this measure as a means of securing home rule. On the other hand, the Opposition is no more limited than the Government forces, and will be likely to press the issue of protection even more strenuously in the next election than in the last. The only certainty is that our English friends are bound to have a very exciting and troubled Summer.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Returning from the Hunt. With the departure of Mr. ROOSEVELT from Gondokoro for Khartoum comes the announcement that "the African scientific expedition under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution has been brought to a close." More than that, however, would be required to make any of us feel—of course knowing is a different matter—that the thing ended is anything more or less than a hunt for big game, successfully led by the ex-President. That is because his personality is always the most interesting feature of any enterprise or happening of which he is a part, making all the other features subsidiary and incidental.

Mr. ROOSEVELT has himself tried his best to emphasize the scientific side of his African journey, by saying again and again in his published articles that neither he nor the other members of his party have shot any animal, not needed for food, which could not properly be called a "specimen" and be considered worthy of preservation. This is doubtless true, but one cannot escape the conviction that Mr. ROOSEVELT is just a little bit more of a hunter than of a "faunal naturalist," and that he hasn't been spending his time and his money merely, or even very largely, for the sake of making the Smithsonian's collection of African animals larger and better than that possessed by any other museum in the world.

Indeed, he frankly confesses that he has enjoyed himself hugely, and, in spite of the new but rapidly growing disfavor with which hunting for sport has come to be regarded, we cannot ourselves see any particular reason why he should deny the survival in him to a greater degree than in some other people of an instinct and a capacity which have done as much as any others to make men the masters of the earth. To nobody except a morbid and fanatical few does he need a better excuse than he has for what he has done, and every normal man and boy will envy him the adventures, the risks, and the hardships of this remarkable hunt.

Remarkable it certainly has been; perhaps none other in all the annals of the chase compares with it. Only a Roosevelt could have carried the thing out on the scale he did and have attained just the same results. It is easy to say that he might have employed his time to better advantage, but it would be hard to prove the assertion, and one may be sure that he has done more than kill several hundred animals and learned more than how to shoot them.

Compulsion Seems Undesirable. Among the pending bills at Albany is one to make the railway companies resume the once common but now almost abandoned custom of advertising their time tables in the newspapers of every town through which they pass. There would, of course, be a certain advantage for ourselves in the passage of such a law, and we understand the yearning on the part of the country papers, which has doubtless inspired its introduction and advocacy in the Legislature, but as sternly virtuous journalists we are obliged to admit, however sorrowfully, that there is no more reason for compelling the railways to advertise than there is for bringing like pressure on other corporations, or, for that matter, on any private citizen.

We have, to be sure, something between an impression and a belief that it would pay the railway companies to do more newspaper advertising than is their present habit, and to make more of it a daily presentation of the principal features of their time tables. That this would cause anybody to indulge in any extra traveling does not seem probable, but unquestionably it would serve the public convenience to a very appreciable degree. The matter, however, is one for the railways to consider and decide for themselves, and if they are mistaken in thinking that it would not pay to give cash for the space they once could usually get for passes, they will have to bear the consequences.

It is to be feared that in other days the railways only too often bought more than space for their passes—that in too many cases they also bought what to the uninitiate seemed a mysterious leniency of comment on accidents and an even more mysterious leaning toward the railway side of every controversy. Certainly the passage of the anti-pass law was followed by the dawning of new light on many a country editor and a few urban ones, and while the readers of their papers missed the familiar time tables in the accustomed columns, on the whole they gained more than they lost by the change.

Be that as it may, the Time Table bill does not commend itself to us as legislation of a desirable kind. That it is a "strike bill" we have no reason for saying or suspecting, but it is obviously a bill that could be used for striking purposes if there were any statesmen left in Albany who were given to that form of exercise, and therefore it would be just as well to let it die in some convenient committee.

Hatpins as Weapons. Several months ago we quoted a New York woman often obliged to be out late at night as saying that she had found the holding of a long hatpin casually but conspicuously in her hand an effective means of cooling the ardor of overenterprising aspirants for adventure. We had supposed the expedient original with and peculiar to our amiable but courageous informant. From Chicago, however, comes the news that the Aldermen there have been petitioned by the local fair sex not to pass any ordinance depriving women of their hatpins or limiting the length of those weapons, the petitioners declaring that to do so would be to deprive their present bearers of needed protection.

This indicates that the use of the hatpin for a double purpose is widely extended, and also accounts for what had seemed to be the needless prolongation and fierce acuity of those accoutrements. But have they ever been employed as a means of defense? Not infrequently they have figured in battles out of which policemen came more or less severely punctured, but that is a different matter and not a good argument for the long hatpin.

Perhaps their legitimate use is wholly as a warning. Whether it justifies the constant endangering of the general and innocent public is a question we do not feel competent to decide. Anyhow, they are not concealed weapons, and that fact apparently renders them permissible under the law.

METCHNIKOFF AND DARWIN.

Former's Statements Weaken the Theories of Evolutionary Development.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Far be it from me to take such a famous man as Prof. Metchnikoff to account for statements he is reported to have made in a speech at Stuttgart, but in your last Sunday's paper you quote him at great length (at least half a page) as proving that the great dread of humanity is death, and that death itself is usually caused by poisons contained within the body. I have no quarrel with these statements—no one denies them—but it seems to me that the supporters of Darwinism should disclaim some of the arguments he would borrow from their theory, for his foolish statements certainly weaken their position.

For instance, his argument to prove the existence of a blood relationship between man and chimpanzees proves that these apes are unrelated to other apes. His conclusion from the common liability of infants and young chimpanzees to contagion of cholera while other apes are immune proves too much.

In another declaration his assurance undermines his credibility and power of convincing. He confidently declares that "such links between man and apes are not so easily found, for their bones are buried deep in the ground and many of them most likely in remote places, where people have hardly begun to search for the remains of long-dead creatures." Such an arbitrary declaration reminds one of Jules Verne.

Again, he says:

"The facts gathered by Dr. Lane and other surgeons substantiate thoroughly the opinion that man can do without his large intestine, consequently that this organ is really superfluous." Where is his logic? Because a man can get along with only one eye does not mean that a second is really superfluous.

A little further on he is quoted as declaring (when speaking of Mobius): "Thus he leads us into metaphysics, with which science can have nothing in common." What about Truth? Are they not both seeking Truth? Is it because one deals with concepts and the other with material realities in their pursuit of a common goal that he says they can have nothing in common?

It would require but a review of the history of physiology to disprove his assertion that "organs and arrangements which are essential to animals have become entirely superfluous to the more perfected human being." In the face of the continual stream of discoveries of the functions of various supposedly useless organs, he can be justly accused of being behind the times. It is the opinion of the most eminent physiologists to-day that nothing in the human body is superfluous, Prof. Metchnikoff to the contrary, notwithstanding, though they have not discovered as yet the peculiar functions and uses of all bodily organs.

But apart from all this, how does he account for man's rationality, for his ability to form universal concepts, that great faculty which distinguishes him from all other animals?

One of Prof. Metchnikoff's own statements is enough to refute his whole thesis on the origin of man. "It remains remarkable," he says, "that man, a being of animal origin, who has brought into the world certain evil qualities, should have acquired the consciousness of death as a new quality owing to his mental development." It does not occur to Prof. Metchnikoff that this is foresight, a quality peculiar to rational beings. His arguments in support of Darwinism are unhappily selected, and but weaken a theory that can ill afford such an unskillful defense.

PATTEN AND ARISTOCRACY.

Would Reduce All to a Question of Income in America.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

That was indeed an extraordinary article which appeared in the Sunday TIMES from the pen of Dr. Simon N. Patten. So "aristocratic notions are impossible for people of less than $5,000 a year?" We have long been called by Europeans a Nation of dollar worshippers, but I think this is the frankest statement I have yet read that only dollars constitute an American aristocracy. Are we to believe that any one with a large enough income becomes an aristocrat at once, and by virtue of that income, no matter how ignorant, uncultured, and boorish he may be, no matter how totally lacking in the first instincts of good breeding? And conversely, the descendant of one of the oldest families in America, one whose forefathers have held the most honored positions in the Republic, have been distinguished for intellect, social ease, and charm of manner, as well as noble qualities, must not forsooth style himself a gentleman, an aristocrat, should his income be less than the sum arbitrarily established by Dr. Patten.

Then, too, we must apparently adopt a sliding scale. No longer may one say: "Once a gentleman (for what else does the term aristocrat rightly interpreted signify?) always a gentleman, but to-day an aristocrat, to-morrow if business reverses are met with, no longer one."

If we are to be classed in this way let us prate no more of Republican doctrines. Let us come out frankly and say the American aristocracy is quite as foreigners have frequently asserted, one of dollars alone. Nothing else counts, not culture, refinement, ability, distinction in the arts and letters, nothing but the ability to accumulate or the luck to inherit an income of the stipulated size. Then why set the sum at not less than $5,000? Let us boldly assert that none but millionaires, or even multi-millionaires, are aristocrats in America.

QUESTION OF PRODUCTION.

While Farms Are Being Deserted Civil Employes Increase in Number.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The laws of supply and demand in establishing prices are inexorable. That demand has overtaken supply is proved by the advances in prices. What are the causes? Permit me to call attention to two very potent ones.

First—Any one who has traveled through the farming regions of the Eastern States has seen thousands of farm houses and barns untenanted and going to ruin, and if he has visited the homes of those who remain on the farms he has found mostly old men. Those who have youth and vigor and enterprise have left the farms and have gone into the cities. All cities have rapidly increased in population, while the country districts have as rapidly declined. In many localities the old of native-born stock have disappeared and the farms have passed into the hands of men of foreign birth. Thousands of farms which formerly supported old-fashioned families and sent to market a large surplus are now altogether idle or furnish a meagre living for an impoverished family. This condition of demoralization in the farming regions is yearly growing worse and will continue until the price of food becomes so high as to induce the able-bodied men to return to farm production.

Second—The civil employes in the country, including those in the employ of the United States, of the State Government, of counties, and of cities and towns number not far from two millions, and their aggregate salaries are not far from two thousand millions of dollars. These figures are exclusive of the cost of maintenance of the army and navy, and that the estimate will be borne out by the forthcoming census I have no doubt. The annual increase both in salaries and in the number of employes is something over 10 per cent. Here is an army of civil employes exceeding in number and cost of maintenance the armies engaged in the civil war. None of them are producers, but their support, as are all Government expenses of every kind, is a burden on production. If one-half of the army, as under proper conditions it might be, were transferred to the ranks of the producers, there would be no need of the Investigation Committee chosen by the Senate.

Senator Lodge declares that this committee will deal only with facts. If the facts above given receive consideration it is hardly to be expected that the cause of the depletion of the farms or the increase in the civil service will be traced by the committee to its proper source, although there are many who will not fail to perceive that the relation of the protective tariff to the conditions above described is that of cause and effect.

Colbert, Minister of Finance to Louis XIV., said that the true art of taxation is to pluck the geese with the least amount of squawking. The geese in this country are being so thoroughly plucked that their squawking is heard all over the country.

NEGLECTED CHILDREN.

Hebrew Educational Society Finds Comparatively Little Has Been Done.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The very able letter signed by Lurana W. Sheldon which appeared on your editorial page to-day, and in which attention is called to the want of religious instruction for the children in the Borough of Brooklyn, urges me to bring to your attention one of the more hopeful phases of the problem.

What I refer to is the result of the experience of the Hebrew Educational Society, located in Brownsville, a congested portion of the Twenty-sixth Ward of Brooklyn, the residents of which are mainly Jewish people of foreign birth or parentage. A Sabbath school conducted on Saturday mornings by this organization has an enrollment of more than 1,200 children, and an attendance per session of from 700 to 900 pupils. The "hopeful phase" that I have reference to is that all these Jewish children come to the Sabbath school of their own accord, and because they are desirous of gaining a knowledge of the Bible and the tenets of their religion. The instructors of these children are earnest-minded young men and young women of the same neighborhood who are sufficiently altruistic to give their time and energies without remuneration for this purpose. It must be confessed, however, that there are thousands of children in this same section who cannot be accommodated in the Sabbath school of the Hebrew Educational Society. This does not necessarily imply that all the Brownsville children who cannot be taken into our Sabbath school do not receive any moral or religious instruction, but the ignorance of our own pupils when they first come to us, regarding ethics in general and their religion in particular, shows how very little, comparatively, is being done along such lines. The children eagerly take advantage of the instruction when offered, but such opportunities are far fewer than the actual demand for them.

CURIOSITIES OF EDUCATION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the dim but not so very distant past, and before education became the "science" it is now said to be, there were no doubt various faults—grave faults, at that—connected with the business of teaching the young idea how to shoot in our public schools, but my memory does not bring back to me such facts as the following, in an age when ethics is formally listed in the syllabus of subjects to be taught. These curiosities of education are that a Principal of a school may safely make affidavit that he is not an employe of the city; this in order to serve as Condemnation Commissioner; any number of Principals, in order to win athletic trophies for "their" schools, certifying that pupils are eligible to enter the competitions when the rules distinctly bar them out; some more Principals, less culpable indeed, but not free from blame, relinquishing the scrutiny of candidates for games to "instructors" willing to win glory for "their" schools at the sacrifice of honesty; and, if it be possible to add a cap to such an ignoble climax, teachers advanced to Principalships whose lingual defects have to be hidden by appointing them to schools in the immigrant districts to "Americanize" the youthful denizens thereof. Examinations now include an oral portion, so that the examiners may have auricular evidence that the applicant can speak English correctly.

Surely this is a sorry showing years and years after education became a science—nor does the above exhaust the list of extraordinary phases of the science, not by any means.

THE SOUTHERN GENTLEMAN.

The fine old Southern gentleman
Is something good to know;
Is something in whose courtly ways
All men should want to go.

His is the grace of gentleness,
The deference which pays
A pleasing tribute to mankind
In all his walks and ways.

His is the natural courtliness
Which does not think it mean
And small for any man to bow
To woman as his queen.

His is the fearless manliness,
The head, the heart, the hand,
Which is not slow to prove the might
That all men understand.

But, say, the Southern gentleman,
The kind we like to know,
Is not the kind that struts around
And loudly tells us so.

ALL CITY STREETS IN NEED OF REPAIR

Borough President Confronted by a Big Problem to Get Them in Shape.

WINTER PARTLY TO BLAME

Many Pitfalls in the Asphalt, Some of Them Left by the Late Administration.

The departure of the Winter of 1910 has left to Borough President McAneny about as stiff a task in the way of street repairs as ever confronted a Borough President under similar conditions. Memory has to run back over a good many seasons to recall a time when the asphalted streets offered as many pitfalls to the unwary driver and as many jolts to the speeding taxicab as they do at the present time.

Looking from The Times Building up and down Broadway and Seventh Avenue and east and west in Forty-second Street, the pavement appears fairly dotted with big holes, and the same observation may be made from almost any building standing at a junction of important thoroughfares.

The condition has resulted in part from an inheritance from the last administration and in part from the severity of the Winter. This latter fact made it impossible for work to be kept under way to any appreciable extent during January and February, inasmuch as asphalt can only be laid when the temperature is above freezing point and the streets are comparatively dry.

It will probably be several weeks more before New Yorkers get any noticeable relief from the discomforts of urban travelers, and if another snow storm comes along the period of street disrepair may be even further prolonged.

Mr. McAneny, however, is pushing the work of repair as fast as conditions allow him. The whole question of street repair is one of those which the new administration found in a very much upset condition when it took office. There are 450 miles of streets in the city, and of these about 300 miles are asphalted.

When it comes to making any repairs the work has to be done under one of four different classifications. Either the city has to make the repairs on its own account, or contractors are required to make them under existing contract, or the city has to make them in cases where the contractors have thrown up their contracts, or else the repairs are to be made by railroads operating surface lines.

All sorts of complications grow out of this situation. At the present time Mr. McAneny is having a detailed inspection made of every yard of asphalted street in Manhattan, and will have in his possession in the course of a week or so charts showing the exact condition of the asphalt throughout the island.

Meantime the work of repair in any given locality depends on the class in which the street in question comes, as outlined, and this very classification may operate considerably to retard the repair work. Consequently the members of the present administration are strongly of the belief that hereafter the city should contract for the construction of the streets alone and then assume the responsibility for repairs on its own hook.

In advance of the receipt of the chart the Borough President's office sent out thirty gangs of repair men with equipment to make a start on the streets where the city was in a position to go ahead with the repair work itself. Work on some sections of Fifth and Seventh Avenues has been done, and more men are being put on as fast as circumstances allow.

In the case of streets where contracts in force bind the contractors to make the repairs the city has one of two courses to follow. It may prod the contractor to hurry the work along, or, failing to discover that it is started within a specified time after notification of the contractors, the city itself may make the repairs and collect from the contractors through legal action. Some of the work that the repair gangs are now doing is of this order.

The request of Mr. McAneny on Jan. 29 that the Aldermen grant him an issue of $100,000 special revenue bonds for street repair was intended to provide funds for repairing streets where contractors had thrown up their contracts and left the whole situation for the city to handle.

In such cases the city, out of special funds, has to make the repairs, but it cannot proceed against the contractors for recovery of the cost until the expiration of the contracts, which in some instances run until 1914. The Aldermen cut the issue of special revenue bonds from $100,000 to $50,000, and the Board of Estimate voted the amount at its meeting last Friday.

Bids were at once called for, and as soon as the time for legal advertisement has expired the work will be begun on these streets and pushed as rapidly as possible. Streets in this category include parts of Forty-second Street, parts of Broadway at Times Square, and many other important thoroughfares.

The receiverships of the surface railways and consequent pleas of poverty by these corporations have operated to delay their attending to their obligations in the matter of street repair. The roads are obliged under their charters to keep in repair the space between the tracks and two feet of roadway on either side, and several of them have been under steady prodding from the city authorities ever since the first of the year.

In several cases legal complications have arisen as to what corporation might be responsible for the street repairs. Madison Avenue has suffered on this account, for the surface road there belongs to the New York & Harlem Railroad and is leased to the Metropolitan Street Railway. The receivers of the Metropolitan have contended that the obligation of street repair rested upon the lesser company, and the New York & Harlem has urged that the lessee should do the work.

RARE AUTOGRAPHS AT AUCTION

One by Michelangelo Fetches $170—Washington Slave Document.

The autograph receipt for 1,600 ducats of gold by Michelangelo, in part payment for his work on the tomb of Pope Julius II., brought $170 at Anderson's yesterday. It is dated Rome, June 7, 1513, and was described in THE TIMES recently. A Frederick County land survey in George Washington's handwriting, Oct. 22, 1750, went for $74. A document dividing the slaves of the deceased Major Laurence Washington among his widow and his brothers, Augustine and George Washington, Dec. 10, 1754, fetched $76, and a damaged letter of George Washington, Morristown, Jan. 29, 1777, to Major Gen. Henry Knox, realized $61. An affectionate letter of Benedict Arnold, June 13, 1770, to his first wife sold for $29. A four-page letter of Edward FitzGerald of Omar Khayyam fame to Joseph Fletcher, his boatman, on the evils of intemperance brought $16.

A civil war leter of U. S. Grant, City Point, Va., March 12, 1865, to Secretary of War Stanton went for $32. Two early Abraham Lincoln legal documents, dated 1844 and 1853, sold, respectively, for $37 and $29. One of the interesting items in the collection was the signature of Thomas Lynch, signer of the Declaration of Independence, cut from a document. As Lynch is the rarest of all the signers, it was thought that more than $100 would be realized for the signature, but several collectors present doubted its genuineness, and, although other collectors said it was all right, it brought only $11. An original MS. of Percy B. Shelley, entitled "A Literary Curiosity," went for $26.

A letter of Joshua Hett Smith, the American Tory who acted as an intermediary between Benedict Arnold and Major John André, realized $31. A letter of Major Gen. Nathaniel Greene, March 13, 1779, to Jeremiah Wadsworth sold for $12; a letter of Benjamin Harrison for $14; a MS. page of Washington Irving's "Life of George Washington," $10, and a letter from Louis XIV. of France, June 17, 1687, to the Governor of Canada, countersigned by Colbert, $13.

COLLIER MATINEE FOR ACTORS' FUND

Programme Fixes Responsibility for "A Lucky Star" on Several Not Hitherto Mentioned.

SOME INTERPOLATED LINES

With Allusions That Professionals Enjoyed—First of a Series of Similar Matinees.

In pursuance of a plan for a series of professional matinées in aid of the Actors' Fund, William Collier gave the first one yesterday at the Hudson, which, as some one remarked, was as it should be, considering that he is "A Lucky Star." Also it may be mentioned for the benefit of non-professionals and non-theatregoers, if there are any such in New York besides the Rev. Dr. Haldeman, that the point of the jest is in the name of Mr. Collier's play.

There were many professionals present, just nine hundred and four dollars' worth, to quote the box office figures, which didn't fill the house, of course, but this has been a hard Winter for many actors, and consequently some of them stayed away. However, almost everybody who is working on Broadway came up with the price of a ticket, and several others, including Ethel Barrymore, Maxine Elliott, Blanche Ring, and Billie Burke, had boxes from which to view the play and incidentally show the proper spirit toward "the cause."

Everybody volunteered their services for the afternoon except the orchestra, which, as it didn't volunteer, was conspicuous by its absence. However, who cares at a professional matinée, where everybody is too busy looking at everybody else during the entr-actes, and talking about them, to pay any attention to the music anyway? And besides the array of millinery and early advance creations for the Spring was a symphony in itself.

Mr. William Collier, as is well known, is not averse under ordinary circumstances to adding his own lines to an author's manuscript, and on an occasion of this kind it wasn't the least strain on him to put in a few little extra ones to please the professional family. For instance, in the first act where he is gathering up his laundry preparatory to departing from the motor boat, the discovery of a small-sized collar, brought the remark "This isn't mine; it's Alf Hayman's." And when the first of the rather husky-looking stage aunts appeared he greeted her as "Mme. X." Furthermore, when Marjorie Woods, reading her regular lines, wanted to know whether she was married or single, the comedian, with an upward glance at a box where a very happy looking young man sat, started to say, "Well, Joe told me," but laughter again interrupted.

The actors laughed, too, when he looked dubiously at a can of alleged marmalade, remarking that it was a "prop," and they went into a paroxysm when in an allusion by the waiter to "kartoffel" with a broad expansive gesture, he insisted "that's enough for Tom Wise." At the end of the second act, with a speech in prospect from the star, the stage manager shouted "strike," and the carpenters proceeded to remove the scenery, necessitating a postponement of remarks until Mr. Collier himself had carried off a large property tree. Then he expressed his "thanks to everybody except the orchestra," and said how glad he was that his was the first benefit, as he could now attend all the others without worrying about when his time would come.

Here is the programme, which was printed with trimmings in Dutch on cream vellum, in old English, looked very imposing, and is different enough from the regular house bill to be interesting to those who have seen the play and some who haven't:

RUSSIAN DANCERS IN AMAZING FEATS

Anna Pavlowa and Michael Mordkine the Feature at Metropolitan Fund Benefit.

WHIRL TO WILD MUSIC

Divertissement Ends with Girl, Supported by Man, Flying Through Air, Circling His Body Round and Round.

The second appearance at the Metropolitan Opera House of the two Russian dancers, Anna Pavlowa and Michael Mordkine, was undoubtedly the feature of the performance which was given there last night for the benefit of the pension and endowment fund of that institution. The auditorium was packed for the occasion, and the total receipts were somewhere in the neighborhood of $15,000.

Very late in the evening before these two dancers had appeared in Delibes's ballet "Coppelia." Last night they appeared alone without the assistance of the somewhat ragged corps de ballet of the Metropolitan Opera House in two divertissements, which were so entirely different from anything they had done in "Coppelia" that any one who had seen their previous performance would have had difficulty in recognizing them.

Such dancing has not been seen in New York in recent years, and last night's audience manifested its feeling as heartily as had that of Monday evening.

Early in the evening the curtains parted on a woodland scene which left a large open space on the stage. The orchestra played an adagio of Bleicham's. First Mordkine darted on to the scene dressed as a savage. Pavlowa followed him. The two danced together and then alone. Mordkine whirled for long seconds on one foot, with the other foot pointed at right angles from his body. He did another dance, in which he shot arrows from a huge bow behind his shoulder. The celerity, the grace, the rhythm of his terpsichorean feats were indescribable in their effect.

Pavlowa twirled on her toes. With her left toe pointed out behind her, maintaining her body poised to form a straight line with it, she lept backward step by step on her right foot. She swooped into the air like a bird and floated down. She never dropped. At times she seemed to defy the laws of gravitation. The divertisement ended with Pavlowa, supported by Mordkin, flying through the air, circling his body around and around. The curtain fell. The applause was deafening. Again and again the two were called before the footlights.

Later in the evening the two danced again to music from a ballet of Glazourow's. This special divertissement was called "Autumn." The music was gay and furious in its rhythm. The two in Greek draperies dashed about the stage, veiled in a background of floating gauze. The music became wilder and wilder, and wilder and wilder grew the pace of the two. The Bachanalian finale, in which Pavlowa was finally swept to the earth held the audience in tense silence for a moment after it was over, and then the applause broke out again. The curtain calls after this dance was innumerable.

The performance last night, like the one of the evening before, was very long. It commenced with the first act of "Pagliacci," in which Mme. Destinn and Messrs. Caruso, Amato, Bada, and Gilly appeared. Mr. Tango conducted. The fourth act of "Trovatore" was sung by Mesdames Gadski and Homer and Messrs. Martin, Gilly, and Audisio. In the second act of "Tosca" Miss Farrar and Messrs. Jadlowker, Scotti, Bada, and Bégué appeared. The third act of "La Gioconda" was sung by Mesdames Noria and Meltschik and Messrs. Caruso, Amato, and de Segurola. Mr. Toscanini conducted, and the corps de ballet danced the "Dance of the Hours."

PRESIDENT OBALDIA DEAD.

Succumbs to Heart Disease After an Illness of Only a Few Days.

PANAMA, March 1.—José Domingo de Obaldia, President of Panama, died of heart disease this afternoon. He had been ill only since last Friday. Angina pectoris was the immediate cause of death.

Dr. Carlos A. Mendoza, First Vice President, assumed the Presidency soon after the death of President Obaldia. Three Vice Presidents of Panama were elected in 1908. The First Vice President, J. A. Arango, died on May 10, 1909, also of heart disease. His place was taken by Mendoza, Second Vice President. J. M. Lambert, elected Third Vice President, became Second Vice President, and now is First Vice President.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—News of the death of President Obaldia was received at the Panama Legation here within five minutes after the Chargé d'Affaires had received a cablegram direct from Mme. Obaldia saying that her husband was improved in health and on the road to recovery.

Mme. Obaldia's cablegram was in reply to messages of encouragement sent from the legation yesterday.

When President Taft learned of the death of President Obaldia he sent the following message of sympathy to the widow:

> Mrs. Taft and I extend to you our sincere sympathy in your great loss. The friendship between us and your good husband, begun a number of years ago, has continued down to the present time, and the news of his death comes with a great shock. He was a true patriot, an impartial administrator, a gentleman of the highest courage, character, and culture, a charming companion, and a constant friend. May the memory of his virtues sustain you in your deep sorrow.

No trouble whatever is expected in Panama, it was declared here to-night by those familiar with present conditions in that country, as a result of the death of the President. Word was received at the legation here to-night that Dr. Mendoza had already declared himself in charge of the Government, which he will conduct until the Assembly is convoked in September.

José Domingo de Obaldia was born at David, Department of Panama, Colombia, about sixty-three years ago. His father was a well-to-do planter and was President of Colombia from 1854 to 1857. Young Obaldia, after a college education, took a prominent part in the politics of Colombia. This was before the establishment of the republic of Panama.

Señor Obaldia was a Conservative in politics, and in 1893 was elected to the Senate of Colombia from the Department of Panama. In that body he was an ardent advocate of the Hay-Herran treaty, which favored the construction of the Panama Canal. He was the only Senator who favored this treaty when it was first submitted, and made a single-handed fight for its approval. He was finally successful.

As a reward for his services in this matter Obaldia was appointed Governor of the Department of Panama by President Marroquin of Colombia. He was serving in that capacity when Panama declared its independence in 1903. Señor Obaldia did not return to Colombia, but became interested in the politics of Panama and became a citizen of that republic. Obaldia was an ardent supporter of Amador for the Presidency of Panama, and after the latter was installed in office he appointed Obaldia Minister to the United States.

On the approaching retirement of Dr. Amador from the Presidency in 1908 Obaldia was the leading candidate to succeed him. He was opposed by Ricardo Arias, and for months before the election there were disturbances throughout the republic. To insure a peaceful election President Roosevelt, acting by request, sent several hundred United States marines to Panama. The supporters of Arias withdrew their candidate and Obaldia was elected almost unanimously.

Señor Obaldia took office in October, 1908. He was one of the richest men in Panama, and his plantations were the largest in the republic.

MACDONALD—CARROLL.

THE FLONZALEY QUARTET.

Music by Mozart, San Martini, and Schumann at the Last Concert.

Interest in the playing of the Flonzaley Quartet has steadily increased in New York, and their last concert was given last evening in Mendelssohn Hall before one of the largest audiences they have ever had here. And this is a cause for congratulation; for they are an important addition to the musical activities of New York, an organization of the highest aims and accomplishment and with a method and style all their own. Recognition is due them in the fullest measure.

Their programme last evening consisted of Mozart's C major quartet, a trio sonata for two violins and 'cello, by Giuseppe San Martini, and Schumann's A minor quartet. The trio sonata is one of those eighteenth century compositions that the members of the Flonzaley organization have shown so much interest in unearthing, and which have so well repaid the trouble. This is a charming work of which the slow middle movement is of remarkable beauty and poignancy of expression. In this, as well as in the two quartets, there was beautiful ensemble playing. Mozart's received a performance at once warm and full of sentiment, and beautifully clear, marked by the urbane gayety that is essentially Mozart's. In Schumann's the spirit of fiery and dreamy romance brooded over the music, and there was a signal differentiation in the quality of the two works in the performance.

While abroad Mr. Huffman will view several French and German productions with the hope of finding something suitable for this country.

TRINITY BELL RINGER DEAD.

Albert Meislahn Played the Chimes for Half a Century.

Albert Meislahn, for half a century ringer of the chimes of old Trinity, died of apoplexy at his country home in Madison, N. J., on Monday. To-morrow morning at 9:30 o'clock the historic bells will be tolled for the bell ringer and the funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity.

Mr. Meislahn was born in the shadow of the old Trinity spire 62 years ago. As a lad he delighted to climb up to the belfry, then the highest point in that district, to help Mr. Ayliffe, the official bell ringer, as an enthusiastic though unpaid assistant.

From his twelfth year until his retirement last June he climbed the eighty-eight steps to the keyboard more than 10,000 times. When the present King of England visited this country in the early sixties Mr. Meislahn assisted Mr. Ayliffe in playing the chimes, and later, when Gen. Hancock and Gen. Grant were being laid to rest, he tolled the funeral bells. He made the bells ring out also at the unveiling of the Statue of Liberty, the opening of the Brooklyn Bridge, Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee, and the homecoming of Admiral Dewey. As the steamship Hamburg passed abreast of Trinity bearing Col. Roosevelt toward his African hunt a year ago Mr. Meislahn played "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah, Pilgrim to a Foreign Land."

For many years Mr. Meislahn was a clerk in the German-American Bank, and later he was paying teller in the Irving National Bank.

BARRIE SHOWS 2 NEW PLAYS.

"The Twelve Pounds" Is a Valuable Contribution to Divorce Discussion.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 1.—J. M. Barrie's hand has lost none of its cunning. Two new works by the author of "What Every Woman Knows" were produced to-night as part of a triple bill presented by Charles Frohman at his new repertory theatre. One of them, called "The Twelve Pounds," looks as if it will do the round of the world, and should make an early appearance in America. It is a valuable contribution to the divorce discussion which is now engaging British attention, and though presented as a comedy, it goes deep into that question of compatibility of temperament underlying the marital relationship. The audience was in screams of laughter throughout the piece, but there was a sob behind most of the screams.

In the other Barrie piece, "Old Friends," the author treated the rather grewsome subject of craving for drink inherited by a young girl from her father.

George Menedithee's unfinished comedy, "The Sentimentalists," completed an extremely interesting bill, and altogether the evening enhanced the success of Frohman's London repertory theatre.

MAN'S supremacy was once decided by his physical prowess—his ability to best his enemies by the biggest muscles—the strongest teeth—the sharpest claws.

It's the man of nervous strength who leads the procession to-day. It's a question of brain NOT brawn. But the struggle for leadership is more aggressive—requires more nerve force and often gets the best of Nature.

JOXYL

Decorated Wood Panels

YOU CAN reproduce the most elaborate, beautiful and original inlay effects by the Joxyl treatment at a very moderate cost. Joxyl panels are not susceptible to the mal-effects of inlaid work due to dampness or unequal heat.

The Joxyl treatment opens the pores of wood or other fibrous materials, fixes the color designs beneath the surface and then closes the pores, imprisoning the colors indestructibly.

The treated surface is hardened, made capable of taking high and uniform polish, durable, waterproof, and impervious to heat or cold. Even fireproof materials will take Joxyl treatment.

Record—2:32:39 1-5. H. St. Yves. Indoor Record—Dorando, 2:44:20 2-5.

In one of the most sensational Marathon races ever seen in this country, Thure Johansen, the youthful champion long-distance runner of Sweden, defeated Jim Crowley, formerly of the Irish-American Athletic Club, and Hans Holmer of Quebec at the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory last night. Johansen established a new indoor record, going the long distance in 2:36:55 1-5, which is far better than any of the performances made in the indoor runs here during the past few seasons.

The early part of the race was a duel between Crowley and Holmer, who battled with each other at every lap, hitting up such a terrific gait that Johansen was left far behind. When, after about twenty miles, the two other runners were pretty well exhausted from their long grind, with occasional sprints, Johansen came up from behind, and with a steady, powerful stride raced ahead until he killed off his two opponents. Holmer quit at the twentieth mile, 4½ laps behind, and Crowley fell back lap after lap until he finished 8½ laps behind the Swedish champion.

It was Johansen's first appearance here. He holds the Marathon championship in Sweden and was a dark horse in last night's race. He was trained by Ernie Hjertberg.

Crowley got the pole at the start, with Holmer next to him and Johansen on the outside. The Irishman jumped into the lead when "Mel" Sheppard fired the starter's pistol. Johansen took second place, with Holmer trailing close behind. Crowley started with a strong, steady stride which gave his supporters much confidence. After the first half mile Holmer passed Johansen, and the three runners stayed close together. Holmer imitated Crowley's style of running and jogged along in unison with him. Crowley led at the first mile, being timed in 4:47 2-5, with Holmer and Johansen close behind. The Marathoners trotted along in this order until the second mile, when Crowley let out a bit, closely followed by Holmer. Crowley was timed for the second mile in 11:29 2-5, with Holmer at his heels and the Swedish champion thirty yards in the rear. With Crowley and Holmer alternating in the lead the third mile was passed in 17:08. Johansen was forty yards in the rear.

For the first five miles Crowley persistently stayed in first place, and several times Holmer tried to sprint ahead of him, but each time the Irishman jumped forward and kept in front. Crowley ran the five miles in 28:36, with Holmer at his elbow, and Johansen half a lap in the rear. Crowley and Holmer kept up a fast clip, and in 6½ miles lapped Johansen. The race up to this point was a pretty duel between Crowley and Holmer. The crowd cheered loudly when one or the other took the lead, and they were constantly changing. This duel brought out a terrific gait, and Crowley passed the mile in the fast time of 45:51 4-5, which was 1-5 second faster than any previous Marathon race.

The runners kept up the killing pace, and Crowley lead at the ninth mile in 51:43 3-5, which was 0:01 2-5 faster than the record held by Alfred Shrubb in his race against Tom Longboat. The terrific pace was telling on Crowley and Holmer, and the tenth mile was the Irishman's in 57:43 3-5, several seconds slower than Shrubb's record. Holmer then jumped into the lead and finished the eleventh mile in 1:03:31, with Crowley at his elbow. Johansen at this point was two laps behind.

When Crowley and Holmer lapped Johansen the second time the three runners went along in a bunch with the Swedish champion setting a hot pace. The Irishman was still leading Holmer by a few feet, and the pair shot past the thirteenth mile in record time, 1:15:43 1-5, which was 0:11 4-5 faster than Shrubb's mark. The men were still plodding along at a faster clip than any Marathon had ever been run before, and at the fourteenth mile, Holmer was leading in the phenomenal time of 1:21:31 1-5, which was 0:14 2-5 better than the record held by Shrubb.

Around and around the ten-lap track the long distance men ran at such a record-smashing pace that it seemed as if the contestants were trying to run each other to exhaustion. At fifteen miles Holmer was leading, and the timers caught him at 1:27:19 4-5, which had Shrubb's best mark beaten by 1:08 1-5. Although two laps behind, plucky Johansen showed remarkable gameness and speed. The two leaders could not shake him off, the Swede carrying them along at a terrific clip. Crowley and Holmer took turns at following the Swede's pace, and Crowley led at the sixteenth mile in 1:33:05, more than two minutes better than the record.

The splendid race between the men brought forth storms of applause. The runners traveled along at a time-smashing clip mile after mile. Johansen was still setting a tremendous pace, and Crowley followed him with dogged tenacity. Holmer was seized with a cramp at this stage and gradually fell back. He could not keep up the killing grind. At the eighteenth mile Johansen made up one of his lost laps on Holmer, and Crowley lapped the Quebec runner. During the next mile Johansen again lapped Holmer and started out to catch Crowley. Johansen lapped Holmer at the nineteenth mile and made up a lap on Crowley. The Irishman went by the nineteen-mile mark in 1:51:07⅘, more than three minutes ahead of the record.

Although the runners had gone nearly twenty miles, Crowley and Johansen indulged in hair-raising sprints, which sent records tumbling far behind. Holmer was pretty well used up, and was lapped three times at this stage by the Irishman and three by the Swede. Crowley, led on by the Swede's smiling challenge, was clocked at twenty miles in the record-breaking time of 1:57:25 1-5, four minutes in front of their indoor record. At twenty and a half miles Holmer, practically exhausted, quit four and a half laps behind.

The race now dwindled down to a remarkable contest between Crowley and Johansen. Running strong and as steady as clockwork, the Swede set out at a sprinting pace to catch the Irishman. The little Swede kept at his seemingly impossible task until at 20 miles 2 laps he caught Crowley and made up all the distance he had lost early in the race. The stamina and endurance of Johansen was wonderful, and he never let up in his mad record-breaking run. Gradually he drew away from the Irishman, and at 22 miles Johansen gained a lap on his opponent.

The Swede's time was 2:10:05 1-5, 0:06 3-5 ahead of the Marathon record. He rushed on, leaving Crowley further behind at every lap. During the next mile Johansen gained two more laps on Crowley. The Swede continued his great race, and at twenty-four miles had gained four laps on Crowley. The Irishman barely plodded along and Johansen lapped him five times and then Crowley stopped for a drink and Johansen gained a sixth lap on him. The Swede's time for twenty-five miles was 2:29:20, 0:07 ahead of the indoor record.

N. Y. A. C.'S STRONG RELAY.

Boston Team Has Its Work Cut Out in Annual Games March 15.

The relay team of the New York Athletic Club, which will compete against four men from the Boston Athletic Association in the annual games of the Mercury Foot organization in Madison Square Garden on March 15, has been selected. Capt. Halpin last night announced that Gissing, Egan, McEntee, and Bacon would constitute the local quartet and would try to get even for the beating that the Bostonians gave the New Yorkers in Boston last month.

In the special invitation five-mile scratch race, the following prominent distance runners will face the starter: George Obermeyer, National Athletic Club; W. Bailey and F. G. Bellars, New York Athletic Club; Gaylor Dull, the former Cornell University runner, and now representing the Pittsburg Athletic Club; Tewanina of the Carlisle Indian School, and Louis Scott, South Paterson Athletic Club.

Entries from Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Dartmouth, Pennsylvania, Syracuse, Columbia, and Cornell Universities have been received, as well as many for the one-mile relay, open to members of the Church Athletic League, Sunday School League, Intersettlement Athletic Association, Catholic Athletic League, and Young Men's Christian Association. Numerous others have been promised before the entries close with Director of Athletics Giannini on March 5.

COLUMBIA "FIVE" DISBANDS.

Crack Basket Ball Team Will Not Accept Any Challenges.

That Columbia will play no more basket ball games this season in spite of the challenges of Williams and New York University was definitely decided yesterday when the team was ordered to disband. Manager Rockwood has not as yet answered the letters from the two challenging colleges, but he said yesterday that he expected to do so within a day or so.

$150,000 BID FOR FIGHT.

Richard Ferrys Makes Offer for Los Angeles to Hold Bout.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 1.—Richard Ferrys, who managed the Los Angeles aviation meet, to-day sent the following telegram to "Tex" Rickard and Jack Gleason:

"Will you consider legitimate proposition to bring the Jeffries-Johnson fight to Los Angeles if guaranteed $150,000?"

Ferrys says one local capitalist is ready to put up $100,000.

SPORTSMAN'S SHOW HERE.

Schoolboy Shooting and Basket Ball Features at Madison Square Garden.

The sixteenth annual Sportsman's Show will open to-day in Madison Square Garden, and will continue until Friday night, March 11. This annual event draws together sportsmen, hunters, and guides from every section of the country. The convention of guides from all prominent hunting resorts of the country, including the Adirondacks, Maine, Virginia, the Rocky Mountains, and the various provinces of Canada, promises to be of unusual interest.

Although the show is primarily devoted to the interest of sportsmen, a number of features have been added to the programme. Prominent among these are the rifle shooting and basket ball tournaments. The schoolboy rifle and subtarget shooting competition, which will be under the auspices of the Public Schools Athletic League, will bring together more than 1,000 High School students, who will strive for individual and team honors, while the boy making the highest individual score will hold the title of champion of Greater New York.

Nearly twenty teams have been entered in the basket ball tournament, the majority of which are from the different branches of the Young Men's Christian Association. A large cage has been erected at the Fourth Avenue end of the Garden, and the games will be played every afternoon and evening.

RUGBY PLAYERS COMING.

Oxford and Cambridge Team May Play in New York.

A combined Oxford and Cambridge Rugby football team will visit the United States this Fall and will play a series of games against the Canadian and Western universities. A match may be arranged in New York City if a college team can be secured. The team will arrive in Canada in September, and will play matches against McGill, Toronto, and other Canadian universities. The Britishers will then journey to Winnipeg. Matches have been arranged with the Universities of Nevada, Chicago, California, and other Western institutions.

Since the outcry against the American college game the Western universities have taken up the Rugby game, which has become very popular, but it has not gained much favor in the East. Pennsylvania, Yale, and Harvard have Rugby teams, but they are only second class, and would be no match for the English. An effort, however, will be made to assemble a combined Eastern college team to meet the Englishmen.

Yale Wants Dual Yacht Race.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 1.—Yale has been unable to arrange a yacht race with Harvard, and will try to procure a meeting with some other university, probably Columbia. Two weeks ago Yale sent a challenge to Harvard, only to receive word to-day that it was impossible to arrange a contest. George Adam Richardson of Auburn, N. Y., was to-day elected Commodore of the Yale club for this season. The race Yale plans to hold with another university will be sailed at New London at the time of the Yale-Harvard boat races in June.

SPORTING NEWS IN BRIEF.

Joe Wagner and Jimmy Walsh, bantamweights, have been matched to fight ten rounds next Monday night at the Olympic A. C.

Willie Beecher and Young Goldman will be the chief attraction at the Longacre A. A. tomorrow evening. Beecher fought Knockout Brown to a draw at this club a month ago.

The Huntingdon Valley Country Club will purchase about sixty acres of land in the Rydal section, and improve the clubhouse to the extent of about $20,000.

Fortunata Zanti, an Italian runner, who recently came to New York with two victories over Dorando Pietri to his credit, will make his first American appearance in the twenty-mile race to be run in Madison Square Garden on Monday evening, March 14.

The Yale basket ball team has elected James E. Finnessy of Olean, N. Y., Captain for next season.

Wisconsin University may not be represented in the Poughkeepsie regatta next June by a freshmen crew, unless more candidates come out than recently have shown an inclination to try for places in the boat.

The St. Louis Browns started for their training camp in Texas yesterday. Stone, Olsen, and Smith demand more salary before they will sign a contract.

Leach Cross and Jack Goodman have been matched to box ten rounds at the National Sporting Club on Friday night. Cross thinks he is in the pugilistic limelight again, and in line to meet Ad Wolgast, and Goodman believes he will knock Cross's aspirations out of commission in their bout.

Alexander Taylor has offered a silver cup to the new Military Hockey League, which will be formed shortly. At present the plans of those who are promoting the affair, notably Andrew C. Dam, Captain of the First Battery, Naval Reserves, seven, include the Seventh Regiment, First Battery, Squadron A, Squadron C, and the First Battery, Naval Reserves.

The entry of Joe Ballard, the great miler of the Boston A. A., has been received for the mile and one-half run handicap at the Mohawk games Saturday night at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory. As he is entered in the Baxter mile at the New York A. C. games, this race will give the athletic experts a line on his form. He is also entered in the five-mile. A medley relay race, open to the Morningside A. C., Hillside A. C., Ignida A. C., and Glencoe A. C., for the championship of Harlem has been added to the list of events, and the relay race open to colleges in Greater New York has been dropped, owing to the Georgetown College games in Washington being held the same evening.

The main attraction at the weekly entertainment of the Sharkey A. C. to-night will be a ten-round bout, which will introduce the "Dixie Kid," who holds the title of welterweight champion, and Jack Fitzgerald, the Philadelphia middleweight. Fitzgerald has had some great bouts around the Quaker town and has been knocking out all of his opponents. The "Dixie Kid" recently disposed of Jack Farrell, and experts say that he will have his hands full when he tackles Fitzgerald. At any rate, it should prove to be one of the best mills ever staged by the Sharkey Club.

NEW YORK A. C. DRIVES SEVEN PUCKS IN NET

Winged-Foot Skaters Have Little Trouble Beating Hockey Club Team.

The New York Athletic Club hockey team added another victory to the already long string of the season last night at St. Nicholas Rink, when the Hockey Club of New York was defeated by a score of 7 to 3. It was not all easy sailing, however, despite the fact that the score appears to show a preponderance of ability for the Winged-Foot athletes. Not before this season has the Hockey Club put forth such a high calibre of hockey, and there were many moments throughout the contest when the New York Athletic Club goal was seriously threatened by the determined assault of the opposing forwards. As a proof of this the score at half time read 2 to 1 in favor of the New York Athletic Club, and had it not been for a miss of Bryan's shot by Coughtry when the puck lay only a few yards from the New York goal, with no one in the cage, there would have been a tie.

The second half found the play more to the liking of the Winged-Foot team. The men skated faster, and there was a great deal of brilliancy on the part of several players which made the work of Regensberger amount to little. He stopped many tries, but some were close to the impossible for a goalkeeper to take care of, and these slipped past him.

The real star for the Hockey Club was little Britton, who played cover point. He was in every play and carried the puck not only out of danger, but into his opponents' territory for several pretty tries at goal. His checking was hard, and he stopped the rushes from more than one man by his fearless work. Several times his enthusiasm ran to the limit of placing him under the ban of the referee, and once he was ruled out of the game for five minutes.

On the whole, however, the match was clean cut, with little evidence of hockey other than what would be expected between friendly rivals. There were a number of penalties inflicted, but they came as a result of a bit too free play with the stick against an opponent carrying the rubber. There was little real animus in any of the violations which brought the penalties. In this respect the New York Athletic Club team was the greater offender, and the penalties inflicted were about double those against the Hockey Club. The line-up:

N. Y. A. C.	Position.	Hockey Club.

PATHFINDER FOR RUN.

Chalmers-Detroit Selected for A. A. A. National Endurance Contest.

The Contest Board of the A. A. A. has just announced that after considering more than half a dozen applications for the post of pathfinder for the A. A. A. National Endurance Contest, previously known as the Glidden Tour, they have finally selected a Chalmers "Bluebird" to lay out the route through the southwest, which the contestants will follow.

Although the car for the pathfinding trip has already been selected, the three drivers, Matson, Knipper, and Lorimer of the Chalmers camp are all in line for the coveted position of pilot. All are keen to make the 2,200 mile trip which from the standpoint of distance to be covered and hard work to be done far surpasses the tours of previous years. The pathfinding car will start in April, and its crew will go equipped with every conceivable accessory for self-contained comfort in the car.

A member of the party will be an official representative of the Contest Board of the A. A. A., who will keep a record of all conditions and routes and incidentally make arrangements with hotels along the road selected, for the securing of creature comforts to be furnished to the Gliddenites themselves. The territory selected for this year's A. A. A. National Endurance Contest is the Southwest.

FIAT TO RACE BENZ.

Contest to Take Place at Daytona Not Later Than April 15.

E. R. Hollender yesterday issued a formal acceptance of the challenge to Jesse Froelich for a race between the speedy Fiat and Benz racers, to take place at Daytona Beach this month. Should the race be arranged, Ralph De Palma will drive the 200 horse power Fiat, while Barney Oldfield will pilot the powerful Benz car. The Fiat is entered in the race meets at Los Angeles, Atlanta, and Indianapolis, and as Barney Oldfield will reach Daytona some time this week, the only stipulation is that the event must take place between April 12 and 15.

Pal Moore Easily Beats Delmont.

BOSTON, March 1.—Philadelphia took two out of three bouts of an intercity boxing contest at the Armory Athletic Association tonight, Pal Moore winning from Al Delmont of Boston, and Tommy O'Keefe winning from Henry Scroggs of Baltimore, who took the place of Eddie Murphy of Boston, and whose seconds threw up the sponge after the eighth round. Boston won its only bout when Eddie Shevlin defeated Willie Moody of the Quaker City. All were ten-round bouts. The Pal Moore-Al Delmont bout, as the star feature, was slow, and there was no hard work until the tenth and final round. Delmont was no match for the Quaker boy at any stage of the game.

"Knockout" Brown Beats Carr.

"Knockout" Brown of this city defeated Eddie Carr in a ten-round contest at Brown's Athletic Association last night. Brown was aggressive and forced Carr throughout the contest. In the semi-final contest of six rounds between Young Stoney and Eddie Sherman, Referee Brown stopped the contest in the last round on account of Sherman's foul tactics. Sherman had the better of the contest, but he butted Stoney with his head and heeled continually with his glove to his opponent's face.

Phil Cross Did Not Box.

Harry Phillips defeated "Young" Frenchy in a ten-round contest at the Avon Athletic Club, Brooklyn, last night. Phil Cross, who was scheduled as Phillips's opponent, hurt his hand in training to-day and was unable to appear in the main contest.

Police Stop Boxing Show.

McKinlry Pastime A. C. President.

At the annual election of the Pastime A. C. at the club house, Ninetieth Street and East River, last night R. F. McKinlry was elected President to succeed John J. Walsh, who declined to take the honor again. The other officers elected were Sam Jacobs, Vice President; Philip O'Connor, Treasurer; Victor Andrews, Financial Secretary; J. McInerney, Recording Secretary; T. W. Clody, Captain; Frank Brennan, First Lieutenant, and A. Voellmekee, Second Lieutenant.

Hanford Wins 8½-Mile Walk.

Frank Hanford of Brooklyn yesterday won the eight-and-a-half-mile walk of the Trinity Athletic Club, which started from the clubhouse and included a tramp around Prospect Park. Hanford's time was 1 hour and 21 minutes, which was 4 minutes and 6 seconds better than the immediate record. There were twenty-one starters, and eleven walked over the full course.

ELEVEN MORE GIANTS REPORT.

Marlin Hotel Finds Difficulty in Accommodating Full Squad of Forty Men.

Special to The New York Times.

MARLIN, Texas, March 1.—There was much excitement in Marlin to-night over the arrival of eleven more of the regular members of the Giant team. The park is liable to be so crowded with players to-morrow morning that they will have to work in squads. The men who have just arrived are Pitchers Wiltse, Ames, Crandall, and Weimer; Outfielders Seymour, Murray, and Herzog; Infielders Devlin, Doyle, and Bridwell, and Catcher Schlei.

The players are all looking well and say they have had a prosperous Winter. Murray, Seymour, and Herzog came by boat to New Orleans and met the other members of the party on the way.

The newcomers run the total number of men in the Giant party to more than forty, including newspaper men and officials of the club. The hotel was overcrowded, and the old players were very much cagrined to learn that the youngsters had obtained the best rooms. Bridwell and Weimer had to wait until late at night to get accommodated as they wished.

The surprise of the day was the appearance of Weimer. The players had been led to believe that he would not play ball again, as he went home the middle of the last season a much-disappointed man. At that time his arm was in very bad shape. He had it attended to in the Winter, and found that two of the ligaments had been crossed. He expects to have a successful season, and is enthusiastic over the prospect.

The sun was intensely hot this afternoon, and McGraw found it necessary to cut the practice short by more than half an hour. The men could not stand the sultry heat, and several of them were so affected by "Spring fever" that they went to sleep on the bench.

BALL CLUBS RESTRICTED.

By-Series Games Rule Made by National Commission.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 1.—Only players and teams contesting in the world's championship series will hereafter be awarded pennants and emblems by the National Baseball Commission, according to an announcement made by that body to-day. The division of receipts from these by-series is hereafter to be made up on the same basis as the world's series, instead of allowing the interested clubs to divide the money as they may see fit.

A change was also made in the drafting rules by which minor league clubs have five days in which to accept or reject offers for the return of a drafted player when the player is about to be disposed of to a minor league of the same class.

Giants Pull Forward a Game.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., March 1.—The New York National League Club to-day joined Cincinnati and Pittsburg in changing schedule dates. It is officially announced here to-night that the game scheduled at the Polo Grounds for Sept. 21 between the champions and the Giants has been brought forward to Sept. 13 at the Polo Grounds. This will give Pittsburg four games in a row at New York, Sept. 13, 14, 15, and 16, and will do away with the necessity of Pittsburg jumping from Pittsburg to New York for a single game, scheduled for Sept. 21.

Coach Fultz at Columbia.

For the first time since baseball practice began at Columbia this year, Coach Dave Fultz met his squad yesterday. Sixty men turned out in the cage and received ideas as to what their work would be and to what achievements they might attain if they get down to faithful work. Fultz also intimated that he hoped to get the players out on South Field as early as the middle of this month.

Vanderbilt to See French Turf Opening

William K. Vanderbilt sails for France on the Mauretania to-day to be on hand for the opening of the racing season abroad. Racing begins in France March 15, and Mr. Vanderbilt contemplates the same extensive campaign for his French string that he has followed in recent years. For five successive seasons Mr. Vanderbilt has headed the list of winning owners in France, and last season his winnings were about $260,000. For the coming season he has a stable of fifty horses in training at St. Louis-de-Poissy, in the care of William Duke. The stable has for its first jockey Frank O'Neil, who a few seasons ago rode with a good measure of success over the American courses. The second stable jockey is W. Mitchell.

New York A. C. Not Proselyting.

While a number of prominent athletes have recently joined the ranks of the New York Athletic Club, the organization has had no part in any plan to secure track and field men from other athletic clubs, and in particularly every instance the men who have joined have been without affiliations. The most recent recruit to the winged foot ranks, Tim Ahearne, the Irish broad jumper, was never a member of the Irish-American Athletic Club, in which his brother, Dan Ahearne, holds forth, and Charles J. Bacon, another to recently wear the winged foot for the first time, was not a member of any club for more than a year before he came to the New York Athletic Club.

Brown Defeats Emmerson at Pool.

G. Brown defeated C. Emmerson last night in the second game of the Class A pool tournament at Doyle's Billiard Academy, Broadway and Forty-second Street, by the score of 75 to 72. The contest was a close one throughout, both players showing excellent form. Edward Seabury and Edward Reynolds will play to-night.

ATHLETES PLAN BRITISH INVASION

Melvin Sheppard and Harry Gissing Will Sail for England Early in April.

Fired by the success of Nat Cartmell, the former University of Pennsylvania sprinter, Melvin W. Sheppard, Irish-American Athletic Club, and Harry Gissing, New York Athletic Club, plan an athletic invasion of England. The pair have arranged to leave New York early next month, and expect to be abroad until the end of the Summer. The fact that Sheppard is under suspension by the Military League will in no way affect the plans of the pair.

Sheppard has been anxious to return to England since the London Olympic Games, nearly two years ago, when he disagreed with the majority of the American athletes who were members of the United States Olympic team and declared that the British athletic authorities had accorded him fair and impartial treatment. Since that time he has always been outspoken in his praise of the British athletic fairness.

The two athletes will be watched closely by the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States and the Amateur Athletic Association of England, although it is freely predicted by prominent athletic authorities here that the pair will follow the example of Cartmell and turn professional should the inducements to do so prove satisfactory.

There is one point about the trip that is puzzling to the A. A. U. officials, and that is how men of the moderate means of Sheppard and Gissing can afford to spend the Summer in England. The cost of the trip, including the passage by steamer, will be not less than $1,000 each, irrespective of the loss of salary during the Summer months.

Sheppard confidently expects reinstatement by the Military Athletic League, but should he fail in this he will not abandon his trip, as there is no alliance between that body and the Amateur Athletic Association of England, and he would not be barred from amateur competition on this account. The pair are thoroughly representative of America's middle-distance runners, and are among the speediest half-milers in the country.

In the London Olympic Games, two years ago, Sheppard won the 800-meter run in 1:54 4-5 and the 1,500-meter event in 4:03 2-5, creating new records in each event. Emilio Lunghi, the Italian, was second to Sheppard in the 800-meter race, while Wilson was runner-up in the long-distance event. Both of these men competed in this country last Summer under the Irish-American Athletic Club colors, and are in England at present. This quartet constitutes the fastest middle-distance runners in the world, and will furnish some spectacular races in England this Summer.

YOUNG GRAPPLERS ON MAT.

Columbia Wins Four Bouts from Harlem Branch Y. M. C. A.

The wrestling team of Columbia University defeated the Harlem Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association last night, in the auditorium of the Harlem Y. M. C. A., by winning four of the seven bouts. The Harlem Y. M. C. A. won two bouts, and one bout, the 145-pound class, resulted in a draw.

T. Brady of the Harlem Y. M. C. A. put up a fine battle with F. H. Saunders, the heavyweight of Columbia, the general opinion being in favor of Saunders. The Harlemite gave his opponent a severe tussle, and managed to stay the limit, although Saunders received the decision for his aggressiveness. Only two minutes had expired in the 158-pound class when L. Myerhoff was disabled and had to withdraw, the decision going to J. Ferrera of Columbia. The summaries:

145-Pound Class.—J. S. Brady, Columbia, threw J. Grazier, Harlem Young Men's C. A., with a half-Nelson and bar hold. Time—7:10.

125-Pound Class.—A. Lee, Harlem Young Men's C. A., received decision on points over M. D. Swartz, Columbia University. Time—9:00.

135-Pound Class.—F. Brandt, Harlem Young Men's C. A., threw J. Alterman, Columbia University, with a head lock hold. Time—4:08.

145-Pound Class.—W. Boyce, Columbia, and L. Parchefeld, Harlem Young Men's C. A., wrestled a draw. Time—9:00.

Heavyweight Class.—F. H. Saunders, Columbia University, received decision on points over W. Brady, Harlem Young Men's C. A. Time—9:00.

Reed to Head Cornell Coaches.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 1.—It was definitely announced this morning at the offices of the Cornell Athletic Association that Daniel F. Reed, '98, would be at the head of the Cornell football coaching staff next year, with absolute power. He will pick his own field assistants and be backed by a graduate coaching system of about seventy-five men. This is the first time since graduate coaching was put into effect that one man has been given supreme power. Reed was a star guard on the Cornell team for several years. He was one of the coaches in 1901 and 1902, when Cornell had successful elevens, and with Walter and Larkin had charge of the eleven last Fall.

SQUASH RACQUET PLAY.

Philadelphians the Only Contestants for Amateur Championship.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 1.—Play in the fourth amateur championship tournament of the United States Squash Racquet Association at the Racquet Club this afternoon was robbed of much of its interest by reason of the forfeiture by R. L. Agassiz of the Tennis and Racquet Club of Boston of his match with W. Y. Stevenson of the Philadelphia Country Club. The New Englander was the only out-of-town player entered in the tournament, and the fact that he has a National reputation in squash racquets had caused him to be looked upon as one of the strongest contenders for the championship title. As a result of the default only three matches were played, the tournament being brought down to the semi-finals.

Each of the three matches was decided in two games, but interest centred in the contest between the present title holder, Dr. J. A. Miskey of the Racquet Club, and C. B. Jennings of the Philadelphia Cricket Club. The summary:

United States Squash Racquet Championship.—W. L. Freelind, Germantown Cricket Club, defeated J. L. Evans, Merion Cricket Club, 15—6, 17—15; G. R. White, Germantown Cricket Club, defeated A. B. Mellor, Huntington Valley, 15—7, 15—7; Dr. J. A. Miskey, Racquet Club, defeated C. B. Jennings, Philadelphia Cricket Club, 16—15, 17—14; W. Y. Stevenson, Philadelphia Country Club, won by default from R. L. Agassiz, Boston Tennis and Racquet Club.

Park Commissioner Stover Tells of His Plans to Make the Lives of Children Happier.

MAY GET USE OF SOUTH FIELD

Commissioner Says All the Other Government Officials Are Co-operating with Him Heartily.

To a small but representative gathering Park Commissioner Charles B. Stover outlined last night the plans he has already put on trial for the further development of the parks to the advantage of the people. Some seventy persons sat down to dinner at the Hotel Plaza under the Chairmanship of Seth Low, and the Commissioner expressed his pleasure at being able in such a place and among such company to set forth his intention of being the Park Commissioner not of the east side, of which he is a resident, but of the city at large.

Seth Low referred to Mr. Stover's share in defending Central Park last year against the attempt of the National Academy of Design to put a building there, and gave him three pieces of advice. He should keep on good terms with the museums, he should develop the playgrounds, and he should never permit the parks to be the playthings of politics, the ex-Mayor said.

"I do not want to be thought to represent the east side in particular," said Commissioner Stover in his reply. "I have broadened a good deal in the last six weeks; I have realized the problems of all parts of the city. I want the keynote of my administration to be co-operation.

"I have been frequently misunderstood in the last six weeks, just because I have listened to every proposition. I did not turn down the proposal of the Aborn brothers about opera without finding out what it was, though friendly editors have said I should. The result is that the Aborn brothers have entered into a contract with the city, just as any other leaders of an orchestra, to give concerts in some park or other, perhaps even in Central Park.

"I have co-operated with our great collegiate institutions, and so I hope that next Summer I shall be able to say that the boys may play baseball on the splendid diamond of South Field, and that the four blocks near City College will be quickly laid out with an amphitheatre near by. Then there is the proposal for a great stadium in Riverside Park, at 110th or 116th Street.

New Playgrounds Planned.

"But the greatest pleasure I have had in co-operation has been in my relations with my fellow Commissioners. The playgrounds will be doubled next Summer. The Bridge Commissioner has turned over to me all the open spaces under the three bridges north of Brooklyn Bridge. I intend also to take possession of the tract at Ninetieth Street and the East River, and add a fourth baseball field, and the fifth will be in Chelsea Park."

The Commissioner then referred to the idea that he would allow too great freedom to the public in Central Park, and told how one representative of public opinion has lately been urging on the Mayor and him that men, women, and children are more important than flower beds.

"So he would allow a man to lie down in a flower bed if he wished," he went on. "But the hot weather is coming. The cry will be raised that the parks should be open for sleeping purposes, and the result might be that no flowers or trees would be left in the parks. I am going to try an experiment. I am going to put flower beds in some of the smaller parks. I am going to say to the people of the east side, 'You have absolute liberty in Seward and Tompkins Parks; will you not leave these alone?'"

As for Central Park, Mr. Stover declared that the very number of proposals made about it was its safety, and he would allow no more buildings in it but two new comfort stations and buildings for the tennis players.

The Commissioner said that, perhaps, music may be provided in 1911, possibly by the Aborn brothers, in Silver Lake Park, Richmond; Highbridge Park, or Washington Park. Then Mr. Stover made a direct appeal to the inhabitants of the rich parts of the city.

Appeals to Rich to Aid.

"The city may not have enough money for all these things. I announce that I shall look from time to time to the wealthy people of New York for money when I cannot get it from the corporation. I can't see why it is not as right and proper for people to lay out parks as to build hospitals or libraries. It is no good waiting for the reports of commissions. We must act now."

In regretting his absence from the dinner Mayor Gaynor wrote: "I find I have made no mistake in Stover's appointment." Among those present were Jacob H. Schiff, Eugene Philbin, Gutzon Borglum, Dr. John W. Brannan, President John H. Finley, Commissioner Willcox, Commissioner Maltbie, George Haven Putnam, Francis Lynde Stetson, Samuel Parsons, James E. Sullivan, and Register Max Grifenhagen.

STOLE AUTO FROM GARAGE.

Thief Makes Off with Cochran Motor in the Early Morning.

The police of New Rochelle and New York were asked yesterday to look for a 30 horse power Overland automobile, 1909 model, which was stolen from the private garage of R. L. Cochran, a New York milliner of 43 Union Avenue, New Rochelle, about 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. Cochran had been in the habit of leaving the latch key to the garage hanging on the outside of the front door for the convenience of his chauffeur. Some thief discovered the key and, although it was raining hard, entered the garage, backed the car into the street, cranked the machine, and rode away in the storm. Mrs. Julius Kusche, who is a neighbor of the Cochrans, heard the chugging of a car in front of the Cochran house at 2 A. M. The police also traced the machine along the shore road in the direction of New York as far as Pelham Manor, where an officer reports having seen it flying along the road, with one man at the wheel, at the rate of forty miles an hour.

CARAMIA TO BE DEPORTED.

Italian Arrested in New Orleans Simply an Undesirable Immigrant.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Giuseppe Caramia, whose arrest at New Orleans Saturday led to a report that he was wanted on a charge of having been connected with the killing of Lieut. Petrosino, the police officer, in Italy, is to be deported, a warrant for that purpose having been issued by the Department of Commerce and Labor.

Caramia had a bad record in Italy previous to coming to the United States, and he is deported on the ground that he is an undesirable. So far as known, he was not implicated in the Petrosino murder.

Children United at Maxine Elliott's Party.

Three hundred orphan children were the guests of Maxine Elliott at the Hippodrome yesterday. Each child received a box of candy. Rosie Hammel, 7 years old, and her brother Max, aged 9 years, each received a ten-dollar bill besides. The two children met for the first time in four years at the party yesterday. They had been separated by the death of their mother, Mrs. Joseph Hammel, four years ago in Milwaukee. Rosie is in the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, and Max in the Hebrew Sheltering and Guardian Association.

TAFT SUPPORTS ROOT.

But Only Wants the Power to Levy Income Tax in Emergencies.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—President Taft let it be known to his callers this afternoon that he is in entire accord with Senator Root's stand regarding the pending income tax amendment to the Federal Constitution in the letter made public at Albany yesterday.

The Senator wrote to State Senator Davenport that the view of the amendment taken by Gov. Hughes did not have his support and that he agreed, in effect, with the argument in answer to Gov. Hughes which Senator Borah delivered in the Senate a few days ago.

President Taft has all along declared himself in favor of giving the Federal Government unquestioned power to levy income taxes, but he has made it equally clear that he did not regard the present condition of the National revenues as demanding the enactment of such a tax law. He greatly desired the power, much as Senator Root does, for use in case of emergency, such as a war. For this reason the President is in favor of the adoption of the pending amendment, and he has written letters to friends in New York and Ohio, expressing that view. He has not sent any of these letters to members of either Legislature, for the reason that he did not deem that entirely proper and desired to avoid the appearance of attempting directly to influence the votes of legislators in favor of the amendment.

Passes Income Tax Amendment.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 1.—The Senate joint resolution ratifying the proposed Congressional amendment to the Federal Constitution to provide for a National income tax was adopted in the House to-day 78 to 8. The Senate passed the resolution some time ago. After announcing the vote, which gave the resolution only one vote above a constitutional majority, Speaker Shurtleff said a question was raised whether a majority or two-thirds vote was necessary for adoption.

POSTAL BANK BILL TO PASS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—After many informal conferences, Senator Carter today declared that all was ready for the smooth passage of the Postal Savings Bank bill on Thursday. An amendment has been drafted, which will constitute a substitute for the Smoot amendment, and to-day the activities of the leaders and their lieutenants satisfied them that there would be a safe majority on Thursday for putting the bill through the Senate.

The new amendment deals with the troublesome point of the disposition of the funds received by the Government as deposits in the postal banks. The compromise measure modifies the Smoot amendment to the point of providing that, in the discretion of the President in time of war or any other crisis, the money may be withdrawn from the local banks in which it is to be deposited and invested in Government securities.

ADOPTS NAVAL PROGRAMME.

House Committee Votes for Secretary Meyer's Plan, Including 2 Battleships.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The House Committee on Naval Affairs to-day voted for the construction of two battleships, one repair ship, two fleet colliers, and four submarines. This represents the naval increase for the present year, and is practically the same as urged by President Taft and by Secretary Meyer.

The two battleships will be of either 26,000 or 27,000 tons displacement. Their cost will be about $11,000,000 each. The repair ship will cost something less than $1,000,000. The four submarines are for the Pacific Coast.

The committee was virtually unanimous for the programme. Representative Hobson of Alabama urged a greater increase. He wanted four battleships and three additional destroyers. Representative Padgett of Tennessee wanted but one battleship authorized this year.

STREET CLEANERS HONORED.

Women's Municipal League Gives Medals to Three in the Department.

The 400 men in the Third District of the Street Cleaning Department lined up yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Stable E, at 408 West Fifteenth Street, to receive Mayor Gaynor, who was booked to make the presentation speech to a foreman, a sweeper, and a driver of the district, to whom the Greenwich Branch of the Women's Municipal League was presenting bronze medals for their work in the last year. Mayor Gaynor could not attend, but City Chamberlain Hyde represented him.

The Third District takes in the territory between Canal and Fourteenth Streets, Broadway, and the Hudson River. It is a hard district to handle. Since the days of Col. Waring the Greenwich Branch of the Women's Municipal League has interested itself in the work of the street cleaners in the district, giving three medals a year to the men in testimony of their good work.

The women do not rely on outside reports for their opinions about the medal winners. They employ investigators of their own to keep watch on the men. Those who were selected this year for the best work were Foreman John Green, Driver Peter Brady, and Sweeper Peter Berri. Forty-eight other men of the district were found worthy of places on the honor roll and received certificates saying so. Medal winners of one year cannot be winners again, though they may continue to be put on the honor roll.

Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards explained why the Mayor had to be absent, but told the men that Mr. Gaynor had sent his congratulations on their good work.

Many members of the Women's Municipal League were present, including Mrs. Edward Ringwood Hewitt, President; Mrs. Thomas R. French, Vice President; Mrs. M. Serena Townsend, Secretary; Mrs. Edward E. Loomis, Recording Secretary, and Mrs. Katherine S. Day, Treasurer.

OROTAVA TO SAIL ON TIME.

Royal Mail Liner, Fog-Bound 30 Hours, Will Get Off To-day Nevertheless.

The Royal Mail liner Orotava, from Bermuda, being held up in the lower harbor thirty hours by the fog, Capt. Dagnall, her commander, was unable to enter or clear the ship yesterday, which will have to be done before she sails at 10 A. M. to-day for Bermuda.

He will be at the Custom House at 10 o'clock this morning, ready to go through the necessary formalities, and the Orotava will leave her pier on schedule time in charge of Chief Officer Tibbitts and the pilot, and proceed down the North River to the Battery. There Capt. Dagnall will get aboard from a tug.

Coal and stores were taken on board during the night and the ship made ready for passengers to come aboard.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Collier and Capt. W. L. Candee of Brooklyn are among the 125 passengers bound for Bermuda to-day.

WILL REOPEN SUTTON CASE.

Resolution for a Congressional Inquiry to be Introduced.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—A joint resolution will be introduced in both houses of Congress next week, asking for a thorough investigation of the death of Lieut. James S. Sutton at Annapolis on the night of Oct. 7, 1907, and of all of the events leading up to the tragedy.

Senator Chamberlain of Oregon will offer the resolution in the Senate and Representative McCreadie of Washington will present it in the House. On the same day Henry E. Davis, attorney for Mrs. Sutton, mother of the Lieutenant, will institute proceedings in the civil courts of Maryland. The mother is as certain as ever, despite the finding of suicide by the board that investigated the death of her son, that his death was the result of a conspiracy.

'YELLOW BOOKS' ARE WHAT GARVEN WANTS

Jersey Prosecutor Hears That They Contain Secret Agreements Between Indicted Packers.

A TIP FROM THE INSIDE

Supreme Court in Trenton Asked for an Order for Beef Trust Minutes —Bill Offered in Congress.

Prosecutor Garven began yesterday the legal steps necessary to get before the Hudson County Grand Jury the minutes of the meetings of the Directors and stockholders of the National Packing Company, Morris & Co., Armour & Co., and Swift & Co. These records are expected to show which of the indicted Directors were actually in New Jersey at the time the alleged offense was committed. Legal obstacles to their extradition from Illinois will be raised if it cannot be shown that they were on the date named within the jurisdiction of the court.

Mr. Garven appeared yesterday before Justice Swayze of the Supreme Court in Trenton. The court took the papers and promised to render an early decision. Mr. Garven afterward called on Gov. Fort, and they discussed the question of extradition. It is understood that application will be made by the New Jersey Chief Executive to the Governor of Illinois as soon as it appears certain that the defendants will not answer voluntarily.

It was rumored about the Hudson Court House yesterday that the records which the prosecution really need are not the minutes of the Directors' meetings, but certain private documents known as the "yellow books." In these, it is believed, the packers have been in the habit of entering the secret agreements between themselves on which the charge of conspiracy has been based. It is said that Mr. Garven has received information with regard to this from a former Director of one of the packing companies, who may, if necessary, be called as a witness before the Grand Jury.

The Grand Jury will meet again this afternoon, and will take up the effect of cold storage on the food stored in refrigerators. Among those subpoenaed are James J. Hagen, Health Inspector of Jersey City, and Dr. Edward Mulvaney of the local Board of Health, Dr. J. C. Hartnet, Federal Food Inspector, and Dr. Henry Lehmann, chemist of the Board of Health.

Evidence will be taken in respect to the turkeys and poultry recently seized from a cold storage plant as unfit for human consumption. The general rise of prices will also be considered.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—A bill which, if passed, would declare the members of the "Beef Trust" recently indicted in New Jersey fugitives from justice and compel their extradition to New Jersey to stand trial for alleged illegal combination and monopoly, was introduced today by Representative Henry of Texas, a member of the House Judiciary Committee.

"The individuals composing the Beef Trust, who have been indicted by a New Jersey Grand Jury," said Mr. Henry, "are endeavoring to hide behind the proposition that they have transacted no business in the State of New Jersey, and, therefore, could not have committed a crime there because they were not personally present. This is an old dodge, an elusive method of escaping punishment."

The Henry bill provides that the demand of an executive authority of one State upon that of another State and accompanied by a copy of an indictment or affidavit shall be "indisputable proof" for the authorities to act upon. It also provides that the order for the arrest of a person wanted under those conditions "shall not be inquired into, modified, disputed, or invalidated in any court or tribunal of the State or Territory to which such person has fled or in which he is found, nor shall any such court or tribunal have any power to release such person for any cause."

"My amendment plainly means," said Mr. Henry, "that although those individuals composing the Beef Trust in Chicago have not been actually present in New Jersey, yet they have caused the execution of their conspiracies and crimes on New Jersey soil and must answer there."

BLUE STAR LINE REFUNDS.

Purchasers of Tickets on Mythical Ships Getting Their Money Back.

Agents here and in other cities throughout the East who have for several weeks been selling tickets for France on behalf of the Franco-Nord-Americaine Steamship Company, or the Blue Star Line, were busy yesterday paying back money to those who had bought round-trip passage on the fictitious steamships Notre Dame de Lourdes and Jeanne D'Arc.

Corsi, Zumsteg & Co., ship brokers, at 67 Pearl Street, were besieged during the day by dozens of ticket purchasers, all requesting the return of their money. Every one went away satisfied, it was said.

At Bedford, Mass., agents who had sold heavily were also refunding money. It was learned during the day that several hundred tickets were sold in New Orleans for $60 each, calling for round-trip passage to France.

While the refunding of money by the agents was going on the Postal Inspectors were trying to learn whether any one connected with the Blue Star Line is still in this country. So far as they can learn all of the men against whom complaints have been made are either in France or on their way there.

Louis Duverrier, who posed here several months ago as general manager of the Blue Star Line, has announced his intention of coming to New York next month and paying back all money the company has received for tickets. This information was imparted by Frank H. Corsi of Corsi, Zumsteg & Co.

NOT JEALOUS, SAY ITALIANS.

Manhattan Opera Musicians Declare 'Cellist Rogovoy Libeled Them.

Cesare Sodero, first 'cellist at the Manhattan Opera House, announced yesterday that he, in conjunction with the twenty-five other Italian musicians of the orchestra there, is contemplating suing George Rogovoy, the 'cellist who was to have played Servias's "Fantasia" at the opera concert last Sunday night. Mr. Rogovoy did not play the number and later explained through his manager, Alfred M. Goulden, that his failure to do so had been due to the Italian musicians saying they had lost their music and could not play. He intimated that they had done this through jealousy of him, because the principal 'cellist at the Opera House is an Italian.

Mr. Sodero says that he is the principal 'cellist, and that neither he nor his fellow-countrymen are jealous of Mr. Rogovoy. He said also that after Mr. Rogovoy's performance at the rehearsal on Sunday morning they had no reason to be.

Mr. Goulden said last night that he expected Mr. Rogovoy to play soon at the Manhattan Opera House with piano accompaniment only, and that his performance would be sufficient answer to the statement of the Italian musicians.

James J. Hogan Seriously Ill.

TORRINGTON, Conn., March 1.—James J. Hogan, a former Yale football Captain and a member of Street Commissioner Edwards's force in New York, is seriously ill at his home here with kidney trouble. Hogan was taken suddenly ill shortly after his arrival here a few days ago, and a specialist has been called from New York to attend him.

F. K. Bowers to Appraise Yerkes Estate

ROCK ISLAND BONDS TAKEN.

Speyer & Co. Purchasers of $11,000,000 Guaranteed by the Main Line.

Speyer & Co. announced yesterday the purchase from the Rock Island of $11,000,000 4½ first mortgage bonds of the Rock Island, Arkansas & Louisiana Railroad, being part of an authorized issue of $30,000,000. The balance of the bonds can be issued only for new mileage, additions, and improvements. The mortgage securing the bonds covers 346 miles of line, including 38 miles of trackage and equipment of the value of more than $1,600,000. The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway guarantees both principal and interest of these bonds.

The road covered by the bonds affords the Rock Island a route to both New Orleans and to Houston and Galveston. The bonds are subject to redemption on any interest day at 105 on sixty days' notice. The bonds will be issued in foreign currency as well as in dollars.

The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway declared yesterday a dividend of 1¼ per cent., compared with 1½ per cent. at this time a year ago.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Wheat Reacts—Corn and Oats Dull—Provisions Active at New High Records—Cotton Irregular.

Wheat closed with a net decline of ⅝c. to 1c. The market opened off, rallied but developed during the day considerable reactionary tendency, and showed signs of selling pressure. The market was not affected so much by the talk regarding the Chicago stocks. The weekly statements showed that the total stock of contract wheat at Chicago was 2,221,000 bushels. It is expected, however, that this stock will be decreased by the sales recently made to the millers. The reports regarding the crop situation were numerous and conflicting. From Kansas there are numerous and insistent complaints, but the trade is rather inclined to think the reports exaggerated and not genuine. The season is so early that there is opportunity for a radical change in opinion as to the crop situation. Estimates of the amount of wheat likely to be shown in farmers' hands indicated 30,000,000 or 40,000,000 bushels more than last year. Cash wheat continues inactive locally, and there is no export interest.

Bradstreet's visible showed 380,000 bushels decrease in the United States, against 2,276,000 bushels decrease last year, and the world's total increase, 4,113,000 bushels, against 1,079,000 bushels decrease last week and 1,740,000 bushels increase last year. Prices are: No. 2 red Winter, $1.30¼, nominal, elevator; No. 2 red spot, nominal, $1.30½, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.29¾; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.29¼; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.19.

Corn showed heaviness and also closed at a net decline. The market advanced during the morning on the soft weather, and the covering of shorts, but cash corn was reported dull, while the visible supply increased 2,203,000 bushels, following 3,011,000 bushels gain the preceding week. Last year there was a decrease of 105,000 bushels. Prices eased off on the reports. Cash corn was quoted at: No. 2, nominal; No. 3, nominal; No. 4, nominal, 63½c, and steamer, 68½c, both nominal, all elevator export basis.

Oats were dull and about unchanged. Fluctuations were narrow and uninteresting. Cash oats were dull, but steady. The visible increase was 188,000 bushels, against 384,000 bushels increase the previous week. Cash prices for oats are: Natural white, 52½@55c; white clipped, 53½@55½c.

Provisions were active and strong. New high records were made early, following which there was a sharp break in price on realizing. The report of the world's stocks showed 25,000 tierces increase during February against 16,000 decrease last year. Late the market was again firm, closing at a general advance. Trading in 100 tierce lots was started on the Produce Exchange yesterday. A great deal of interest was shown in the calls. The new contract is for 37,500 pounds, designed to meet the needs of packing interests east of Chicago and exporters. Each change of a point will be $3.75 on contract.

COTTON.

Cotton was irregular and active. The opening was strong, prices advancing readily on the cable news and covering of shorts. Following this there was a sharp decline of about ¼c per pound, with a partial recovery in the late trading and a fairly steady close. The early market advanced on the strength of the cables and reports that the amount of cotton taken up by the Patten bull party was about 50 per cent. heavier than reported last week. The deliveries on contracts amounted to 52,100 bales, and it is understood that most of this was taken in by the bull party. It was claimed that arrangements had been made to ship a good portion of this immediately to Liverpool, and that enough of the local stock will be shipped to leave the local market in an easily controlled position. It was stated that the Western leader had sold about twice as much cotton abroad as was delivered here during the day, at a premium over New York which would permit a good profit on the shipments of the cotton, while if New York should advance on account of the shipments out, part of the spread could be closed without shipping the cotton. The quick break in the market seemed to be due to the absence of shorts. The advance of the 1 cent a pound from last week had apparently run in the market and left the shorts long. The news reported concerning the actual demand of the cotton trade for spinning interests was not important, and there were further reports of curtailment in mill output. The Southern news was just about the same as of late. The weather continued favorable outside of Texas, and complaints continue to come in of deficient rainfall from that State. The semi-weekly interior receipts showed a large increase over last week, but the shipments from the interior were relatively much heavier than the receipts, which was believed to be due to the shipping of cotton forward on account of the recent demand. Southern spot markets were unchanged to ⅛c advance.

Spot cotton quiet, 10 points decline. Middling uplands, 14.85; middling Gulf, 15.10.

Coffee prices ruled unchanged, with sales of 24,250 bags, of which 10,000 were switches from May to December, at 5 points difference. Trading was principally in the late positions. Havre came unchanged and Hamburg was ¼ pfennig lower, while Brazil was unchanged for Santos and 25 reis higher for Rio. The spot market showed a fair jobbing trade going on all the time, but buyers are not inclined to take large lots, although it is expected that the world's visible supply will show a big decrease for the month of February, and local stocks are decreasing steadily, the American visible supply of Brazilian coffee in and afloat for the United States being now 3,574,702 bags, against 3,671,262 last week and 4,060,445 a year ago.

BIG WOOLEN PROFITS, BUT A HALT IS NOTED

FEAR OF DECISIONS NOW

Pending Anti-Trust Cases Taken as a Shadow on the Outlook—Money Made on Narrow Margin.

President William M. Wood of the American Woolen Company in his report to stockholders for the year ended Dec. 31, 1909, shows a large gain in business over the previous year, but makes a point of the halt experienced in 1910, which he attributes to "the uncertainty of the effect of the expected decisions of the United States Supreme Court in the two pending cases under the Sherman Anti-Trust act."

The year just closed showed sales and income amounting to approximately $48,000,000, against $29,000,000 in 1908, and net profits totaled $5,798,058, against $1,280,705 in the previous year. The year would have been the largest of the company's history, the President explains, except for the length of time it took to get the goods ordered early in the year, after the machinery had long been idle as a result of the panic. He then goes on to temper the encouragement, which this statement in the report might be expected to bring to stockholders, by discussing the possible effect of the forthcoming decisions, and then saying:

"There has already been a faltering in orders for goods caused by the conservative action of the merchants of the country in placing their orders, but notwithstanding this we have every reason to expect a good volume of business and have prepared ourselves to handle it. The advance sales of cloth have been provided for by engagements of wool in anticipation of our wants.

"This company depends upon a large volume of business for its success; the margin of profit is small, and, while an endeavor has been made to create an impression reflecting upon the greed of the woolen and worsted manufacturers, the fact remains that the average profit for the last five years upon the cloth made by this company that enters into a suit of clothes will average less than 40 cents per suit of clothes. Certainly, considering the risks involved, the large amount of capital necessary for the conduct of the business, fluctuations in the raw materials, and the necessity of a large volume of business to employ all its machinery, any fair-minded person cannot consider this profit unreasonable. If the price of clothing appears high, one must look elsewhere for the cause."

The report states that the price advance in wool for the company's "main raw material has been about 25 per cent. over wools provided for the corresponding season's goods of a year ago."

After the payment of $2,610,416 in dividends on the preferred stock and the charging off of $1,618,536 for depreciation the surplus for the year was $1,569,105, which compares with a deficit of $1,169,295 in the previous year. The balance of surplus at the end of 1909 was $10,514,808.

THE CITY WON'T FEED THEM.

Charities Commissioner Won't Rescind Order as to Municipal Boat Employes.

Michael J. Drummond, Commissioner of Charities, told a committee of the officers and crews of the department boats yesterday that he would not rescind his order closing the department restaurant on the pier at Twenty-sixth Street and East River. Eighty persons, including masters, pilots, deckhands, and engineers of the charities fleet, have had their meals free in this restaurant for several years.

Hereafter only thirty of the persons formerly fed at city expense will get free meals. These include deckhands, nurses on the boats, and a few clerks. The free meals will be served at the Municipal Lodging House.

The masters, engineers, and pilots protested that the department pays them less than similar employes receive from private ship owners, and that the free board made up the difference. The employes still to be fed regard the regulation that they must get their meals at the Municipal Lodging House as an indignity.

Commissioner Drummond listened to the complaints and informed the committee that those dissatisfied could resign.

COUNTERFEITERS TO PRISON.

One More Group Get Sentences from Six Months to Five Years.

Judge Hough, in the United States Circuit Court yesterday, disposed of another group of counterfeiters, imposing sentences ranging from six months to five years. The prisoners were George White, Frank Malano, Daniel Dougherty, Mathew Hagan, and John Geary. All had pleaded guilty after their arrests last week, White to making the money and the others to passing it. White and Malano got five-year sentences at Atlanta, Dougherty was sent to the island for a year, and Hagan and Geary got six months each.

RATES AFTER FREIGHT WAR.

Testifying in Merger Suit, Mr. Miller Says They're Still Too Low.

General Traffic Manager R. E. Miller of the Oregon Railroad & Navigation Company and Freight Agent of the Southern Pacific in Oregon, was again a witness yesterday in the Government's suit to dissolve the Union Pacific merger.

Following the rate war, the rates on most of the lower classes of freight were advanced 5, 10, and 15 cents a hundred pounds by the Southern Pacific, and Mr. Severance, counsel for the Government, wanted to know why this was done while the first and second classes remained unchanged. Mr. Miller said that the rates had all been too low, and that to-day they were lower than they ought to be.

Mr. Severance asked if it were not a fact that the Oregon Short Line had subsidized a competing steamship company to maintain the water rate between Portland and San Francisco. Mr. Miller didn't like the word "subsidized."

"We did have an agreement to put traffic into this line," he said.

Mr. Severance asked why Willamette Valley lumber was not moved through the Portland gateway by the Southern Pacific. Mr. Miller said it would be to the advantage of the Southern Pacific and the public, too, if the movement was through Portland.

"I stated that to certain officials of the Southern Pacific, but my opinion did not prevail, that is all," said Mr. Miller.

George W. Luce, the General Freight Agent of the Southern Pacific, with headquarters at San Francisco, was asked about the rate on lumber from the Willamette Valley to San Francisco Bay. The rate on the rough lumber was $3.10, which was increased to $5. When the mill men complained of this rate the Southern Pacific finally agreed to reduce the rate back to $3.10 on all green lumber except railroad ties.

"Do you know of another single instance where this distinction was made?" asked Mr. Severance.

"No, I don't recall any," Mr. Luce said.

"Did the fact that the Western Pacific Railroad was building a line into San Francisco and was getting its ties from the Willamette Valley have anything to do with this $5 rate?"

"No, Sir; it did not."

Mr. Luce said that the Southern Pacific did make an effort to get the Portland business during the rate war, but gave up the attempt in disgust. It had been a foolish effort on the part of the railroad, he said.

FREIGHT POOL IN MEXICO.

Business Has Been in Agreement Heretofore Only on Passenger Traffic.

The pooling arrangement between the National Railways of Mexico and the Mexican Railway, which runs from Mexico City to Vera Cruz, which heretofore has covered only passenger business, has been extended to the freight business as well.

The traffic office of the Mexican Railway will be consolidated with the office of the National Railways. The Mexican Railway is a direct competitor of the Interoceanic Railway, controlled by the National Railways, which also runs from Mexico City to Vera Cruz. The two lines have been keen competitors.

The pooling traffic is permitted in Mexico under the supervision of the Government, which is itself a partner in the National Railways of Mexico.

CLASSES FOR WAGE WORKERS.

Columbia to Offer Fine Facilities for Them in Many Studies.

Evening classes for wage workers will be one of the new undertakings of Columbia University beginning in September. It is proposed then to extend the operation of principles which have been so successful in the case of the Summer session so as to provide classes and laboratory work in the evening at the university, and both in the evening and during the day in other parts of the city, as well as in Northern New Jersey and Westchester County, for the benefit of those who are not able to avail themselves of the regular courses of instruction at the university.

In particular, evening classes will be organized where wage workers as well as those who are engaged professionally or otherwise during the day may obtain the best instruction the university may offer.

Requests for Columbia to enter upon work of this kind have been numerous in recent years. In particular, there is a demand that the university shall organize classes in law for the benefit of the many students of law in Northern New Jersey. The centre of this instruction will probably be in Newark. Classes in various branches of chemistry and in electrical science will probably be organized in both Newark and Paterson. It is expected that college instruction of the highest type will be offered in the evening in Manhattan at a convenient downtown point.

The field to be covered by this extension teaching will be very broad. There will be classes in languages, literature, history, economics, and politics; in various scientific subjects, including electrical and mechanical engineering; in architecture, in music and fine arts, in preventive medicine and sanitary science, in manual training and the household arts, in teaching and in law.

NEED A-PLENTY FOR LAWYERS

Frederic R. Coudert, the lawyer, spoke to the Columbia students in St. Paul's Chapel yesterday on "Law—Its Requirements and Opportunities." He scouted the current belief that the law is an overcrowded vocation, asserting that opportunities for success in that field are probably better to-day than ever before.

With the great industrial opportunities open to him, the lawyer of to-day, if he has the right stuff in him, according to Mr. Coudert, can achieve great success in his profession.

"There are thousands of unsuccessful lawyers," Mr. Coudert admitted, "but it's their own fault."

There is now, Mr. Coudert said, a demand on all sides by lawyers for young men of the right stamp. The kind of men that succeed, he said, are those who don't keep an eye on the clock.

This address was the first of a series on "Vocations," to be delivered on Tuesdays in St. Paul's Chapel at Columbia. William Barclay Parsons will talk on "Engineering" next week. The vocations of medicine, ministry, business, banking, journalism, pedagogy, academic administration, and architecture will be treated in order. All the speakers in the series are Columbia alumni.

RAILROAD SHARES SOUGHT

Substantial Buying Follows Favorable Developments in Railway Field—March Payments Easily Financed.

There was evidence in yesterday's stock market of a moderate amount of what Wall Street terms "good buying" of the high-class railroad shares. It is altogether likely that purchases of this kind were due to the excellent annual report of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the various other developments in the railroad field which came to light during the day, all of a highly favorable character. The Lake Shore, for example, declared an extra dividend of 6 per cent. on its shares, a step which places the New York Central, as the chief holder of Lake Shore stock, in possession of very nearly $3,000,000, the equivalent of 1.84 per cent. on the Central's outstanding capitalization. In addition the Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, and Rock Island published earnings statements for the month of January showing in every instance great increases over the corresponding period of 1909, while further evidence of the actual presence of prosperity with the country's railroad systems was afforded by the reports of large purchases of equipment by many lines and the acquisition of funds by the properties concerned for the purpose of securing such equipment and making necessary improvements. Incidentally, the strength of the industrial situation was disclosed in numerous annual statements, including that of the American Woolen Company with its remarkably strong showing, and in published interviews of a cheerful tenor with men active in the steel and iron trades. Of less specific influence but still of significance in a wide way were the decisions favorable to the New York Central in the Eleventh Avenue case, by the referee to whom the proceedings had been sent, and Washington dispatches telling of the conclusion of an arrangement between the Administration and the leaders in the House and Senate regarding legislation to be brought forward, the measures to be pushed comprising the conservation projects, the Postal Savings Bank bill, and the President's railroad proposals. This programme excludes the Federal incorporation act, apparently. If all this formed a news budget of cheerful import to a large section of the financial community the opposite was true in the case of bearish speculators who have been repeatedly testing the market in the hope of producing a general decline. Traders of this persuasion made some haste late in the day to cover short commitments and provoked sharp advances in a number of issues, notably in United States Steel common.

The feature of the day's money market was the late decline in call rates to 1½ per cent., the lowest figure touched in some time. The day's ease is a sufficient commentary on the facility with which the market financed the rather heavy March 1 payments, and suggests, at least, very little disquiet over the possibility of gold exports. The local banks are faring better this week in their transactions with the Government, having lost since Friday last only $521,000, where in the same period a week ago the adverse balance was $2,252,000.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 1.—More life was evident in the local market to-day than for a week past, the delivery of the scrip called for by the United Gas Improvement and Lehigh Coal and Navigation extra dividends being the signal for some very active trading in those issues. United Gas Improvement and Lehigh Navigation stock rose fractionally. The balance of the local list was irregular. Lehigh Valley rose a point on moderate buying, and Cambria Steel shares fell back for a small loss. There was considerable investment buying of Pennsylvania Railroad stock, with a substantial advance in price.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

LACKAWANNA STEEL BONDS

New 5s a Feature of the Bond Market and Gain ½ on Active Trading—Coppers Make Some Losses.

Curb stocks were without special interest yesterday, although trading was more diversified than in many recent markets. The copper stocks moved sluggishly under a moderate volume of trading, and a number of minor declines were shown at the close. In the bond list the Lackawanna Steel issues were active and strong. The debenture 5s sold ($48,000) from 95 to 95½, and the consolidated mortgage 5s ($25,000) at 85½.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Tuesday.

Commission house inquiry for stocks increased decidedly, coincident with the advance in United States Steel common. Speculation exhibited a tendency to broaden out, the sales totaling 84,820 shares, with fifty-four different issues dealt in. The total for Steel was double that for Reading, which was the next most active stock. There was some lively trading in odd lots in a number of the low-priced specialties, particularly Central Leather and Virginia-Carolina Chemical.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

B. & O. Wage Settlement.

Announcement from Baltimore yesterday that the Baltimore & Ohio had reached an understanding with its telegraphers in the matter of wages was accepted as a favorable sign regarding the ultimate settlement of the wage controversies now in process of settlement between the Eastern railways and their employes. The view was not taken, however, that the granting of an increase in the wages of the telegraphers on the Baltimore & Ohio pointed to the road finally according an equally large increase in wages to its trainmen. It is thought more likely that if the men consent, the matter of wages will be settled by arbitration. Commenting on the possibility of such arbitration resulting in a grant of materially higher wages to the men, a railroad man said yesterday that this would surely mean higher freight rates.

Brooklyn Railroad Appeal.

Announcement was made yesterday that the Executive Committee of the Brooklyn City Railroad has decided to appeal from the recent award of more than $3,000,000 to the Brooklyn Heights Railroad in the latter's suit against the Brooklyn City. The committee feels, it was said, that an appeal can be successfully taken. Meanwhile it is urging the stockholders of the road not to be induced to sacrifice their holdings by sales at this time. Representatives of the Brooklyn Heights Railroad and of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, which owns the stock of the Brooklyn Heights Company, express equal confidence that the award of $3,000,000 and more will stand.

Strength Follows Steel Lead.

The rise in Steel common yesterday, accompanied by a substantial increase in the volume of trading in the issue, was coincident with a decline of more than 50 per cent. of the activity in Reading as compared with Monday's market. Among traders the passing of market leadership from Reading to Steel was regarded hopefully. Steel, at its high level of 83⅛, compares with its high price of 81⅞ last week, and was in fact at the highest level since the first week of last month.

Track Decision Helps Central.

The decision of Justice Herrick, acting as referee for the Supreme Court, that the New York Central is entitled to its injunction preventing the removal of its tracks from Eleventh Avenue by the city, and that it has a legal right to its use of that thoroughfare, was a factor in the upward movement in New York Central shares yesterday, accompanied by trading aggregating nearly 24,000 shares. Another item favorably accepted in the budget of Central news was the declaration of an extra dividend by the Lake Shore. This, however, is in keeping with a policy already exemplified on others of its subsidiaries.

Increased Earnings.

Predictions of substantial increases in January gross and net earnings were fulfilled by yesterday's report from several of the trunk lines, the Pennsylvania leading with a gain of nearly $2,000,000 in gross. The figures for this road in the first month of the year were $13,217,912 gross a gain of $1,997,100, and $3,221,099 net, a gain of $693,100. The Southern Pacific's gross earnings were $10,395,502, a gain of $1,592,890, and $3,031,710 net, a gain of $800,197. Union Pacific's gross figures were $6,510,153, an increase of $1,166,417. Its net earnings were $2,351,984, a gain of $155,267.

No Dividend Action by Granby.

The Directors of the Granby Consolidated Mining Company met yesterday and took no action on the dividend. The company declared a 2 per cent. dividend in December. After the meeting it was stated that no dividend action would be taken until all of the new stock had been issued.

LAKE SHORE PAYS AN EXTRA DIVIDEND

Six Per Cent. on Capital Stock Comes from Its Interest in Pittsburg & Lake Erie.

OTHER INVESTMENTS GOOD

Large Income from Mahoning Coal Railroad and the Nickel Plate Swells Earnings.

The Directors of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern declared yesterday an extra dividend of 6 per cent., payable March 30 to stockholders of record on March 11. This is in addition to the regular semi-annual dividends which have been paid at the rate of 12 per cent. a year. There is $50,000,000 of Lake Shore stock, and this 6 per cent. extra dividend will call for the disbursement of $3,000,000.

This is just the amount which the Lake Shore recently received as its share of a 40 per cent. extra dividend paid by the Pittsburg & Lake Erie. This dividend was paid prior to the recent increase in the Pittsburg & Lake Erie stock from $15,000,000 to $21,000,000. The Lake Shore owns a majority of this stock, and on its old holdings received $3,000,060. This just covers the 6 per cent. extra dividend which has now been declared by the Lake Shore.

Practically all of the Lake Shore's stock is owned by the New York Central, which will therefore receive most of the $3,000,000 extra dividend.

Wednesday is the regular day for the meetings of the New York Central Boards of Directors, but on this occasion the meeting was advanced one day because W. K. Vanderbilt is to sail for Europe to-day.

The extra dividend of 40 per cent. which the Lake Shore received from the Pittsburg & Lake Erie is one of several extra or increased dividends which the Lake Shore has lately received from lines which it controls. In addition to the Pittsburg & Lake Erie dividend, last month the Lake Shore received a 50 per cent. extra dividend on its holdings of Mahoning Coal Railroad stock, and this month it will get a 3 per cent. dividend on the common stock of the New York, Chicago & St. Louis, which is also controlled by the Lake Shore.

This is the first dividend which the Nickel Plate has ever paid on its common stock. These three dividends together have increased the Lake Shore's income from its holdings of other railroad stocks so far this year by over $3,600,000.

The Lake Shore has been a large dividend payer for a number of years. From 1904 to 1906 it paid 8 per cent. a year, in 1907 12 per cent., and in 1908 14 per cent. The dividend last year was dropped again to 12 per cent., but this 6 per cent. extra dividend brings the total to 18 per cent. This means a total disbursement for the year of $9,000,000 on the Lake Shore's $50,000,000 capital stock.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 1.—The local coppers were very quiet to-day and business in general was dull. Lake opened at 75 and then dropped to 73¼, later rallying to 75. Indiana opened at 34, went down to 31½, and afterward rallied. There was some trading in North Butte and La Salle, and both of these were firm, but the other mining stocks were neglected. The general market closed quiet but strong and at about best prices for the day.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Americans Improve in London and Close Dull, but Steady.

LONDON, March 1.—Money was plentiful to-day and calls for $12,500,000 were easily supplied. Discount rates were steady.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was generally steady, but quiet. Rubber shares continued active, but with less excitement. Consols and gilt-edged securities were steadily supported by investors, despite the alteration in the Government's programme. Home Rails declined on trouble in the coal trade, and diamond shares also drooped. Mexican rails were active and firm.

American securities opened quiet and then improved under fair buying and covering orders. The improvement was maintained throughout the session, with New York a light buyer during the afternoon. The market closed dull, but steady.

Bar silver quiet, 23 3-16d per ounce.

Money, 1½ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 2 5-16@2⅜ per cent.; for three months' bills 2⅝ per cent.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—As forecast Sunday, mild weather and general rains have continued during the first three days of the present week, and reports are to the effect that all rivers of the Eastern States and the Ohio and its tributaries have risen decidedly, and are at and above flood stages at many points.

Rain occurred within the last twenty-four hours in practically all districts east of the Mississippi River and in the Northwest.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Weighers of Camembert Cheese Need Not Be "Mathematically" Correct.

In overruling a protest filed by Popper, Gray & Co. regarding the allowance of tare to be made on imported Camembert cheese, the Board of United States General Appraisers laid down the rule yesterday that if the Federal weighers follow the Treasury regulations in ascertaining the tare their method, even if not mathematically accurate, is "reasonable."

The case came before the board on protest of the importers, who alleged that the returns made by the weighers were incorrect. Judge Somerville, in his decision for the board, says that the method prescribed for obtaining the net weight of imports is to ascertain and deduct the weight of boxes, casks, and other coverings of the merchandise from the gross weight, and does not require the article itself to be separately weighed apart from all coverings as contended by the importers.

The board holds that where United States weighers have followed the Treasury rules their method is reasonable, and therefore lawful, whether leading to mathematically accurate results or not. The Camembert cheese in question was imported in large wooden boxes, each box containing sixty small boxes, and each small box holding one cheese wrapped in paper.

Judge Somerville denies the importers' contention that the dutiable weight should be found by weighing each individual cheese by itself. Surveyor Clarkson's method is approved.

Hansen, now general manager of The News, and to Frank P. Glass, publisher of The Montgomery Advertiser. Mr. Hansen now owns six-tenths of the paper, while Mr. Glass gets a one-fourth interest in it.

Want Philosophy

The Lost and Found column in The New York Times represents more than the mere publishing of advertisements. It represents a systematic effort to return the lost articles to their owners.

A registration bureau is maintained by The Times at the main office in The Times Building, and every article reported lost or found is registered and a full description is kept on file.

A full list of lost articles is compiled each week from The Times advertising columns and is sent to every pawnshop in and near New York. According to the law covering pawned articles, it is compulsory for a pawnbroker to return an article in his possession, if he is provided with information describing the article.

* * *

The New York Times is the recognized medium for Lost advertising. All the railroads entering New York use this column to advertise the hundreds of articles found each day on railroad trains.

Every column in the Classified page procures results for its advertisers. The Times is making a special effort to help those unaccustomed to writing advertisements. This service is performed without extra charge. A man accustomed to writing advertisements is more likely to prepare copy that "pulls" than a person who just happens to write one because of present necessity.

The advertisement that gives intelligent, specific details as to qualifications, experience, training, etc., is the one that gets the best results. If you desire aid call or telephone 1000 Bryant.

BOARD OF ESTIMATE AND APPORTIONMENT.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, held February 18, 1910, the following petition was received:

TO THE HONORABLE BOARD OF ESTIMATE AND APPORTIONMENT, CITY OF NEW YORK:

The petition of the RICHMOND LIGHT & RAILROAD COMPANY respectfully shows:

FIRST: That your petitioner is a street surface railroad corporation organized and existing under the Laws of the State of New York, and has duly made and filed, pursuant to Section 90 of the Railroad Law, a statement of extension, branch of, alterations and changes in its Road herein proposed, together with a Map showing the proposed change.

SECOND: Your petitioner now operates in the Borough of Richmond, City of New York, a double-track surface railroad by means of an overhead system of electrical power, a portion of which runs through, along, and upon Wiener Place (or Street) in said Borough, to and across Central Avenue, to and through Private Right of Way, to and along Tompkins Avenue to junction of Richmond Turnpike and Arrietta Street.

THIRD: The City of New York is now engaged extending Stuyvesant Place (or Street) from intersection of Wiener Place to and across Arrietta Street to junction with Griffin Street.

FOURTH: Your petitioner will relinquish that portion of franchise on Wiener Place and Tompkins Avenue, and prays that in lieu thereof a franchise be granted to lay rails and operate Road on new Stuyvesant Place (or Street) Extension to and across Arrietta Street to junction with Griffin Street, a distance of one thousand and fifty feet (1,050',) more or less, as shown on accompanying tracing.

FIFTH: Your petitioner now holds franchises on Arrietta Street from Richmond Turnpike to New York Bay, granted by the Village of New Brighton, March 28th, 1895, and July 11th, 1895, and Village of Edgewater, June 26, 1895, to the Staten Island Electric Railroad, (to all of the rights and franchises of which Company your petitioner is the successor,) and now asks your Honorable Board to grant authority to lay rails and operate road on Arrietta Street from intersection of Central Avenue and Stuyvesant Place to Richmond Turnpike.

SIXTH: May 29th, 1905, your petitioner leased from Department of Docks and Ferries, right to operate its railroad from Jay Street to Ferry Landing over Viaduct and portion of Ferry Terminal, and prays that franchise be granted by your Honorable Board.

SEVENTH: Your petitioner proposes to operate the Road to be constructed upon such altered and changed route, by the overhead trolley system of electricity, substantially similar to that now in use on its other lines, or by such other motive power (other than locomotive steam power) as may be lawfully employed.

Your petitioner therefore prays that the franchise hereinbefore mentioned, on Stuyvesant Place (or Street) Extension, be granted to it in lieu of the franchise now enjoyed by it on and along Wiener Place and Tompkins Avenue. Also that authority be given to lay rails and operate on Arrietta Street between Stuyvesant Place (or Street) Extension and Richmond Turnpike, and that the franchise for operation over the Viaduct and portion of Ferry Terminal be granted by your Honorable Board.

WHEREFORE your petitioner prays that Public Notice hereof of the time and place when and where this Application will be first considered, be given as required by the provisions of Section 92 of the Railroad Law and of all other laws applicable thereto, and that the desired consent or franchise be granted in accordance with the provisions of the Greater New York Charter and the Laws of the State.

Hopkinson Smith, author, painter, and civil engineer, who at the recent dinner of the Southern Society uttered a severe criticism of the manners of New Yorkers, was the guest of the Aldine Association at a dinner in the clubrooms, 200 Fifth Avenue, last night. Everybody who spoke referred good-naturedly to what Mr. Smith had said to the Southern Society, but everybody forgave him, for, as Hamilton W. Mabie, the toastmaster, put it, they love him just the same, even though in a moment of impatience he did make certain indiscreet remarks.

There were about 300 at the dinner, and it was all about "Hop' Smith from beginning to end. Songs written around his fame were sung, and even the dishes were named after that part of the country whence he hails. John Bigelow, the aged statesman, who is now in his ninety-third year, was there, and said a few words in appreciation of Mr. Smith, but did not stay to hear what Dr. Mabie, Mr Smith, Thomas Nelson Page, and the others had to say about the guest of honor. He left the hall while everybody stood up and sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." There were tears in Mr. Bigelow's eyes as he said good-night, regretting that one so young as he was compelled to retire.

At the table with Mr. Smith in addition to Mr. Bigelow, Dr. Mabie, and Mr. Page, were Charles Battell Loomis, John Kendrick Bangs, Alfred P. Bollen, J. Alden Weir, William M. Chase, F. Berkeley Scott, Dr. Frederick Kunz, and John Scott Williams. Mr. Loomis disappeared with the coffee to appear later in a skit of which more later.

Hymn to Hopkinson Carter.

The dinner began with a song written for the occasion. Here it is:

Do you know Carter, the genial Colonel Carter?
If you know him you are certainly his friend;
He's a man of wit and feeling, and he hates all double-dealing,
He's a fellow who sticks to the end.

He is rather young and frisky, and to praise him's kind of risky,
For you may be fooled about him when he's old;
But we'll bank upon his laughter, and the wisdom that comes after,
So we toast and sing his heart of gold.

Here's to Colonel Carter, the jolly, handsome Carter,
He's as straight as the royal Southern pine;
He can paint like a painter, and write like an author—
Carter is a friend of mine.

When the cheering that greeted them subsided, H. S. Houston, on behalf of the association, introduced Dr. Mabie as the toastmaster. In introducing him Mr. Houston said that the dinner was not given to the brilliant engineer, the painter of charming pictures, nor to the creator of Col. Carter—"not even," he added, "to the censor of our manners, although we know how much they need reproof and correction"—but to a dear and well-beloved friend.

Dr. Mabie for the Defense.

Dr. Mabie, when he got up, launched right off into a good-natured discussion of what Mr. Smith had said to the Southerners. New Yorkers, said Dr. Mabie, are criticised from all points of the compass, the Puritans, all of whom are not pure, saying that New York has no morals, while the Cavaliers, many of whom cannot ride a horse, declare that New Yorkers have no manners. New York, he added, was a sort of middle term between the charm of the South and the morals and sturdy integrity of New England.

"Mr. Smith," said Mr. Mabie, "had the great good fortune to be born on the Eastern Shore, and you know that is a synonym for the best living, the most beautiful women, and the noblest men—at least that's what they say. With all these advantages, Hopkinson Smith came to New York, and he has seen New York, sometimes in an indiscreet criticism. We forgive him, however, because he is not like the fellow who comes here and stays at the Waldorf-Astoria twenty-four hours and watches the overdressed people from his own section of the country as they pass by, and then goes back home and says of New York 'How vulgar!'

"It's a great thing to be able to paint a gentleman, and I have a suspicion that in order to do so one must be one. It does not make any difference what Hopkinson says in moods of impatience, we love him just the same, and the first toast of the evening is F. Hopkinson Smith."

Hopkinson, That's Him!

Then Mr. Smith stood up and the crowd sang another song written for the occasion. It went this way:

Who is the man who will spend or even lend?
Hopkinson, That's him!
Who is your friend when you find that you need a friend?
Hopkinson, That's him!
We're just as proud of his name you see,
As an Emperor, Czar, or a King, could be:
Who is the man helps a man ev'ry time he can?

CHORUS.
H-O-P-K-I-N-S-O-N spells Hopkinson,
Proud of all the Southern blood that's in him;
Divil a man can say a word agin him.
H-O-P-K-I-N-S-O-N, you see,
Is a name that a shame never has been connected with.
Hopkinson, That's him!

Who is the man never stood for a gadabout?
Hopkinson, That's him!
Who is the man that the town's simply mad about?
Hopkinson, That's him!
The ladies and babies are fond of him,
He's fond of them, too, in return you see:
Who is the gent that's deserving a monument?

The Politeness New York Knows.

"If I was about to be buried," said Mr. Smith when the singing stopped, "I should want Hamilton Mabie to pronounce my benediction. There are some things that come into a man's life that are more pleasant than all the others, and to-night is one of them. I look into your faces and I recall when we first began, in the Aldine, to make a revolution in after-dinner stories.

"I know that if you were in charge of an elevated train and I had asked you a question, I would get from you a courteous answer. I know that if I were on Avenue A and one of you happened to be dressed in blue and had brass buttons and a stick and I asked you the way to Second Avenue, you would reply: 'My dear Sir, it is to the right. Pardon me for delaying you.'

"If you were in a department store and an old lady with her hair in a pompadour came in and asked you for a certain kind of ribbon, I know that you would not answer 'nothing doing.' Instead you would say: 'My dear madam, this is the wrong counter. The ribbon you desire is to be had in another part of the store.' And then you would direct her to the proper place. So, gentlemen, in my animadversions on New York I did not include anybody in the Aldine Association.

"Gentlemen, there are four men under every waistcoat—the man that his Maker knows, the man that the wearer knows himself, the man his friends know, and the man that his wife knows. My Maker always knew me, and my wife invariably does, and I myself sometimes do. If a man has a swelled head about his literature all he has got to do is to go to his library, read a line or two from Thackeray, and if he has any common sense a feeling of humor will percolate through his body down to his feet."

Mr. Smith paid a tribute to the men who had aided him at the outset of his career, among them the late Horace E. Scudder and Richard Watson Gilder, and said that if there ever was a thorough gentleman Mr. Gilder was one. It was Mr. Gilder, he said, who had suggested to him the writing of "Colonel Carter of Cartersville."

"I want our people," concluded Mr. Smith, "to be a race of gentlemen. I want our people to be clean living. I want them to be people of business integrity. I want them to respect our old people and be considerate of our poor. I want our people to sympathize with the under dog."

When Mr. Smith sat down Mr. Loomis entered, dressed in the Venetian style of four centuries ago. He was made up to represent Aldus Manutius, the first printer, who is the patron saint of the Aldines. Mr. Loomis presented to Mr. Smith a silver key bearing the dolphin and anchor of Manutius and an illuminated address.

"If this key is to open my heart to you," said Mr. Smith, "it is not necessary, for to you it has been open these many years."

Until at last the Vision Vast appears,
The perfect bloom of uneasy years,
And in the City Insolent, the man proposes
To raise a crop of fragrant Southern roses.
Amid the wail of our unmannered streets
He seems to shed his sweets,
And with the manner of the old regime,
To soften all the rudeness of the stream.
On seeing Hop, the Stalwart Cop
Will take his club, that weapon of despond,
And change it to a graceful fairy wand;
And 'stead of banging us upon our polls
Will use the same to fan our fevered soles.

DISAGREES WITH MR. SMITH.

Georgia Congressman Calls Him a "Professional Southerner."

Some 200 sons of Michigan who live in New York heard Gov. Frederick M. Warner denounce the New York State Legislature's investigating committee on direct primaries at the Michigan Society's annual dinner at the Hotel Astor last night.

Gov. Warner was brought over from Michigan especially to tell the Michiganders of this city the latest home news. He said the direct primary had worked with marked success in every district in which it had been tried, and then added: "I dropped in at Albany yesterday and saw Gov. Hughes, whom I greatly admire. He showed me the report of the committee which had been sent out to investigate the workings of our primary law. I was much amused to see that they had given as representative of Michigan opinion the views of our only three prominent opponents of the law. These men had opposed it from the start. They never had done anything else and they were conspicuous for the isolation of their views and their following."

A little later in the evening Gov. Hughes was mentioned in a speech by W. W. Wedemeyer, formerly President of the Michigan Railroad Commission and an advocate of the two-cent fare law. He declared that Ohio was out on a still hunt for the Presidency in the four years to follow Taft's first term, and that Ohio was in a fair way to win not only the Republican but the Democratic nomination as well, unless "you people in the State of New York step in and interfere with your Governor, your ex-Governor, or your Mayor."

State Senator Frederick M. Davenport, who reviewed present conditions in Albany, said that some very live wires were burning under the seats of many up-State men, and it all meant that the State was in the hands of the shrewdest political ring generals that had ever obtained positions of power, and that these men from Parlor A in a Syracuse hotel could boss any party convention assembled in recent years. Senator Davenport's speech was a plea for direct primaries, and he joined Michigan's Governor in his attack upon what he called the "alleged investigation of its merits" recently conducted.

Roland Ellis, Congressman from Georgia, called F. Hopkinson Smith "a professional Southerner." He said that he had been received in Jersey in an excess of hospitality from McAdoo's tunnel men, had been discharged from the tube in Twenty-third Street in the same fine spirit, and could easily believe New York was the most hospitable city in the world, and the best mannered. "The professional Southerner," he said, "makes me tired."

RAILROADS FOR THE CANAL.

And What Admiral Evans Said Isn't True, John F. Wallace Says.

John F. Wallace, former Chief Engineer of the Panama Canal, took issue with Admiral Evans last night on the Admiral's statement, recently made, that the transcontinental railroads of the United States had conspired to discourage the building of the Panama Canal. In an address before some 150 officials of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railway, at a dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria, Mr. Wallace said:

"That statement by Admiral Evans is not true. Not a railroad in this country has done anything to interfere with the progress of the work on the canal. Mr. E. H. Harriman, shortly before his death, told me that the railroads in which he was interested would welcome the completion of the Panama Canal. He said that if freight could be carried from the Pacific Coast to European ports at a lower rate by way of the canal the transcontinental roads would benefit by it.

"Is an adequate return to be brought to this country for the vast expenditure on the building of the canal? is a question often asked. I would say that the return will come in time. But the immediate good of the canal will be felt first by other countries. The United States has no commerce to-day except her coastwise commerce. Protection has done this. When the Panama Canal is completed there will be two routes to what has long been known as the East. One will be by way of the Suez Canal and the other through the Panama Canal. Every bit of freight which will be shipped from the Pacific Coast will go in foreign bottoms."

A life-size portrait of President Diaz of Mexico, painted by the artist Benziger, was unveiled last night during the dinner. It was painted for the President himself, and will be sent to him shortly. Frederick Wise of New Castle, England, who has just returned from an inspection of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railway in the interest of English investors, was the guest of honor. Among others at the dinner were:

Edward Dickinson, Vice President of the Orient Road; Col. Robert C. Clowry, President of the Western Union Telegraph Company; Baron Hans von Bleichroeder of Berlin, Germany; Count Talleyrand-Perigord, Paris; C. G. Roebling of the Roebling Wire Works; R. W. Jones, Jr., Vice President of the National Reserve Bank of this city; E. Quincy Smith, President of the National City Bank, Washington, D. C., and Charles F. Adams, 2d.

CRIPPLE DIES IN FIRE; HE SMOKED IN BED

WOMAN TRIES TO SAVE HIM

Mrs. Jacob Cohen Herself Overcome and Rescued—Tenants, in a Panic, Saved by Firemen and Police.

In spite of the heroic endeavor of a woman to save him, an aged cripple lost his life in a fire that partly destroyed a four-story double brick tenement at 350 Sackman Street, Brownsville, Brooklyn, last evening. But for the quickness and courage of firemen and police, who rushed through the smoke and fire filled building and carried women and children down fire escapes, other persons must have met death.

The man who lost his life was Abraham Levine, 63 years old, a veteran of several wars, in one of which he received an injury which disabled him many years ago, and who, it is thought, innocently caused the fire that killed him by smoking when in bed. The contents of his pipe fell on the bedding, or, it was suggested, perhaps he set the bedclothing or a curtain hanging alongside the bed when he struck a match to light his pipe.

The fire started in the old man's rooms on the third floor left in the absence of his aged wife, who had gone to a grocery store. She had left him smoking his pipe and dozing in his bedroom. She had often cautioned him to be careful or some day they would be burned, but he always laughed and said if such a fate happened it would be through no fault of his pipe or himself.

A window in the old man's bedroom was open, and this gave the blaze a rapid start.

Mrs. Jacob Cohen was with her two little ones, Alexander, 4 years old, and Eva, aged a year and a half, in her apartments in the top floor left, just over the Levine home, when she smelled smoke and heard his cries.

"Fire! Fire! Help me!" she heard him call.

Mrs. Cohen grasped her babes and rushed with them into the rooms of aged Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Greenhouse, living also on the top floor, front, right. She placed the children in the arms of Mrs. Greenhouse, a tiny, bewrinkled woman of 72 years, and told the Greenhouses she would be back in a moment.

Smoke was pouring out of the Levine apartment by then. Blinded by it, Mr. Levine could not find his way out into the hallway. He fell in the kitchen. Mrs. Cohen, almost strangling with smoke, found it impossible to enter the kitchen. The draught from the open bedroom window had blown the fire that way. She shrieked for help, and, opening a door leading to the parlor, tried to make her way to the old man.

The smoke proved too much for her, and unable to see and tottering weakly, she just managed to reach the hall stairway. Losing her hold on the handrail, she plunged down a full flight as Policeman William Ward of the Brownsville Station rushed into the house. He carried her to the street. The fresh air revived her.

Ward and his side partner, Policeman William Goodman, who had turned in an alarm, got out many women and children of the fourteen families in the burning building. The fire reached an airshaft and blazed fiercely.

Just across the hallway from the Levine apartment were Mrs. Isaac Goldberg, the married daughter of Mrs. Levine, and four of her small children. They were entirely unaware of the fire peril until the policemen rushed up and got them into the street.

There was a panic in the building and tenants and persons living in the adjoining tenements rushed to the fire escapes. When the firemen, in charge of Battalion Chief John Donohue, reached the scene, Mrs. Greenhouse, with the youngest of the Cohen children in her arms and the other by her side, stood shrieking on a chair, looking from an open front window. She was frantic with fear, and it looked as though she would be forced to jump to save herself from the flames unless help reached them quickly.

Fireman Dietrich F. Ruege of Truck 70 sprang up the front fire escape from the street. Men sought to get up by the stairway to do rescue work, but were driven back. At Fireman Ruege's heels were Firemen John Dunn of Engine 131 and Edward F. Gross of Truck 70. Through the fire and smoke, which shut them out from view of the crowd momentarily, they went. Ruege reached the woman and children, now weak from smoke inhalation, and amid cheers of the spectators the rescues were quickly made. The firemen passed the children first, then the old woman safely to the street.

When they reached Mr. Levine he was dead on the kitchen floor. Dr. Madden of St. Mary's Hospital gave treatment to those who needed it. The damage was $1,100.

HURT IN GARAGE BLAZE.

Blazing Bucket Sets Building Afire in West Sixty-fifth Street.

Fire fed by gasoline, grease, oil, and other inflammable materials practically destroyed the five-story building at 246 West Sixty-fifth Street yesterday, causing damage estimated at $25,000.

In a concrete vault in the cellar eighty gallons of gasoline were stored, but the flames did not reach this supply. Two men—Allan Robb, a machinist of 230 West Eighty-second Street, and Herbert Tepper, a chauffeur of 34 West Sixty-fifth Street—were seriously injured by jumping from windows on the fourth floor, and are now in Flower Hospital in a critical condition. Several firemen were injured also and were taken to the hospital.

The three lower floors of the building, which is owned by William Ehrett of 247 West Sixty-fourth Street, are occupied by the West End Motor Cab Company, and the fire is supposed to have started on the ground floor. Nat Graff, an employe, who was cleaning an auto, shouted that a pail in which there was a quantity of oil drippings had caught fire. He seized the pail and tried to reach the street with it, but the flames burned his arm and he dropped it. In a moment a wooden partition had caught fire, and an instant later the floor was a mass of fire. The flames spread up through the building with great rapidity, and by the time the firemen arrived it was ablaze from top to bottom.

While the firemen were fighting the flames on the second floor an explosion occurred, and the clothing of James McSherry and James McGrave of Engine 40 caught fire. Before it was extinguished both men were badly burned and had to be taken to the hospital. Among the other injured firemen are Timothy Morris and Peter Farrell, who entered the building to look for any tenants who might have been cut off.

EVA TANGUAY ARRESTED.

Stage Hand Charges Actress with Assault with a Hatpin.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 1.—Eva Tanguay, leading funmaker in the "Follies of 1909" company, playing at McCauley's Theatre, was arrested to-day and taken to the police station in an automobile patrol on a warrant sworn out by Clarence Hess, a youthful stage employe at McCauley's. Miss Tanguay was told that a bond of $200 would be required for her release.

Miss Tanguay produced a roll of bills and cried: "Take it all and let me go, for it is now my dinner time." Capt. Carney told her that he was not selling releases and that her bond would be arranged. Finally Miss Tanguay was allowed to go with the promise that she would appear in the police court to-morrow morning.

In the meantime Hess had filed suit in the Circuit Court for $1,999.99 damages, to heal the physical and mental wounds which he alleges the actress inflicted upon him with her hatpin. The arrest followed an altercation that took place at McCauley's Theatre last night, in which George Rough, the property man for the company, and Clarence Hess, a stagehand, came together because Hess did not get out of the way when Miss Tanguay rushed from the stage to her dressing room.

In the melee that followed Hess was knocked down a flight of stairs. Rough came near being mobbed by the other hands and Miss Tanguay slapped right and left to protect her champion. Although the feeling ran high among the stage hands and Miss Tanguay's company, it was not known that any arrests would follow until Hess appeared in the office of the clerk of the police court and, exhibiting the wounds which he says the actress gave him, swore out a warrant for her arrest on the charge of malicious assault and another for her property man, George Rough, for disorderly conduct.

DISMISSES RIVERSIDE WRIT.

Justice Platzek Won't Order the Removal of Incumbrances on the Drive.

The application of Charlotte Y. Ackerman for a peremptory writ of mandamus compelling the Board of Park Commissioners to remove incumbrances on Riverside Drive, between Eighty-second and Eighty-third Street, was dismissed yesterday by Justice Platzek in the Supreme Court. The incumbrances consist of the front walls and bay windows of a row of expensive, five-story dwellings fronting on the drive. Mrs. Ackerman owns the adjoining property.

"Although these incumbrances have been declared in a previous suit against the former owner to be a public nuisance," Justice Platzek wrote in his opinion, "a peremptory writ will not issue."

The Justice intimated that an alternative writ would issue if the plaintiff would make the owners of the offending property parties to the suit.

The Park Commissioners have set up the defense that, since the plans have been approved by the Building Department, the board had lost jurisdiction, and proceedings should have been directed against the owners.

CITY BREVITIES.

Appraisal of the estate of William B. Isham, who died on March 23 last, shows $1,666,477 personal property and $1,551,500 real estate. The property was bequeathed to his family.

An attempt is to be made next week by organizers of the International Transport Workers' Association to organize the freight handlers along the water fronts of the city, of whom there are about 35,000.

The Aldermen's Law Committee will hold a public hearing on Friday afternoon at City Hall on a proposal for a commission to devise means to relieve the congestion of population.

"An Evening in the Land of Israel" is to be held by "Hadassah," a Zionist society composed of young women, this evening in the Auditorium of the Hebrew Technical School for Girls, Second Avenue and Fifteenth Street.

District Attorney Whitman moved yesterday the release of the $15,000 bail bond in which Charles W. Morse has been held to answer three indictments for grand larceny and perjury, found against him a little more than two years ago.

Twenty-one Columbia University professors obtained leave of absence yesterday for the whole or part of the next academic year. Among them are Profs. John B. Clark, Henry M. Howe, George F. Sever, and William M. Sloane, who will be absent a year; Profs. Boas, Dunning, Grabau, Maclay, Peele, Tombo, and Prettyman, the first half year, and Profs. Bagster-Collins, Burr, Fletcher, Jackson, Helen Kinne, Mylan, Munroe, Redfield, Todd, and Woodhall, the second half year.

DESPAIRS OF FINDING HIS WANDERING SON

HIS MOTHER PROSTRATED

Detectives Have Been Unable to Find Any Trace of Young Salesman Since He Left the Waldorf.

Charles H. Davenport, the paper manufacturer, of South Hadley, Mass., who is here, searching for his missing son, Charles H. Davenport, Jr., yesterday offered a reward of $500 for the recovery of his son, dead or alive. A notice of the reward, together with the young man's photograph and a minute description of him, appear to-day in the advertising columns of THE TIMES.

It is a sad and careworn father who is waiting, day and night, for tidings of his missing boy. In the daytime he searches through various parts of the city, and at night returns to his room at the Hotel Belmont, there to spend sleepless hours, expecting to hear at any moment from the detectives who are at work on the case that they have found his son.

Up at Holyoke, Mass., a wife and mother also await the first tidings of the husband and son. At the close of each day the father has written to the home folks, hoping against all odds. Yesterday, for the first time, he began to lose hope. Hence the advertisement for news of his son.

Height, 6 feet 1 inch; weight, 200 pounds; 38 years old; brown spot on the back of right ear; birthmark on right hip, two-thirds size of a cent; wears anatomic shoes made at Shelton, Conn., which were sold by Thomas S. Childs, Holyoke, Mass.; blonde, with dark, bushy hair; mustache, brownish black.

"There must be some one in this great city," said Mr. Davenport last night, "who knows the whereabouts of my boy. If he is alive I am here to welcome him with open arms and to take him back home to his heart-broken wife and mother. If he is dead—" His voice faltered a little, then he continued: "Well, I reckon we must prepare for the worst. But I shall not abandon hope entirely, and I feel sure that the reward of $500 will bring some word of my boy."

The incidents surrounding the strange disappearance of Charles H. Davenport, Jr., are too unusual to be common in police chronicles, which concern persons who suddenly drop out of sight in this city. Nineteen days have passed since the young man was seen to pass out of the Thirty-fourth Street door of the Waldorf-Astoria, soon after midnight. Since that time all trace of the young man has been lost, although there were several unfounded reports that he had been seen at various dance halls in the white light district and later at a Turkish bath.

According to the father his son arrived in this city on Tuesday, Feb. 8, and registered at the Murray Hill Hotel, where he expected to stay until after Feb. 10, so as to attend the dinner of the paper manufacturers at the Waldorf-Astoria. On Feb. 9 he went to a theatre, and on the evening of Feb. 10 dined in Fulton Street with F. H. Ross, a paper buyer, whom he had known for several years.

About midnight he showed up at the paper manufacturers' dinner and greeted many of his friends and acquaintances.

As the days passed and brought no word of his son, Mr. Davenport became disheartened, and he believes now that his son has met with foul play. The detectives who are searching so far have not turned up the slightest clue. Sometimes the father accompanies them to the resorts where it is hoped he may be, but usually he stays at his hotel, patiently waiting.

Generally, as the case was last night, Mr. Davenport sits near the telephone in his room at the Belmont, starting eagerly at every tinkle of the bell, and waiting all through the hours of the night.

"I shall stay until Saturday," he went on to say last night, "and then if I get no word of Charley's being found I shall be obliged to return to Holyoke, although the search will be continued by the detectives."
